DISTEMPER OF OUR TIMES By PETER C. NEWMAN

Pearson Was the Chief Victim of a Nation in Turmoil

(This is the first of 12 articles condensed from "The Distemper of Our Times", the exciting new book on the Pearson era by noted Ottawa commentator Peter C. Newman.)

Just after Pierre Elliott Trudeau was sworn in as the fifteenth Prime Minister of Canada, I left his House of Commons office, a tape-recording of a long conversation with him under my arm and walked into an April evening feeling the exhilaration of expectation that was so common in Canada that spring.

Newman

I was working on this book at the time so the events of the previous five years were very much in my mind and it suddenly occurred to me just how long it had been since I, or anyone I knew, had felt this optimistic quickening of interest in national affairs. For half a decade, most of the people I had talked to had been voicing — some eloquently, some awkwardly—a kind of dismay and frustration with our politics that was hardening into cynicism and despair.

They seemed to be experiencing an alienation they had never known before.

The Distemper of Our Times is a chronicle of that alienation between the politicians and the people which marked Canadian history from the collapse of the Diefenbaker administration in February of 1963 to Trudeau's assumption of power in April of 1968.

During that unsettled period Canada, which had always been blessed with more geography than history, fell at last into the grip of both. We had spent a hundred years trying to become a nation, now we were a nation and it was hell.

It was a time of national distemper. A time when the political affairs of the country were in such a state of disorder that there was something faintly absurdist about their unfolding, a time when many Canadians were left with the feeling that much of what was happening had no meaning and that all they could do was ask themselves a series of unanswerable questions: Is the country being governed by fools?

Or is it ungovernable? Has our good luck, taken for granted for so long, run out? Can't we just forget about the politicians and get on with our lives? Oh God!

We were only dimly aware that we were endruing the pains of passage from the safety of the past to we knew not what. The politics of the period was essentially a politics of transition

Although he could not know it at the time of his hopeful beginnings, Pearson was to be caught throughout his stewardship between a New Canada quixotically seeking a political midwife to be born and an Old Canada stubbornly refusing to disappear. For five hectic years he found himself suspended between two worlds, a moderate confronted with radical facts.

His term in power coincided with a profound shift in the country's social, economic, political, constitutional and moral climate.

Although his government pushed through the House of Commons many useful, if ill-co-ordinated new laws, the impact of each legislative accomplishment was obscured by yet another spectacular failure of spirit or method.

So Lester Pearson, instead of being able to govern wisely and well had the misfortune to appear during most of his tenure in office as a confused and inept politician, harassed by an acceleration of events beyond his capacity for decisive action.

Many of the tensions that plagued Lester Pearson's time in office were legacies from his predecessor, John Diefenbaker. But the two seasons in Canadian politics were as different as the men who gave them their labels.

The Diefenbaker Years resembled nothing so much as the voyage of the Titanic — and inevitable rush to disaster, with the ship of state sinking at the end in a galaxy of fireworks, brass band playing and the captain shouting hysterical orders to crewmen who had long since jumped overboard.

The Pearson period, in contrast, was more like the voyage of some peeling, once-proud, now leaky excursion steamer, lurching from port to port, with the captain making up the schedule as he went along, too busy keeping afloat to spend much time on the bridge.

Canadian politics between 1957 and 1963 was essentially the story of what happened to one gigantic figure, John Diefenbaker. But Canadian politics between 1963 and 1968 was dominated by a tumble of events rather than by the personality or fate of any one man.

Events shaped men and events in conflict shaped one another: Lester Pearson did battle with John Diefenbaker; the Conservative Party endured internal intrigues almost Byzantine in their flavor; the French rose up against the English; provincial governments challenged the federal authority; Walter Gordon lashed out against American domination of the Canadian economy, and Pierre Trudeau conquered the Liberal Party.

At the same time, nearly every aspect of Canadian life was in ferment. The church, our long-praised phlegmatic stability, the old idea of allegiance to Empire, all the

Observer Team Raked

LAGOS (CP) — The future of the international observer operation for Nigeria was surrounded by uncertainty today following an unprecedented attack on some of the observers by the country's most celebrated soldier, Col. Benjamin (Black Scorpion) Adekunle.

Among the observers tongue-lashed was Canada's Lt.-Col. E. B. M. (Bert) Pinnington, 43, of Cobalt, Ont.

Adekunle, 30-year-old, Sandhurst graduate and the ablest federal field commander in the Nigerian civil war, attacked the observers personally and made uncomplimentary remarks about their countries.

His main complaint seemed to be that the observers insisted on doing things their own way and were unwilling to accept the program laid out for them.

KEEP TO SCHEDULE

For a time today, the observers appeared on the verge of cutting short by one day their stay in the 3rd Division sector which Adekunle commands, and flying back to Lagos, the federal capital, immediately.

But after lengthy discussions they decided to go through with

Red Tape Cut To Help Needy

By W. RALPH THOMAS

Assistance rendered to the needy by the St. Vincent de Paul Society is charity in the truest sense.

In cases of desperate need where official welfare agencies are slowed by their bureaucratic structures, the little volunteer agency moves in and brings immediate relief.

Society president Frank Rushton says the role of the society is to supplement the services of official agencies.

It deals primarily with the tarpaper shack element and the indigent transient population, but it also helps ordinary families whose fortunes have taken a turn for the worse.

Although many of its cases are hopeless causes, the agency's philosophy says that no person or family shall be refused if they ask for help.

The 30 or so volunteer Vincentians supply food, clothing, shelter and encouragement to the downtrodden, the helpless and the luckless. They adopt families, offering tangible and moral support. They care about the friendless and the penniless.

Since it was formed 52 years ago, the Victoria branch of the St. Vincent de Paul Society has helped thousands of people in hundreds of ways.

In 1967 alone it handled 651 cases, supplying 609 hot meals and 870 nights of lodging to transients. It provided 2,750 quarts of milk for families with young children and provided groceries for 239 families.

Besides this, the society paid fuel bills, supplemented rents, and gave clothing to the needy.

It is a Catholic organization, but Mr. Rushton says the society's concern is for the whole community.

"We attend to all denominations," he said. "We don't ask people their religion when they want help. As long as there is a need, we'll help anyone."

This year the Community Chest will give $5,570 to the St. Vincent de Paul Society. The society's volunteer workers will raise the other $3,000 of their estimated budget.

Every penny of this budget will be spent to relieve some of the many small miseries tucked beneath Victoria's affluent veneer.

Two Boys Ended Life . . . As They Lived It

By PETE LOUDON

They attended school together and did things together and some said they even looked alike.

Saturday night they were struck down by a car. And Sunday morning at about 6:55, they died together at St. Joseph's Hospital.

They were the fourth and fifth to die in Island traffic accidents this weekend. (See page 19.)

On Saturday afternoon Ricky, 9, and his mother, a brother and two sisters were visiting at the Isacson home at 6 Price Road. When Mrs. Scheeren decided to drive to Langford to pick up Mr. Scheeren where he was building their new house, the boys declined the ride.

SLEEP AT MOTEL

They said they'd walk to the Scheeren's temporary home at Cambridge Motel, 345 Old Island Highway. They set out pushing Ricky's bike. They planned to sleep there that night and were excited about it.

But on the highway between Price Road and Prince Robert Drive they were hit by a car.

Colwood RCMP report that at 4:15 p.m. a passing motorist, Dave Brooks of 3111 Service, chanced to see the taillights of a car in the roadside bush.

PINNED UNDER CAR

He investigated and found Brian Worswick, 22, of 455 Head Street injured and pinned under the vehicle. Mr. Brooks stopped other motorists and while some directed traffic others set about freeing Mr. Worswick.

The rescuers had to cut down two eight-inch trees to get the car out. It took about 14 men to lift it off the injured driver. It was then the two boys were found in the ditch, on the opposite side of the road, a distance apart and seriously injured.

The boys and the driver were rushed to hospital. It was expected Mr. Worswick could be released today and police planned to question him this afternoon.

Meantime, police say not one witness to the accident has been located. They say traffic is heavy on that road Saturday afternoons. They've issued a call for any witnesses to come forward.

A grim sidelight to the story was that Mr. and Mrs. Scheeren, on their way home from Langford, passed the accident scene and noted the damaged car. Only after they were home did they learn of Ricky's involvement.

Friends of the families said the boys' fathers are F. Raymond Isacson, 6 Price, a long-time employee of Greater Victoria Water District, and Peter Scheeren, a foreman of Smith Cedar Products Ltd.

The Scheerens have three surviving children, the Isacsons one surviving child.

Friends said the boys had promised to walk with their bike and quoted Mr. Scheeren as saying, "We were very strict about that."

While it still isn't known on which side of the road they were walking, the boys would have to cross the highway twice in order to walk on the left.

SLIDE MARK

A coroner's inquest was expected to be announced later today and pending a decision on the date, tentative funeral arrangements have been made with Sands Funeral Chapel, Colwood, for Saturday.

The single funeral will be for both boys — together.

Czech March Defies Russia

Leaders Fear Shouts Will Bring Red Tanks

Times News Services

PRAGUE — Thousands of youthful Czechoslovaks broke through police barriers today and marched on Hradcin Castle, shouting "Russians go home".

Tense officials were worried that the demonstration might bring Soviet troops, now on the outskirts of the city, back into the centre of town.

As the nation began its 50th anniversary celebrations, a group of several hundred Czechs marched to the gates of the castle chanting: "Better dead than shame."

Then about 3,000 persons, most of them young, marched behind leaders carrying the Czechoslovak flag from Wenceslas Square in the heart of the capital toward the city's historic Old Town's square.

It was the first time since the Soviet-led military invasion in August that Czechoslovaks had staged a public demonstration in Prague.

The demonstrators who marched on the presidential castle pushed on the locked iron gates several times in an attempt to break in.

MINOR SCUFFLES OCCUR

There were minor scuffles as the demonstrators crashed against police lines at the castle overlooking Prague and against the tall iron gates but no injuries were reported.

At the castle and later at Wenceslas Square, demonstrators climbed statues and planted Czechoslovak flags atop them.

Police and palace guards managed to keep the gates closed against several attempts by the demonstrators to break in. The crowd then settled down and began joking and laughing. The roaring laughter could be heard inside the castle.

Police tried to block off roads leading to the castle, where party, state and government leaders were meeting to commemorate the country's jubilee. On Sunday, the officials voted to make Czechoslovakia into a federation of Czech and Slovak states, still united under the Prague government but less tightly controlled.

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet space ship Soyuz 2 landed in the Soviet Union today after three days in space, Tass announced, but cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoy continued in orbit in the sister ship Soyuz 3.

Beregovoy had followed the unmanned ship in tandem around the earth for two days and during this period had manoeuvred his Soyuz 3 so as to approach the pilotless sister ship.

UN Member Quits Party

QUEBEC (CP) — Dr. Gaston Tremblay, member of the legislative assembly for Montmorency, quit the Union Nationale party Sunday, charging the party "deceived, disappointed and betrayed" some of its supporters.

Dr. Tremblay said he will sit in the legislature as a member of the Christian Nationalist Party.

LONDON POLICEMEN HANDLE PROTESTERS

LONDON (CP) — Police Sunday contained and controlled the largest demonstrations against the Vietnam war ever held here.

Police estimated about 30,000 persons marched through London, all but a few hundred peacefully. Some 7,000 demonstrated in Grosvenor Square, site of the American Embassy, and 200 to 300 extremists broke away for a flying wedge attack on the big white building.

As thick cordons of police barred their way, the red-helmeted Maoists and anarchists threw firecrackers at mounted police waiting in reserve. Some hurled banner poles as spears. Then they charged the police lines with iron pipes.

The police slowly pushed and shoved the militants back without using nightsticks, penning them into the southwest corner of the square and stopping any attempt to break out. Gradually the young demonstrators ran out of steam and drifted away. London was quiet again by 9 p.m.

Casualty figures were low. Five policemen and about 40 demonstrators received medical treatment, although hundreds more had minor cuts and bruises.

HAD SOME 'WEAPONS'

Thirty-nine demonstrators were arrested, for carrying chains, sticks and bottles as "offensive weapons" and for a brief burst of window-smashing and bottle-throwing in the exclusive Mayfair district around the embassy as the crowd broke up.

Defending the British tradition of peaceful protest, Home Secretary James Callaghan had resisted strong pressure to ban the demonstration. He stood behind the police cordons in Grosvenor Square and told one detachment: "Well done, lads. Thank you all very much."

Later Callaghan issued a statement:

"This was a demonstration of British good sense. Self-control was shown by the mass of demonstrators, and by the police who remained completely calm under the provocation of disorderly charging. I doubt this sort of demonstration could have taken place as peacefully in any other part of the world."

Peaceniks March Peacefully

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vietnam war protesters were out in force during the weekend and most of the demonstrations were peaceful.

In Toronto Saturday, 34 persons were arrested — 28 men, four women and two juveniles — but in other cities across Canada things were relatively quiet.

Charges in the Toronto demonstrations ranged from causing a disturbance and assaulting police officers to public mischief.

Twenty-five arrests were made outside the United States consulate on University Avenue where about 300 demonstrators, organized by Canadians for the National Liberation Front turned up as well as members of the Union of American Exiles and the right-wing Edmund Burke Society.

Others were arrested when a group, estimated at 1,500 and organized by the Vietnam Mobilization Committee, tried to march south on Yonge Street from Queen's Park, seat of the provincial government.

The marchers tried to reach city hall on Toronto's main thoroughfare, but were met by 21 mounted police and about 80 officers on foot.

In Vancouver, more than 1,500 persons marched downtown and police said it was one of the largest anti-war rallies ever held in the city.

About 250 anti-war demonstrators turned up at the U.S. consulate in Winnipeg, even though organizers had expected about 1,500.

In Ottawa, some 125 demonstrators staged an orderly march from the Supreme Court building to Parliament Hill and in Calgary about 75 persons spent three hours in front of the U.S. consulate.

. . . PETER NEWMAN

comforting touchstones of the familiar past were being displaced by the urgent demands of a disquieting present.

The trade patterns that had shaped the country's economy began to alter; the exodus from the farms went steadily on as Canada became a strung-out collection of city states beset by the pressures and neuroses of urban existence.

Technological break-throughs changed the nature and tenure of most jobs. The Pill and the flourishing ecumenical movement transformed the moral values of a generation. Television revolutionized public thought and with it the political process.

Disillusioned with politicians and infected with a small dose of the revolutionary fever that was epidemic in western democracies, Canadians at all levels of the population began spontaneously—and quite uncharacteristically—to question authority.

This mood spread from the post-adolescent group, where it could be expected, to the middle-class middle-aged and beyond to the old and the very young. Housewives organized boycotts of supermarkets to protest high food costs. Farmers climbed on their tractors and blocked highways to draw attention to their problems.

Labor Disputes Shook Economy

A long series of labor disputes shook the economy, as union executives lost control over their members. Day and night on open-line radio programs Canadians gave voice to their pent-up resentment of "them," the people in charge, the managers of a society that no longer seemed able to satisfy the normal longings of its ordinary citizens.

Canada's most serious problem during the mid-Sixties was not the French-English confrontation, not the paralysis of Parliament or the continuing takeover of a major share of the country's resources and factories by the Americans.

It was the growing disbelief that something meaningful could be done to solve the nation's problems through political action. Lacking the unity of purpose that allows a people to think together on fundamental issues, Canadians became citizens of a country that seemed no longer to believe in itself.

Just as the hunger of the Thirties was for material resources, so the hunger of the Sixties was for strong resolve, some assurance that the political system was not a senseless clash between self-seeking men, but a process that would lead somewhere and accomplish something.

Instead, under Lester Pearson's stumbling government, all the great political problems seemed to exhaust themselves, not by the catharsis of solution, but through repetition and the absence of decisive action.

This "end of ideology" situation drained the electoral process and the parliamentary system of the vitality that flows from a confrontation with great issues.

It was Pearson's bland, uninspiring leadership that caused much of the malaise and this must stand as the real criticism of his time in office: that despite his good intentions, he failed to provide any frame of reference in which his own government and the people of Canada could reach a consensus about national problems.

No Clear Pattern Emerged

As more and more Pearson proposals became law, no clear pattern emerged. Canadians could not discern what kind of society was being constructed in the process, and what forces beyond mere political survival were at work in the endless Liberal manoeuvrings.

A national leader with no clear concept of nationhood, Pearson reduced the country to the lowest common denominator of its parts and functioned as a sort of secretary-general of Canada.

A psychic numbness hung over the land. Most Liberal ministers behaved as though they were suffering from a low-grade fever. They were ambulatory but never quite sure of their balance.

The political speeches continued to roll off Ottawa's mimeograph machines; the partisan sallies and fatuous pronouncements still bloomed in the humid atmosphere of Parliament Hill.

But few of the men who held national office had anything new to say and no one seemed certain any longer that anybody was listening.

Outwardly confident as they tried to puff life into once appropriate cliches, spokesmen for all parties were privately bewildered by their inability to establish contact with the voters.

Parliament became a kind of Disneyland-on-the-Rideau as most Canadians stopped believing that national problems had political solutions. Demoralized by long years of minority government and the spectacle of scandals dragged through debates like tatty laundry, the politicians were snappish with each other and given to regarding House of Commons proceedings with an aggrieved and weary air.

Small, Silly House Incident

A small, silly incident that occurred during the first week of April, 1967, while the House was debating Paul Hellyer's bill to unify the armed forces, was symptomatic of this mood.

Bill Lee, the minister's jaunty executive assistant, was sitting in the Commons gallery one afternoon, bored rigid with the Tory filibuster. To amuse himself, he pulled out a three-foot-long telescopic ballpoint pen, which looked a little like the aerial of a walkie-talkie, and began to mutter into it, pretending to be relaying messages to Marcel Prud'homme (Liberal M.P. for Saint-Denis) on the floor of the Commons, who had a similar pen of his own.

The Tories, already suspicious that Lee was ghost writing most of the government's unification speeches, came to life as soon as they spotted the by-play. Gordon Churchill promptly called a dinner-hour caucus to plan a protest against Lee's temerity in using "an electronic spy device" to signal party strategy.

That evening, just as Churchill was about to rise and make his motion, he noticed that two Conservative MPs, Donald MacInnis and Michael Forrestall, had also been given trick pens by Lee.

He sank back, bewildered and speechless. The debate droned on into the stale night, with the three MPs and Lee jabbering like bad 10-year-olds into their pens.

The members of the Pearson ministry were nearly all well intentioned and hard-working separately even though they only sporadically functioned effectively as a group.

They had gone into office determined to end the disorder of the Diefenbaker Years. But the humiliation of their first "Sixty Days of Decision" began an accelerating series of emergencies that never let up.

Government Became Introverted

As the succession of crises dulled its sensibilities, the government became increasingly introverted. Most ministers lost their zest for public occasions, retreating more and more into the seclusion of the cabinet chamber, where they rationalized their actions to each other, behaving as though only the small clique of equals to which they belonged had to be satisfied with the efficacy of their choices.

Observed at a distance, they resembled a troupe of shy acrobats, performing in a half-illuminated circus tent before the audience is admitted.

Here in unassailable privacy they did their tricks for one another, then basked in their own applause. When their elaborate ploys were tested in Parliament before a live audience the acrobatics seldom worked, and many ministers ended up doing a flop-dive into the safety nets.

Unhappily for them, Lester Pearson and most of his company of bewildered cabinet colleagues failed to comprehend that the drama of Canada's transformation was being acted out among the people themselves.

They stumbled uncertainly into the future ever hopeful that things would somehow "return to normal; while the people were repudiating most of their aims—even before they had been fully articulated.

Increasingly the ordinary Canadian found himself at cross purposes with his governmental institutions and with the parliamentarians trying to impose control over a nation in upheaval in a world in tumult.

Instead of leading the people through this maze of change, the Pearson-Diefenbaker generation of politicians droned on, caught up in the obsolete attitudes and vain hopes of a long-gone epoch, viewing their own peculiar Kiplingesque world through the rear windows of flag-fluttering limousines in the age of moonflights, mass marches and mod.

begged the marching students:

"Don't create a grave provocation . . . go home, you will create a dangerous situation."

But the students jeered in reply, and chanted "Long Live Svoboda."

Svoboda is both the name of Czechoslovakia's president and the Czech word for liberty.

The demonstrators stopped for a moment's silence when they reached the old town square where a statue of John Hus, the reformer burnt at the stake, stands.

With lowered flags, they sang a verse of a Czechoslovak national song before continuing the march across the Vltava River toward the castle.

LOOK FOR TROUBLE

Soviet radio cars drove through the streets of Prague on the lookout for trouble. Russian plainclothes detectives were also about.

Most of the demonstrators appeared to be young workers, not students, although some students joined in, as did hundreds of adults.

The countries contributing to the observer team—invited by the federal government to disprove charges that genocide was being committed against the Ibo tribesmen of Biafra—undoubtedly now will want to seek clarification from the Lagos government as to the durability of its welcome.

Some observers interpreted the incident as a direct slap by Adekunle at the federal military government, which has guaranteed the observers unrestricted freedom of movement.

The immediate targets of Adekunle's attack were Pinnington, Maj.-Gen. Arthur Raab of Sweden, Lt.-Col. Patrick Cairns of Britain and an officer from Poland, as well as another officer representing United Nations Secretary-General U Thant.

Earlier Adekunle said he might take a whip to Raab.

Canada's chief observer is Maj.-Gen. William A. Milroy, who returned to Lagos tonight after a trip to Ottawa to report on activities in Nigeria.

Before launching into his tirade, Adekunle turned on a group of Western correspondents seated near the observers and ordered them to get out of Port Harcourt today.

He gave no reason for the expulsion. Later however, in a free-wheeling exchange with reporters he accused them of being interested only in finding "stories" in Nigeria.

Hanoi Denies Accepting Conditions

HONG KONG (AP) — North Vietnam's official radio denied today that North Vietnam "is ready to accept" any United States conditions in return for a U.S. bombing halt of North Vietnam.

Radio Hanoi thus went one step further than it had in three previous days, during which it denied that North Vietnam had accepted any such conditions.

Hunger Threat Less

GENEVA (AP)—The threat of mass starvation in Biafra now is greatly diminished, the International Red Cross committee reported today.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Heavy rain has fallen along the west coast of Vancouver Island overnight and Spring Island has had a 24-hour fall of 5 inches bringing their October total to 27.89 inches and new record for the month. Cloud covers all areas of B.C. except the southern interior this morning and a wide band of rain lies across the province from Vancouver Island northeastward into the Prince George area. The disturbance will move inland across the B.C. coast tonight. Behind it cool moist air will spread to the coast to keep skies cloudy and give scattered showers to all coastal areas.

Biafra 'A War of Suicide'

Attending the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Liberal party, the prime minister ran into placard-carrying students denouncing his government's policy on the war.

Following a street corner confrontation with the protesters shortly after his arrival Friday, Mr. Trudeau invited them to a question-and-answer session Saturday.

He told them Canada was unable to recognize the aspirations for self determination of the breakaway Ibos in Nigeria because the United Nations charter refers to the right of self determination of "peoples"—not tribes, ethnic groups or creeds.

Mr. Trudeau said that of the 33 member countries in the Organization for African Unity, 29 had agreed that the Nigerian civil war was an "internal problem" and had told the world "hands off."

WON'T RECOGNIZE BIAFRA

Canada wouldn't recognize Biafra as a country because this would only cause more trouble there.

Referring to charges of genocide against the federal Nigerian army, the prime minister said the war was "suicide not genocide." A just war required a chance of success—otherwise it was suicide—as well as a just cause.

In answer to a question on Canada's immigration policy, the prime minister brought to light a little known order-in-council passed by the Mackenzie King administration in late 1945 or early 1946 allowing the deportation of thousands of Japanese-Canadians.

He said the blanket order, stimulated by fear of espionage following the Igor Gouzenko revelations, was "a scandal."

The order had never been acted upon "but the fact that it could have been contemplated is a frightening thing."

Recalling the order-in-council, he said the government is preparing legislation so that there no longer will be two types of citizenship—one for native Canadians and one for those not born in Canada.

At a $25 a plate fund raising dinner Friday, Mr. Trudeau told party regulars patronage has no place in the just society. "The temper of the times" demanded something more between elections than dispensation by the government on jobs and contracts to party friends.

Biafrans Using Arms From Paris

LONDON (CP) — Maj.-Gen. H. T. Alexander, Britain's observer in Nigeria, said today the French "are thought to be providing the Biafrans with arms" for their struggle against federal military forces in the African country.

Alexander told a news conference he himself came upon a French rocket that had been fired.

But otherwise "a very sharp increase in firepower in the last few weeks" seemed reason for the belief that fresh fighting supplies were reaching the Biafrans, the British general said.

Judging from the tone and rate of fire, he estimated that most of the additional firepower was of Czechoslovak manufacture.

REFERS TO CANADIANS

Alexander said allegations that he and the other observers in Nigeria were deliberately drawn by the federal authorities from friendly governments took no account of Canadian membership on the team.

"The Canadian view of federal policies is not always friendly," said the British observer.

Alexander said that, judging from statements made by its radio, the Biafran administration "didn't think much" of the observers, whose main job was to watch for any signs of genocide. Besides Canada and Britain, they come from Poland, Sweden, the United Nations and the Organization for African Unity.

On the basis of what he saw behind the federal lines, Alexander said reports of famine there are "terribly exaggerated."

Develop A Powerful Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name and address to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 142-210, Chicago, Ill. 60614. A postcard will do.

Step 1

THE UNIVERSALLY HIGH percentage of the vote in favor of the local hospital construction program was a clear demonstration that the people recognize the urgent need for more hospital beds. It was also, by implication, a full endorsement of the regional system of revenue and planning under which the hospital extensions will be carried out. And it was a plain direction to the authorities to get on with the job without delay.

It is significant that although the required majority was 60 per cent, the lowest in any municipal area was still a good 77 per cent—in North Saanich, where there has been concern for perpetuation of the existing Resthaven institution. The support ranged up to more than 90 per cent and the very satisfying average for the region was 87 per cent.

It is unfortunate that the hospital situation should have had to reach such a critical stage before the people spoke decisively. Doctors today are forced to book beds for patients eleven months hence. But at least the way is clear for the first phase of the recovery program. It is a sorry commentary, too, that only about one eligible voter in five bothered to turn out to cast a ballot. No democratic community is safe when a large majority of the people spurn their right to have a say in how community affairs are to be run. In any referendum, of course, a certain proportion of voters is unable to attend due to illness, absence from the city, or other valid reasons. But far too many indicate either ignorance or apathy by avoiding the polls, and neither of these qualities is a basis for a sound democratic society.

It is right that civic leaders, in hailing Saturday's results as an excellent step forward, should have made it plain that the plan to construct 600 extended care beds in this region is only the first step in a necessary program to bring us back to an adequate level of service. The extended care beds, when provided, will free some of the beds in our existing acute-care hospitals for patients who need the intensive treatment available there.

But this step will in no way provide the much larger number of acute-care beds which the regional community needs. These must be built in the second or even third phase of hospital construction yet to come, and the people will in due course be asked to give their approval to these plans too. Let there be equally enthusiastic support until the job is done.

A Plea for Sensitivity

MR. GEORGE CLUTESI, WHOSE writings and pictures have brought delight to many Canadians, has underscored one of the major problems facing the peoples of this country today—the preservation of cultures now being ground between the millstones of materialism and what is called progress in our affluent society. With the best of intentions, many white Canadians are trying to bring Indian people up to the living standards which the more fortunate among the white population enjoy. The method they follow frequently threatens the traditions and ways of life dear to the Indians.

Efforts are being made to give Indians the educational opportunities which permit white Canadians to compete successfully in the modern world. Success in these efforts would give the Indian a better home, a better car, a better television set, better health services, social acceptance in the white community and a larger measure of equality in citizenship. But that same success could leave little time for the preservation of the arts, handicrafts, traditions, philosophies of the old Indian civilization and the pride of race that are important to him.

There is much Canada can do —and should do—to help Canadian Indians achieve a better association with our white civilization, and, where desired, become integrated into it. But in helping the Indian materially we should not destroy him spiritually. There is much in his history and his character that is highly worthy of preservation—particularly in these days when the entire philosophy of the modern white society is under searching question.

We are at pains to encourage the preservation of the cultures of the many immigrant races assimilated into the Canadian nation. We pride ourselves on creating a cultural mosaic rather than a melting pot. The cultural heritage of the Indian has an equal claim to preservation. Mr. Clutesi raises a timely warning not to annihilate it in our well-meaning efforts to help the Indian improve his material lot.

Water Back in the Creek

THE EXCELLENT SAANICH plan to rehabilitate Colquitz Creek appears more feasible with disclosure in greater detail of means by which to keep it flowing during dry summers. Water for that purpose would be diverted through an Elk-Beaver Lake outlet once the Greater Victoria Water Board pushed its mains northward up the peninsula to serve consumers now drawing supplies from the Elk Lake system. That could occur within three years.

Studies indicate that the lake would not suffer from such a diversion. The project would merely alter the destination of water now being consumed. The recreational amenities of Elk Lake would be preserved.

The prospect is a cheerful reversal of trends in recent decades on the Lower Island. Since residential and urban development set in before the turn of the century, this locality has sacrificed one stream after another, either to conduits or to the destructive effects of pollution. If, as Mr. Frank Neate has visualized the undertaking, Colquitz can once again become a good trout stream and a pleasant environment for leisure-time strolls, the Greater Victoria community will have gained an asset of immense value.

New Assets For Mexico

INEVITABLY POLITICS WERE injected into the Olympic Games in Mexico. But despite local student disorders preceding the events and the general background of international hostilities, the picture of Mexico's Olympiad presented to the world has won high praise for the host country. Its hospitality and the excellence of the facilities it created were in the best traditions of the Olympic Games.

It is gratifying to learn, as the events come to a close, that Mexicans will realize handsome returns from their efforts and investments. The Olympic Village is already finding tenants seeking low rental housing, the splendid swimming pool will be open to the public, and other useful facilities will be availabe for the enjoyment and benefit of the Mexicans which would never have been created had the Games not provided their inspiration. The departing athletes and visitors take with them a new appreciation for the people who were their hosts.

FROM MOSCOW

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Marshals in the Saddle in Moscow

IF true (and a decade is usually required for final checking) one of the worst pieces of news the U.S. government has had in years concerns the succession to Soviet Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky, who died in March, 1967.

Alsop

It is old news, now, but it is startling. For it suggests that the Soviet military leaders have already begun to reach successfully for the kind of independence within the Soviet system that was enjoyed by the German general staff before Germany's defeat in the First World War.

Some background is needed to make the facts understandable. In brief, the Soviet defence ministerium has had no civilian leadership since Khrushchev's unfortunate sidekick, Bulganin, moved on from the defence ministry to the prime ministership. Marshal Zhukov then succeeded as defence minister, and after Zhukov's abrupt fall, Marshal Malinovsky succeeded.

It is a simple rule that a defence ministry without civilian leadership is always an organism concerning which the real truth is unknown to the government's civilian leaders. For this and other obvious reasons, the Soviet Presidium therefore wished to reimpose civilian leadership when Malinovsky died.

The Presidium's reported candidate for defence minister was Dimitri F. Ustinov. As the Presidium member who had had general charge of all defence production, Ustinov obviously had close links with the Red Army marshals and senior generals who were running the defense ministerium. Equally obviously, he was chosen with this in mind, as the most acceptable non-marshal.

Army Veto

Nonetheless, according to the story that has now reached Washington from a presumably authoritative source, the Presidium got a negative answer from the massed phalanx of marshals (most of whom look like General LeMay cubed). Instead of Ustinov, said the marshals, why not put in Marshal Andrei Grechko?

The Presidium insisted upon Ustinov. The marshals returned a second negative, this time suggesting the present Warsaw Pact commander, Marshal Ivan Jakubovsky. Once again the Presidium insisted upon Ustinov. This time, the marshals answered, in effect, "well, if you don't like Jakubovsky, you'd better take Grechko after all." And Grechko was in fact named defence minister, and holds the post to this day.

Concerning this remarkable story, it must first be noted that it is regarded with suspicion by some of the very senior Kremlinologists, despite a source that would make it convincing. No one can tell whether this suspicion is well-founded. Yet the old Kremlinological tradition noted in the Stalin time when the Red Army was cowed and impotent, is perhaps not applicable to the present period, when the same conditions no longer exist.

Furthermore, the story above-given looks remarkably like a natural development from earlier events. The Red Army leaders, for instance, were Khrushchev's key backers on de-Stalinization, throughout his rise of power, and when he defeated "the artificial majority" of the Presidium. Khrushchev thereafter managed, of course, to get rid of the overweening Marshal Zhukov; but Marshal Malinovsky is also widely believed to have had a significant role in Khrushchev's eventual downfall.

So we are confronted with the strong possibility or probability that the military leaders already have enough leverage to stand out against the party Presidium's announced wishes, and to name their own defence minister. If this is correct, we are clearly dealing with a rather new kind of Soviet government.

That may in turn explain the strange course the Soviets took before they invaded Czechoslovakia, and it may also cast much light on the invasion itself, which made such fools of the "world opinion" — thinkers about foreign affairs on the American liberal-left. The boa constrictor methods which the Soviets are now so brutally using to crush the last vestiges of Czechoslovakia's internal freedom, furthermore, appear to have a strong military flavor.

But there is more to it than that, if the Soviet marshals are indeed moving toward the kind of position formerly occupied by the old German general staff (their true model, one may be sure). In addition to looking like General LeMay cubed, a good many of the marshals can be expected to think as General LeMay thinks.

That makes a pretty prospect, when one considers, for example, the dreadful situation that's now developing in the Middle East. And this prospect also gives much validity to Richard M. Nixon's insistence that this country needs an undoubted margin of power. For it is very doubtful whether Soviet marshals use their computers the way Robert S. McNamara used them.

DVA Hospital

As an 'Old Contemptible' — one of the few domiciled in B.C. at the outbreak of World War I—and as an original member of the Legion in which I held several executive offices, I have always been actively interested in veteran's problems.

I was not a resident in Victoria when the Veterans Hospital was built, but I understand that it was entirely due to the efforts of the local veterans backed by Hon. Robert Mayhew that we got this hospital. The leader of the veterans in this was the late Bob Knight who was one of the early veterans to be returned wounded.

It will be a crime if by neglect we allow the hospital to be handed over to civilian jurisdiction. Victoria has more aging veterans than most centres in Canada, and there is very definite need for hospitalization for many of them.

Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital was handed over several years ago to the University of Toronto. One of the conditions of this change was that a building was to be put up to house 400 domiciliary-care patients. This building has not yet been started.

Next month we go to the public to ask them to donate to the Poppy Campaign in memory of those of our comrades we have lost. Surely it is up to us to make an effort on behalf of those of our comrades who are still alive and need hospitalization.

Unless some concerted effort is made, it appears more than likely that the DVA Hospital will be taken over by the Jubilee.

Tribute

I should like to pay tribute to a friend and colleague who died recently.

For a number of years in Central Junior Secondary School, Freda Rance inspired in her students an enthusiastic love of music; a love for perfection in singing; and, strange though it may seem, a love for hard work.

It was Freda Rance who laid the solid groundwork of vocal training for the many boys and girls who became members of my choirs in the Victoria Senior Secondary School. It was Freda Rance, too, who sought out youngsters with special vocal talent and then explored every avenue of assistance to help them on their way.

Those fine choirs of "Central Junior"! The delight and charm of the young voices lifted in song under the guidance of a remarkable teacher! — Norma Douglas, Port Washington, B.C.

FROM NEW YORK

By RICHARD PURSER

Mr. Nixon Raises Youthful Cheers

THERE is only one full week left before the Nov. 5 presidential election, and the candidates will be spending it in a few carefully selected areas most critical to their campaigns. The front-runner, Richard Nixon, is sticking close to his headquarters here for a four-day interlude before his final onslaught. The interlude comes after three days of intensive campaigning in as many major states.

Purser

He followed a train tour of Ohio and an air swing around Michigan with a day of car and bus motorcading through eastern Pennsylvania on Thursday. Each day of last week's tour left his staff more euphoric than the day before, and with good reason if the evidence of on-the-road acclaim for the Republican contender means anything. No one in his vast army of campaign workers any longer thinks there is the slightest possibility of defeat. And despite Hubert Humphrey's repeated raising of the prospect in each of his speeches, few of the Humphrey organizers really think so either.

Mr. Nixon's Pennsylvania tour was, if anything, more successful than his ventures of the previous two days. This may have been largely because a motorcade brings a candidate closer to the people than does a train or a plane. In a 160-mile meander through a thickly-populated and partially depressed industrial and coal mining area of Pennsylvania, Mr. Nixon found the city streets and even the rural highways lined with cheering citizens. Schools and colleges turned out en masse, and flags and signs were in plentiful profusion everywhere.

Pennsylvania, like the other states visited by Nixon last week, is on the borderline politically. John F. Kennedy won it in 1960, but only by 116,000 out of five million votes cast. Mr. Nixon not only expects to win the third most populous state in the land this year but considers a victory here to be of symbolic importance. No man has ever won the presidency of the United States without carrying Pennsylvania.

After he left New York last Monday, Mr. Nixon spoke publicly 17 times, not counting a number of broadcast addresses. As is also the case with the other presidential candidates, his speech rarely varies in substance. The same points get the same response in applause everywhere.

The Points

These are the points Nixon audiences respond to most enthusiastically, and so they may be taken as the issues on the minds of the voters:

1. The nation cannot afford four more years of the present administration as represented by Mr. Humphrey.

2. Vote "for" Nixon and not just "against" Humphrey.

3. End the war in Vietnam and bring peace abroad.

4. Force allied nations to bear their fair share of Western defence.

5. The Eisenhower administration of which Mr. Nixon was a part got the U.S. out of the Korean war and kept it out of other wars for eight years.

6. U.S. foreign policy must prevent further Vietnams which will cause present 14- and 15-year-olds to fight a few years from now.

7. There must be a new policy to restore respect for law and order at home.

8. A whole new team must replace those who defend the policies of the past.

9. Mr. Nixon will create 15 million new jobs.

10. Mr. Nixon will reject the slap-happy economics of Mr. Humphrey. (The Nixon bit about 15 million new jobs is not regarded as slap-happy economics by his audiences.)

11. Future wage increases will be real increases under Mr. Nixon because they will not be eaten up by inflation.

12. Social security benefits will increase automatically with the cost of living.

13. After the Vietnam war ends, the draft will end, and there will be a volunteer army.

14. The poor will be put on payrolls rather than welfare rolls.

15. There will be prosperity without war and progress without inflation.

This particular list was compiled at Mr. Nixon's first rally on Thursday, in Allentown, Pennsylvania, but the story was much the same everywhere. And in Allentown, as elsewhere, three points in particular drew cheers, in the following order of rising crescendo:

1. The Vietnam war will end under Mr. Nixon.

2. The draft will then end under Mr. Nixon.

3. Young Americans will not again be forced to go to war.

Indicative Response

The wild applause that invariably greets these lines is highly indicative of what is going on in this country. The first observation is that the applause comes from the young people in Mr. Nixon's audiences. The second is that there are a great many young people in his audiences. The third is that he is trying to appeal to them as directly as he can.

Mr. Nixon is on the youth kick every bit as much as Mr. Humphrey is.

It is apparently compulsory to get on it nowadays. But Mr. Nixon can hardly do otherwise. His audiences crawl with young people (not just college students and teen-agers, but children, bright young ones down to the age of 8 or so). He has become almost apologetic when he makes the necessary ritual remarks in favor of "senior citizens," who are thinly represented in his audience.

His every reference to young people, even if it is merely to note that there are a lot of them present, brings wild cheers, when he observes that most of the people present are too young to vote, but says, "Talk it up will ya?"

Adapting to Young

It is fascinating to watch Mr. Nixon and other politicians adapt themselves, but the fact that the age of the average American is diminishing creates problems: in the past, the promises of politicians have been taken with a grain of salt. But the young people, whether they are disillusioned supporters of Robert Kennedy or Eugene McCarthy, or are for Mr. Humphrey, for George Wallace (as a surprising number of teen-agers are), or for Mr. Nixon, will no longer accept the cynicism of the past.

If Mr. Nixon wins, as seems probable, they will demand an end to the Vietnam war, an end to the draft, and an end to the threat of future wars where a direct threat to American survival is not involved. If Mr. Nixon does not perform accordingly, there will be little chance of his administration improving on the present one. And it is a tall order.

Looking Back

From the Times, Oct. 28, 1908.

The CPR Pacific Liner Empress of Japan arrived from the Orient with a very valuable cargo of silks and seal skins, but with a very small list of passengers. The raw silk and silk goods, 2,943 packages in all, are valued at $1,300,000. This does not include the seal skins and other merchandise.

This will be sent on in special cars which will be attached to the express in Vancouver. There were only 13 saloon passengers, 42 second class and 137 steerage.

'We Must Learn to Listen to the Young'

By MARGARET MEAD
National Catholic Reporter

The papal encyclical Of Human Life has focused on crucial issues in contemporary society and become a matter of concern for all of Christendom and of the whole world.

I believe that comments from outside the church must be uttered with caution, even within the framework of ecumenism, but that in a matter affecting all of us, any one of us may, if invited, speak. It is in this spirit that I have attempted to state what seems to me to be perhaps the central issue among the many issues involved.

Part of Revolt

The encyclical itself and the response to it may be seen as part of the widespread revolt against authority in favor of the contemporary insistence on individuality and individual conscience; it may be seen as part of the sexual revolution in which the former devaluation of sex activity is being replaced by a compensatory over emphasis on sex activity; it may be seen as part of the genuine concern of all informed persons for the consequences of the medical revolution which had led to the population explosion threatening hope of the realization of the social vision expressed in Vati-II and the World Council of Churches' Conference on Church and Society. All of these issues are relevant.

Urgent Sense

But I believe the encyclical and the response to it must also be seen in the light of a changed relationship between wisdom and experience, between the cumulative and seasoned capacity of elders to speak and the young people's urgent sense that they have experienced so much that their elders have never experienced.

In the past the papal encyclicals have enabled the church to take impressive cognizance of a changing society, opposing new theological emphases to changes in the secular world as exploration and discovery and science grew apace. It is this sensitive responsiveness and the tremendous influence of previous encyclicals throughout the Catholic world that has made the non-Catholic world also alert to their implications, and which made Vatican II so significant.

The church appeared to be taking mighty steps in its traditional task, "to cherish and protect the lives of men and the life of the world," steps which were applicable to all of us who were attempting to deal with the problems raised by nuclear war, by the population explosion, by urbanization and industrialization, and by the gap between rich and poor nations.

To non-Catholics it appeared that the church was infusing all men of good will with renewed vigor and hope.

One reason that Vatican II was so inspiring was that the crisis between authoritative wisdom and new experience was becoming so acute.

'They cannot tread the same paths as their parents'

More Remote

Authoritative wisdom has become more and more remote from the concerns of the young and from the directions of thinking of those who have listened to the young.

For today, in addition to the admonition to become "as these little ones," there is a new need, to listen to those who have had experience that their elders have never had and can never have.

With the present unprecedented rate of change introduced by the acceleration of scientific discovery, only the young know what it is like to have been born in an age in which the total destruction of mankind by scientific warfare, the strangling of human life by population excess and the progress of destruction of the environment are secular possibilities.

Carry Burden

The young carry a burden that their elders were not asked to carry in their youth, and the kind of pronouncement which the wisest elders could once speak for the immature has lost much if its efficacy.

Yet the very force and essence of all papal encyclicals is that they are ways of giving new or reinforced theological relevance to the Christian faith in a world of change.

If this relevance is lost, then the authority of the church, just as that of the other authorities — university presidents, statesmen, leaders of political parties — is called in question.

New Conditions

The young born into the new conditions and those who have learned to listen to them, mainly those who are close to them in age and influence, can no longer hear relevance in what is spoken, based on a set of precedents without experiential knowledge.

Youth who, no matter how rebellious, once knew that someday they would tread the same paths that their parents have trodden, now know that this is just what they cannot dare do.

Twenty years ago, even 10 years ago, the problem of contraception could be treated as a problem involving individual lives, the health and well being of individuals, and the conditions under which individual children were born.

It could be argued cogently that it was ungenerous to construct a world in which the poor were admonished not to have children rather than helped to rear them.

It could also be argued that a Catholic insistence on welcoming all the children born into a marriage gave a far greater dignity to each child than the use of inadequate birth control methods which left each child in doubt as to whether in fact its parents had willed its non-existence.

The societies were still under this sway of age-old urgencies to keep the population up, to maintain a high birthrate because of the high infant death rate, to keep almost all men and women steadily within a reproductive regime.

Character Structure

In different ways, in different countries, but almost universally, human beings were reared with a character structure which ensured that the impulses which were fulfilled in marriage would have an urgency and an ethical underwriting which would keep up the desired population increase.

We had the example of countries in which land-shortage or other forms of poverty meant a weakening of the nation's strength: the fears of France after the First World War, the situation in Ireland, the shift in Japan from a concerted effort to control their island population to a nationalistic emphasis on population increase.

Change in 1950s

The discussions about means of birth control, abortion laws as distinct from ethics, the meagre support given to research on contraception, and the emphasis on strengthening the family were still part of the old need felt by each group for population increase.

Abruptly in the 1950s, with modern demographical research and a new ethical concern for the condition of the poor among economically less advanced nations — a concern which the Catholic church had articulately fostered — came the recognition that contraceptive measures were not a matter which concerned individuals alone but which concerned the well-being, indeed the very continued existence, of civilization.

Research speeded up and for the first time reliable methods of contraception were developed.

The former ethical dilemma of having a child that was actively unwanted — matched in Catholic families by the compromise permission to use the rhythm method and so passively reject a child — disappeared.

Governments, previously understandably unfriendly to conception control, became alert to the very present dangers.

Clergy Responsive

The clergy, especially the young clergy who were close to the clamoring young, responsive to the misery of our cities and the throttling of advances in the emerging countries, who listened day by day to the dilemma of parishioners whose upbringing had prepared them for a life of high reproductivity that is now a threat to their own families and to the wider society, were becoming aware of the terrible contradictions that faced the married Catholics today.

That these recognitions have coincided with a period of changing beliefs about sexuality is of course an important concomitant condition.

In another age the recognition of the population crisis could have been met, perhaps, by a tremendous crusade for celibate dedication to God, a call to half the adult population to devote themselves to the alleviation of the misery of the children already born rather than to the production of more children who would augment the hunger and misery in a world where there were no longer enough adults to support and care for the masses of children who now survived.

DR. MEAD

Sex Revolution

Such a movement towards passionate self abnegation could have fitted into the traditional Christian's attitudes towards sexuality; by eschewing it men and women could have felt they were entering immediately into the closer relationship with God.

But the revolution in attitudes towards sex, which have pronounced sex as necessary to health and conducive to individual fulfillment, and the absence of sex as almost as dangerous as the absences of the regular processes of ingestion, elimination and rest, have also been sweeping the world; secular in origin, it, like the other accompaniments of the present state of science, has become part of the climate within which clergy as well as laity work.

Celibacy No Answer

Celibacy today is almost as unacceptable and difficult to promote as would be a proposal that infants fast from milk on Fridays.

Furthermore, just as in any of the colleges and universities, extreme contrasts in understanding between the responsible elders and today's youth have led to temporizing, to internal struggles among divided and uncertain adults as crises mount.

In such periods, initial uncertainty develops into spirited controversy, and those who are in revolt are given a chance to strengthen their hopes and muster their moral resources.

The wisdom of the elders, infused with the uncertainties of the middle generation, who are desperately trying to listen in two directions at once, fails to fit the contemporary situation.

The crisis of authority is more striking within the church, for the authority of the papacy has lasted longer than any of the secular authorities in the world today.

Although different in content, it stems I believe from the same unprecedented rate of change, and a kind of generation gap which has never existed before in which there are no elders who know — in the sense of having experienced in childhood — what the young now know.

Existential Insight

We have so far failed to develop new institutions through which not only young parents, young teachers and young priests can listen in consternation and compassion to young people whom they only partially understand, but through which the new existential insights of the young can reach out and evoke a new order of wisdom in those elders who still hold the major responsibility for the direction of human thought.

Encyclicals in the past reflected a developing and maturing wisdom in a world still moving slowly enough so that wisdom was not endangered because there was no way in which the young could be heard, could question, could bear witness to the new dangers and the new hopes.

Wisdom Withers

Today, the wisdom of the wisest withers when it is untouched by experience of the youngest.

"Except ye become as little children" is no longer only an admonition of humility and innocence of heart for mankind has experienced a new loss of innocence and assumed a new and terrible responsibility, that of protecting a world in danger of destruction by the hand of man himself.

'Rice Revolution' in Asia Has Far-Reaching Effects

The Economist

MANILA — A revolution in rice cultivation is on the way. It could transform the situation in many Asian countries where economic growth has been distressingly slow for the past 20 years.

The Philippines recently sold a consignment of rice to Indonesia—its first rice exports in recorded history.

Ceylon, which has been importing 60 per cent of its rice needs, expects to reduce imports to 25 per cent by 1970 and hopes for complete self-sufficiency by 1972.

In parts of India rice production has risen 30 per cent in the past year. Even in Indonesia, where new developements in rice were introduced only in the past two years, a few cultivators have announced yields four times as high as usual.

And this is only the beginning. It took an increase of one ton a hectare in just 10 per cent of the area under rice to convert the Philippines from a net importer to a net exporter.

An increase of two tons a hectare in 15 per cent of India's paddy lands could wipe out India's present deficit of 10 million tons.

The new hopes are the result of innovations in the quality of seed grains and methods of cultivation.

The best known new seed is the IR8, publicized by the extravagant Manila press as "miracle rice."

There are others: Taichung rice developed by plant breeders on Taiwan; C4-63 "wonder rice" of the agricultural college of the Philippine University; H8 bred by Ceylon's agricultural department; some new high-yielding Japanese varieties.

The varieties differ in their suitability for different soil and climatic conditions and for the taste preferences of different countries.

Generally India, Pakistan and Ceylon like their rice with very low chalk content with separate grains that can be cooked early in the day and kept for the evening or even overnight.

The northeast Indian Basumati and Burmese samba are the sought-after ideals. Farther east, sticky chalkier rice is preferred—it is more suitable for the chopstick market and the Chinese palate.

For centuries there had been very little change in Asian rice farming. Certain attitudes had hardened through time into immutable laws; everyone believed that rice had to stand shin deep in water for the best results and that tropical rice could never achieve the high yields obtained in Japan, Italy and America where a milder climate was kinder to the tender rice plant.

It is still extremely difficult to convince the traditional paddy farmer that the roots of the plant are deprived of oxygen if they are drowning in water and that controlled applications of water are much more beneficial.

The average Indian cultivator has been content with a yield of 1.5 tons a hectare, the Thais with 1.6 and the Filipinos with 1.2. But their Italian counterparts have been getting as much as six tons.

The International rice research institute at Los Banos, near Manila, made a breakthrough by shifting attention towards the quality of the plant.

Working on some 10,000 varieties, they evolved the IR8, a cross between Indonesian and Taiwanese rice. The new cross was a stocky plant which did not lodge under the weight of its own yield and so saved up to 50 per cent of the crop which had hitherto been wasted.

The shorter plant had a sparser leaf canopy so that the flowering plants could assimilate more light and thus proliferate more abundantly. It combined the virtues of the old varieties with higher yields and responsiveness to fertilizer. It was easier to harvest and, above all, it was non-seasonal.

The maximum maturation time for IR8 is about 120 days and three crops of rice from the same field every year is now well within the capacity of the Asian farmer.

Indian farmers have complained that IR8 is easily susceptible to bacterial rice diseases. Moreover, Indian consumers do not care for its taste and texture.

Spraying Rice Fields in Siam

This looks like being a tougher variety. And since even entomologists and plant breeders are human, what pleases them most is that the new grain has the texture and taste of the royal basumati.

The social and political changes of the rice revolution could be far-reaching. Mr. Marcos believes that the political credit accruing to him in the towns now enjoying the benefits of the higher yields will enable him to become the first Philippine president to be re-elected.

Mr. Senanayake, the prime minister of Ceylon, bases his own hopes for re-election on his expectation that rural voters, who have tended to vote against his party for the past 10 years, will give him his due in 1970 when his rice and food production campaign pays dividends.

Japan is now experiencing the social results of an improved rural economy. It has become hard to hire a laborer to work in the rice fields for less than $10 a day.

This summer, 10,000 new rice planting machines, grotesque steel grasshoppers with "hands" geared to collect four shoots at a time and plant them three centimetres apart, were in use.

Many human problems have still to be solved. For the best results the newer sophisticated strains need more care than their forebears—more water control, regular application of fertilizer and protection against pests.

But managerial skill is being spread and the resistance to change on the part of the farmer is being weakened, and sometimes even turned to enthusiasm, by the persuasive methods used by a new breed of agricultural extension workers, who prefer to demonstrate rather than to preach.

A harder battle still remains to be fought. Feudal land tenure relationships, which were successfully transformed in post-war Japan and Taiwan by decree, are proving wretchedly durable in southeast and south Asia.

Unless legislation keeps pace with economic changes, the agricultural revolution will roll by leaving the rural population dispossessed.

'Salvage Operation' Studied After Recreation Vote Fails

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Duncan and North Cowichan may try to salvage the $850,000 recreation bylaw defeated here Saturday.

Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan said today his council may look at the possibility of trying to go ahead without the unorganized areas.

He said examination will be made of the possibility of having the successful city vote stand and the bylaw resubmitted to the voters in the south end of North Cowichan in conjunction with the December municipal elections.

The bylaw passed by the narrowest of margins in the city but was substantially defeated in North Cowichan and in three unorganized areas to the south.

Saturday's voting figures were: Duncan, 60.46 per cent in favor; North Cowichan, 51 per cent; Cowichan Station-Eagle Heights-Glenora, 46 per cent; Cowichan Bay, 38 per cent, and Cobble Hill, 14 per cent.

The bylaw required a 60 per-cent vote to pass.

Slightly over 40 per cent of the 6,000 eligible voters turned out.

MEETING TONIGHT

Mayor Quaife said another possible alternative was to submit a revised bylaw to the whole area, perhaps for either a covered swimming pool or community centre building but not both.

"Something should not lose sight of is that the city voters accepted the bylaw as put to them," he said.

"The question is do we take the initiative and ask North Cowichan to reconsider and put it to their electors again to raise the necessary 4.32 mills?"

Mayor Quaife said that other than the district is faced with coming up with a counter proposal such as a reduced bylaw to build the basic structure for a pool and community centre but leaving interior finishing and equipment installation to be financed by public subscription.

"City council will meet in committee tonight and consider where it goes from here.

"It's quite possible that if North Cowichan could get a larger turnout to the polls the bylaw would go through.

"There's not much expense involved in presenting a bylaw and there will likely be elections in December anyway.

"We're not letting this recreation issue die as there is a strong movement in the Chemainus area for a pool at Fullers Lake (site of a new municipal arena).

"PAY DEARLY"

"If we drop this project now and allow them to get a swimming pool in the lesser populated area we leave ourselves open to future development of the district being centred on Chemainus.

"We could pay very dearly for the defeat of this bylaw as new people coming to the district would choose to locate where there are facilities.

"We're going to have to push this recreation project and it is up to the residents and businessmen to support council and get one or both of these facilities in this area."

PIONEER PARK

If the bylaw was successful the pool and community centre were to be built at Pioneer Park, Duncan.

Mayor Donald Morton of North Cowichan said he was "very disappointed."

"The natural increase in costs which will take place and the rather alarming federal budget just brought down will make it difficulty to put the bylaw again.

"I think we will have to take another look at the situation and see what we can do."

DUNCAN — Weldon Jubenville will be opposed as president of Duncan Local 1-80 of the IWA in upcoming elections.

At the annual membership meeting Saturday, Humphrey Butler intimated he will seek the top job in the 4,000-member local.

There will be contests right down the line.

First vice-president Fernie Viala will be opposed by Lorne Hult; second vice-president Bill Hanna will face competition from Vic Weid, and longtime financial secretary Ed Linder is to be opposed by George Jenkins.

The bylaws of the local state that elections must be completed in November.

Mr. Jubenville's reaction to the opposition slate as : "I firmly believe in the IWA constitution and it provides that every two years anyone can seek office. I welcome opposition."

House Burns While Family Visiting

COBBLE HILL — Ian Hamilton and his wife and baby were burned out of their new home on Hutchison Road here Saturday evening.

The house burned down while the young family was visiting Mr. Hamilton's mother at Maple Bay.

Mill Bay volunteer fire department answered a neighbor's alarm.

But because of a shortage of water and the fact the house was built mainly of cedar shakes there was little could be done to save it.

Mr. Hamilton, a carpenter, had built the house himself earlier this year.

New Canadians Sworn In

DUNCAN — Ten new Canadians were sworn in at a citizenship court here conducted by acting citizen Judge Richard Clark.

The new citizens were welcomed by Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan and Mayor Donald Morton of North Cowichan.

They are: Anke de Graaf, Mrs. Minke de Graaf, Per Heidelback, Mrs. Gum Oy Jung, Mrs. Ching Yee Lowe, Kwok Len Mew, Attilio Mario Manzini, Pawlo Zabara, Mrs. Were Zabara, and Mrs. Elisabeth Gilchrist.

$35,000 Home Destroyed By Fire

GANGES — Mr. and Mrs. Ib Knoblauch and their three children were left homeless Sunday when a fire of undetermined origin destroyed their $35,000 Douglas Road home.

No one was injured.

Salt Spring Island volunteer fire department fought the blaze for four hours but the large, 50-year-old structure, which was undergoing renovation, burned to the ground.

Pioneer Separatist Party Joins Levesque's Fold

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's pioneer separatist party dissolved during the weekend and Rene Levesque, leader of the new Parti Quebecois, immediately welcomed the members into his fold.

Mr. Levesque said Sunday the projected addition of former members of the Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale to his party will build a "strong and efficient" separatist party.

The RIN, which claims about 13,000 members, voted to dissolve Saturday at its annual conference, for the purpose of uniting with le Parti Quebecois, now two weeks old.

"If regroupment takes place as delegates at the weekend RIN conference wished it to . . . I believe we are moving quickly towards a strong and efficient party, a party that will be made more dynamic by the combination of our impatiences," Mr. Levesque said.

Le Parti Quebecois already is the result of one fusion—the former Ralliement Nationale, led by Gilles Gregoire, and the Mouvement Souverainete-association, led by Mr. Levesque, a former provincial Liberal welfare minister.

BACK HIS PROPOSAL.

The new separatist party advocates a sovereign Quebec within a Canadian economic union. It claims about 20,000 members.

RIN leader Pierre Bourgault, backed by his executive council, proposed dissolution to members gathered for the weekend convention, and it was approved by a vote of 227-50.

LIKE A LINE of drunken sailors old power poles stagger down the middle of Hillside to Shelbourne. The poles once marked the curb and gutter. But a road-widening project to tie-in with increased traffic flows soon to be generated by the Simpsons-Sears shopping centre has left them stranded in mid-stream. In the daytime the poles present little problem to the motorist. After dark its another story, although to date direct collision has been avoided. The poles will shortly be removed from their dangerous position.

THEY WANT RESPECT FOR LIFE ... BEFORE AND AFTER BIRTH

OTTAWA (CP) — A new organization "to promote respect for life—before and after birth" was formed here during the weekend.

Called Alliance for Life, the organization was declared as a national federation of groups and individuals who believe all human life is entitled to care and protection.

Joan Lasignan of Hull, Que., elected first president, said one of the first tasks will be to point out "inherent dangers" of the government's planned liberalization of abortion law.

Mrs. Lasignan said 22 delegates from six cities attended the founding meeting. Telegrams of support were received from other cities.

Other executive officers elected were Marie-Paule Doyl of Lucerne, Que., vice-president; Mary Cooper, Ottawa, secretary and Marjorie Ruwalk, Ottawa, treasurer.

Elected councillors were Rev. David Burns of Zion United Church, Kitchener; Sally-Ann Kerman of Downsview, Ont.; Ursala Lafontaine of Montreal; Roland Gosselin of Quebec City and Mildred Moir, Halifax.

"With a wife and three kids to spend my money, who needs Canada Trust?"

The answer is obvious

If you spend your entire income without a thought beyond today, then you definitely need Canada Trust. And fast. Because some part of that income must be invested for the future. It can mean the difference between financial worry and happiness.

There are ways of investing and realizing solid growth today without laying out large sums. One of these is our Canada Trust Investment Fund.

19% increase sound like a lot?

Each equity unit of the Canada Trust Investment Fund actually increased in value 19% last year. And that's just one year. People who invested in the fund when it started nine years ago, and reinvested their dividends, have more than doubled their money today.

The fund is designed to provide you with a diversified portfolio of Canadian and American stocks, and long term protection from the deteriorating purchasing power of the dollar.

It's like having your money professionally managed for you by your own personal investment counsellor.

You pay no salesman's commission. Except for a small administration fee, every dollar you invest goes directly to work for you.

College coming up

A sound investment for the man with children is our Trust Certificates. You buy them in amounts from $100, hold them until they mature, and use the money for something important like school tuition. Earning high interest all the time of course.

"Fringe Benefits" too

Something great happens the moment you begin your financial association with Canada Trust. As a Canada Trust customer, you qualify for some of the nicest fringe benefits in town.

Like a chequing account that makes no service charge for a reasonable number of cheques, and pays interest on your balance besides. And looking after your estate, making sure your wife and children receive the best possible protection. And a Safe Deposit Box for your valuables.

Save tax money now

Another good investment is a Canada Trust Retirement Savings Plan. The money you invest is tax deductible now, and will give you a higher retirement income later on when you are enjoying your grandchildren.

Do it now!

Our service is almost unlimited, and you could be taking advantage of it right now. Drop in and meet the manager of your nearest Canada Trust office during our convenient longer business hours. That visit can get the ball rolling towards your financial security.

Or write to the address below. We'll see that you get the information you need by return mail, along with a little something for each of your children.

CPA Announces Testing Station

VANCOUVER (CP) Canadian Pacific Airlines has announced plans to build a $4 million overhaul and testing station here by late 1969 to service jet aircraft.

An airline spokesman said during the weekend the facility will be an integral part of a $24 million CPA operations centre under construction at Vancouver International Airport and due for completion next spring.

Growth of the airline's jet fleet to 11 planes, with more on order, made it economical for the company to do its own fleet maintenance, currently under contract by Air Canada and United Aircraft Ltd. at Montreal, the company said.

U.K. Gives Rush Aid For Appeal

LONDON (CP) — Baron Parker of Waddington, lord chief justice of England, today granted legal aid to Myer Rush on his appeal against extradition to Canada to face a $100 million stock fraud conspiracy charge.

That means a government-appointed lawyer, probably Sir Peter Rawlinson, Rush's former lawyer, will fight the Toronto stock promoter's case in the appeal court with the public treasury picking up the tab.

Lord Parker, sitting with justices Sir John Ashworth and Sir John Willis, decided on legal aid after Rush said he had no funds to pay solicitors.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade and export interest was light today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with prices moving narrowly.

Rye drew a small amount of export interest at levels below the Winnipeg market in an otherwise inter-month spreading operation.

Confirmation was received during the weekend of a sale of 1 million bushels of No. 2 northern wheat to Japan. Reports also listed Japan as a buyer of 1.2 million bushels of wheat from the United States and 1.4 million from Australia.

No information was available on export loadings of Canadian wheat.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans futures declined along with wheat prices on the Board of Trade Monday, but most other grain contracts maintained some firmness.

Trade had opened on a good pace but later appeared to slow.

An improvement in the movement of soybeans from farms to marketplaces in recent days was a factor in active selling on the opening, from which soybeans prices failed to generate an advance.

Abitibi Paper

Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. Friday reported net earnings from operation of $7.15 million or 38 cents a share for the first nine months of 1968, down from $9.94 million or 57 cents a share for the similar period in 1967.

Net sales for the nine-month period were $188 million, compared with $155 million in 1967.

The company attributed increased sales to subsidiaries acquired during the past year, and labor problems for the decline in earnings.

Vancouver Sales Soar

VANCOUVER. — Sales on the Vancouver Stock Exchange soared to 3 million in heavy pre-noon trading today. First-hour trading accounted for more than a million shares.

Meanwhile, in late trading in Toronto and Montreal, prices moved narrowly downward. In New York early losses widened in late moderate trading.

AT VANCOUVER, volume leaders in the mines were Galaxy, Adera, Copper Ridge and Silver Arrow. Galaxy traded 375,000 shares and gained .26 at $1.23. Silver Arrow gained .09 to .50 on trades of 356,700.

Adera turned over 324,300 shares and lost .01 at $1.10 while Copper Ridge traded 278,800 and gained .31 at $1.48.

Sparton Explorations, a new listing, came on the board at $1.75. Magnum lost 40 at $3.60 and Lornex was off .25 at $9.50.

In the oils, Bata put on .80 at $3.50 on trades of 166,300. Stampede added $1.20 at $6.40 and Allied Roxana gained .06 at $1.45.

The big oil play reportedly involves reports of a gas well in the Strachan area of Alberta where Bata and Stampede have property and the proposed merger of Stampede and Bata.

Captain International lost .25 at $12; Capital Estate was off .50 at $3.50 and E. D. P. gained .25 at $23.50 in the industrials.

AT TORONTO, on index, industrials dropped .80 to 178.73, golds rose .68 to 206.40, base metals slid 39 to 113.76 and western oils advanced .90 to 231.24.

Final volume was 4,114,000 shares compared with 4,204,000 Friday.

In industrials, Great West Life fell 2⅜ to 68, Imperial Oil 2 to 76⅝, Ocean Cement 1⅝ to 24½ and Sayvette ⅝ to 7. Seaway Hotels gained 7⅝ to 33⅝, Dylex Diversified 5½ to 54 and Oshawa A 1⅜ to 41⅝.

Dome Pete rose 2⅝ to 82⅝, Asamera 85 cents to $8.50 and Canadian Export Gas 60 cents to $9.50.

Pine Point dropped 1¼ to 45¼, Patino 1½ to 37¼ and Preston ⅜ to 22⅜. Bethlehem Copper was up ⅜ to 14½ and Sullivan 60 cents to $5.25.

AT NEW YORK, Eastern Airlines, edging higher, paced the list on activity. It was boosted by a block of 57,200 shares.

Also active IBM dropped 5, and Texas Gulf Sulphur rose about 2.

In Canadians, Dome was up ⅝, Granby ⅞, Canadian Pacific ⅛ and Alcan ⅛. Massey lost ⅛ and Hudson Bay and Inco ⅛.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Among Canadians, Jupiter was up ⅛ and Canadian Marconi ⅛. Preston lost ⅛ and Scurry Rainbow ⅜.

AT MONTREAL Credit Foncier plunged 9 to 57 on only 34 shares.

Canadian Breweries fell ⅜ to 9 on 13,654 shares. Rothmans of Pall Mall, which holds an 11 per cent interest in Canadian Breweries, said it has cancelled plans to make an offer for additional shares of the brewing firm.

In senior oils, Imperial lost 1⅝ to 77. In senior mines, Noranda added ⅜ to 57½ and Falconbridge ½ to 96½. Hudson Bay Mining fell ½ to 71 and Inco ¼ to 40⅜.

North American Rare Metals added 2 cents to 98 cents on 159,700 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Caadian Stock Exchange.

AT LONDON the stock market opened on a firm note today with leading industrials higher. The tightening of sterling finance affected sentiment in gilts and prices were off.

Among Canadians, Dome rose three points to 214. Others to advance were Canadian Husky, Power Corp and Syracuse. Noranda and Imperial Oil both shed $2. Canadian Imperial dropped 6 shillings to 191 and Toronto Dominion lost nearly 3 shillings. Bank of Montreal picked up ninepence.

Mr. Fitt, who will make his headquarters in Calgary, will have major responsibility for development projects in hotel, motel and related fields in the western provinces. CP Hotels has facilities in 12 city and resort centres across Canada, including interests in the restaurant field. It is an operating subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd.

Churchill Falls Tops In Battle of Dams

VANCOUVER (CP) — There's a battle of statistics being waged between directors of the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority and backers of the Churchill Falls power project in Labrador over who's got the biggest and best dams being built.

And it looks as if, for the first time in a generation, B.C. will come out at the short end of the statistical stick.

B.C. Hydro now proudly claims the largest underground powerhouse in the world at its Peace River project. But the honor will be short-lived.

The Churchill Falls (Labrador) Corp. Ltd.'s project in the wilds of Labrador involves an underground setup that will leave B.C. second-best.

The first generators of the Peace River project started officially this fall. B.C. Hydro, a Crown-owned corporation, is spending about $465,000,000 to create the W. A. C. Bennett Dam and, eventually, the largest lake in the province, covering about 680 square miles.

BATTLE OF FIGURES

The Peace River underground powerhouse is 890 feet long, 67 feet wide and 153 feet high, and sits at its deepest about 650 feet below the surface.

Three 227,000-kilowatt generators were tested during the summer and total capacity if 10 generators are installed will be 2,300,000 kilowatts.

Water from the Peace River reservoir will drop through 10 penstocks.

The Churchill Falls Corp. expects to start delivering power in 1972 with installation of 11 generators to turn out 5,200,000 kilowatts by 1976. The project has a $900,000,000 price tag.

The Churchill Falls powerhouse will be 972 feet long, 81 feet wide and 164 feet high. At its deepest, the powerhouse will be 984 feet below the surface. It will create a reservoir 2,400 square miles in size.

The Churchill Falls Corp. will use 475,000-kilowatt generators —twice the size of those at the Peace River project.

All of which has B.C. power experts looking seriously at the Liard River in the northern part of the province as the next major Canadian project.

PM Indicates Tax Cuts For Rich

HALIFAX (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has indicated that tax reductions for the rich may be included in the government's planned tax reform law to be presented early next year.

But he emphasized that "we are not saying yet" whether the reduction will be made.

He said the Carter royal commission on taxation reported that the wealthy in Canada pay higher taxes than those in any other country in the Western world.

By levying high taxes on the rich "you soak a very small number" the prime minister said, and the revenue to the government is small.

Mr. Trudeau said the government decided to impose a $120 ceiling on the two-per-cent "social development" tax on incomes proposed in last week's budget so the reduction will not be too sharp if a decision is made to reduce taxes to the wealthy.

Airport Expanded

KELOWNA (CP) — New terminal and maintenance facilities at Kelowna airport costing $475,000 were officially opened Saturday by Transport Minister Hellyer.

The new terminal provides 8,000 square feet of space, compared with only 400 in the former wooden frame building, and is a mile closer to the city.

Japan Loosens Equities

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada-Japan Trade Council here has issued a new pamphlet on the gradual easing of restrictions against the investment of foreign capital in Japanese equities.

Sweeping changes, probably amounting to complete liberalization, are expected before the end of 1971. An important start has already been made.

There has been some resentment among Canadians that while Japan has become a big investor in Canada — particularly in Western Canada's mineral and other natural resources — Japan has seemed to prevent Canadian investment in Nipponese business.

CHANGE ATTITUDE

The change of attitude now beginning to show in Tokyo probably stems from two factors:

Japan has become a member and subscribed to the principles of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, and Japan now has emerged as one of the great, strong industrial trading nations of the world, well able to hold its own against economic invasion.

She joined the OECD in 1964 and began working towards meeting the requirements of the OECD code of liberalization of capital movements.

Hitherto, Japan has severely restricted foreign capital to investment in loans, debentures, or stock that did not bestow managerial privileges.

The Japanese government wanted foreign corporations to join Japanese firms in technical assistance contracts, but not have a share in the ownership and running of the Japanese firms.

STEPS TAKEN

Some steps were taken last year to open a number of Nipponese industries to direct investment from aboard, and the trade council now says that controls governing technical assistance contracts are being eased.

"Before the end of 1969," the pamphlet says, "it is highly likely that further liberalization of the terms pertaining to foreign direct investment will occur.

"There can be little doubt that the present Japanese government would like to complete liberalization by the end date of the current five-year plan for social and economic development."

OECD statistics show that starting in 1965, Japan has become a net exporter of long-term capital, after being an importer of $750 million (U.S.) in the previous three years.

OUTFLOW RISES

In 1965 the net outflow of long-term Japanese capital was $414 million and in 1966 it rose to $809 million. Figures for 1967 were running well ahead of this and it is assumed, although official figures are not yet available that the trend is continuing.

A ministerial meeting is expected to take place early next spring in Japan when the question of long-term investment is likely to be discussed in detail.

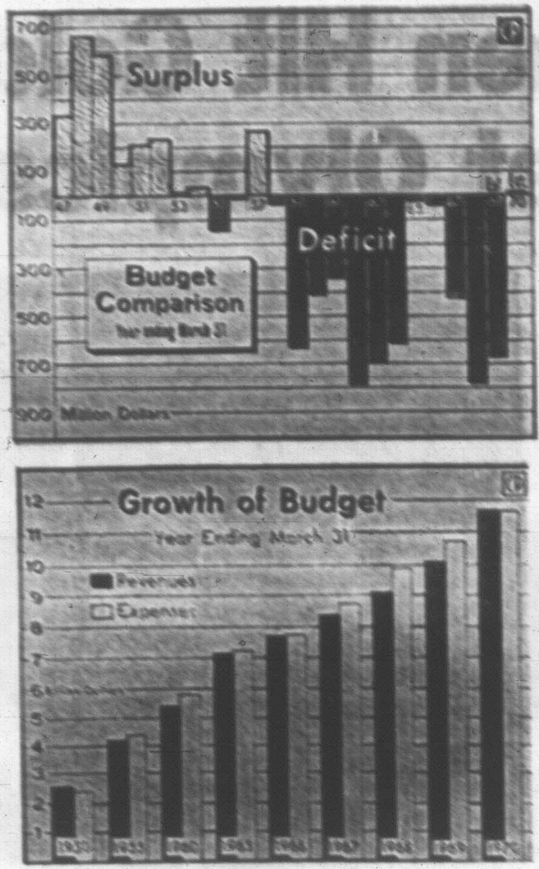
U.S. Firm Acquires Furniture Companies

NEW YORK (AP) — American Seating Co. says it has agreed to acquire four Canadian makers of institutional furniture.

American Seating said the transaction would take place through the exchange of an undisclosed amount of stock. The four companies have annual sales of $7,000,000 a year.

The companies to be acquired are Art Laboratory Furniture Ltd., Ebena LaSalle Inc., Multiform Laminates Ltd. and Barnell Kitchens Ltd.



BUDGET FEATURES depicted in graph form show how $10.78 billion in expenditures looks against revenue of only $10.1 billion. But modest $5 million surplus should appear in 1969-70 when revenues of $11.675 billion are shown against spending of $11.67 billion. In lower graph the weight of deficits in recent budgets is clearly demonstrated. (CP Newsmap.)

Capital Gains Tax Timely With Trudeau: Accountant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lyle E. Beard, president of the Certified General Accountants' Association of British Columbia, says a federal capital gains tax is inevitable.

He made the statement at the opening of the association's two-day annual convention here.

Mr. Beard, assistant comptroller of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, said some form of capital gains tax would have been introduced before now had there been a stable government in Ottawa.

A tax on capital gains was inevitable because all other tax sources were saturated. The Liberal administration of Prime Minister Trudeau was the first in Ottawa with enough stability to initiate the tax.

"There will be opposition (to the capital gains tax) based on the premise it will stifle investment in Canadian enterprise," he said. "However, I do not believe such argument is well-founded because probably the hardest hit would be speculators and this type of investor, in my opinion, does not contribute to the stable growth of the economy."

Cowichan Operating In Red

Cowichan Copper Company Ltd. now is operating at a deficit of about $35,000 a month, E. C. Dobell, president, told stockholders at the company's annual meeting Friday in Vancouver.

He said the deficit is being met by directors.

A draft balance sheet to Sept. 30 showed the company has current assets of $142,393 and liabilities of $324,134. Long-term debt stands at $2.7 million.

Mr. Dobell took over the presidency last month after a proxy fight with O. G. MacDonald.

He told shareholders that in order for the company to arrange new finances it will be necessary to assure potential investors that fresh funds will not be used to retire old debts.

"Whether or not we can do this remains to be seen," he said.

The meeting was told it had been decided it was unsafe to continue to mine the previous ore source at the company's Sunro mine at Jordan River.

CONTRACT OUT

Other small ore sources were now being mined and the company hoped to contract out the mining part of the operation.

Shareholders approved a number of special resolutions. They agreed that the company should be changed from a specially limited to a limited company and to change the company's name to Cerna Copper Mines Ltd.

They approved a resolution to "rollback" the present share capital on a five-for-one basis, leaving 1 million new shares outstanding.

They also agreed to increase the authorized capital to 5 million shares from 1 million.

Deficit Eased

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government had a budgetary deficit of $32 million for the first six months of the current fiscal year, Finance Minister Benson reported in his monthly treasury statement.

In the previous fiscal year ended March 31, the government had a deficit of $47.6 million at the half-way mark.

For 1967-68, the government had peacetime-record deficit of $792 million. For the current year, the deficit is estimated at $675 million and in the 1969-70 year starting next April 1 the minister has budgeted for a modest surplus of $5 million.

For the sixth month of the current year, September, the government had budgetary expenditures of $871.1 million and revenues of $821.8 million for a deficit of $49.3 million.

Endako Mines Ltd.

Net profit of strike-bound Endako Mines Ltd. plunged to $597,000 in the three-month period ended Sept. 30 from $3 million in the corresponding quarter of 1967, the company reports.

Share earnings in the big central B.C. molybdenum mine, fell to seven cents from 40 cents.

In the nine-month period ended Sept. 30 net profit fell to $6.6 million representing 86 cents a share, from $8.9 million or $1.15 a share for the corresponding period of 1967.

Revenue from sales amounted to $17.7 million compared with $19 million in the corresponding period of 1967.

During the quarter the company paid off the remaining balance of bank loans, amounting to $2.5 million.

Seaway Hotels

Seaway Hotels Ltd. of Toronto said Sunday it has agreed to acquire 600,000 common shares of Levy Industries Ltd. for $29.37 million in cash and debentures.

In a joint announcement, Norman Cooper, president of Seaway, and Ben Levy, president of Toronto-based Levy Industries, said the agreement will give effective control of the company to Seaway. The Levy brothers will continue to provide management direction to the Levy group of companies.

Under the agreement, Seaway will pay $21.87 million in cash by Jan. 31, 1969, and $7.5 million in unsecured, non-interest bearing, convertible debentures of Seaway.

Consul.-Bathurst

Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd. Friday reported net earnings of $8.45 million or $1.04 a share for the nine months ended Sept. 30, down from $1.50 a share in the corresponding 1967 period.

Net sales were $212.8 million against $178.48 million.

The company said third-quarter earnings were adversely affected by several factors including higher interest and depreciation charges and operating costs.

Chemcell Ltd.

Chemcell Ltd. had third quarter income of $1.65 million or 11 cents a share compared with $1.07 million or 6.5 cents a share for the same quarter in 1967.

For the first nine months, income was reported as $6.38 million or 43 cents a share compared with $5.41 million or 36.5 cents for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1967.

Sales for the first nine months of the year were $98.93 million compared with $92 million in 1967.

No other Canadian Whisky has become a best-seller as quickly as Seagram's 5 Star.

And it's easy to taste why.

Easy taste and Seagram quality. That's what made 5 Star the fastest rising new star among Canadian whiskies. In fact, the story of 5 Star's sudden popularity is quite fantastic. But you'll find it easy to believe once you've tasted the whisky.

Canadian Horsemen Hit Gold In Final Contest at Olympics

Win Before 80,000 Fans; Canuck Relay Team Third

JIM ELDER
. . . top rider

By STERLING TAYLOR

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Canada's equestrian jumping team scored a surprise gold medal victory in the Prix des Nations Sunday, the last event of the Olympic Games.

The first and only Canadian gold medal of the 1968 Olympics came before a crowd of 80,000 in Olympic Stadium. The onlookers included Prince Philip, president of the International Equestrian Federation, and President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico.

It was Canada's first gold medal ever in Olympic equestrian competition.

France, the leader going into the last of six rides over the tough course, took the silver medal.

West Germany, winner of this event in the last three Olympics, ended up with the bronze by a narrow margin over the United States.

Members of the Canadian team were Tom Gayford, 39, of Gormley, Ont., on Big Dee; Jim Elder, 34, of Aurora, Ont., on The Immigrant; and Jim Day 22, of King City, Ont., on Canadian Club.

The only other Canadian medals at these Olympics were three silvers and one bronze earned by the swimmers. They completed their haul, the best in half a century, when the women's 400-metre freestyle relay team won the bronze in its event Saturday night.

The over-all performance was the best since 1956, when Canada won six medals: two golds, one silver and three bronzes.

In the unofficial team standings here, the United States won 107 medals, including 45 golds, while the Russians took 91, of which 29 were gold.

After Canada's three horsemen received their medals from President Diaz Ordaz and congratulations from Prince Philip, the Games were brought to an end with fireworks and the traditional farewell parade of athletes from the participating countries.

The parade was smaller than in the past. Olympic officials ruled that only a flag-bearer and six other athletes would represent each country. Canada's flag-bearer was swimmer Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., winner of a silver medal in the 400-metre freestyle.

Elder Clinched Win on Sixth Ride

Canada accumulated 102¾ penalty points, for a clear margin over France with 110½. West Germany had 117¼.

Elder clinched the victory for Canada with a low 18 penalty points on the sixth ride.

West Germany's Alwin Schockemoehle, riding Donald Rex, had the best individual ride, 3¾ penalty points on his second round, and the best two-ride total of only 18¾ penalty points.

Elder was Canada's top rider with 27¾ penalty points, including only 9¾ on his first ride. Day had 36, Gayford 39½.

In the eight-team final of the women's 400-metre freestyle relay Saturday night, Canada yielded only to the United States and East Germany.

The team consisted of Angela Coughlan, 16, of Burlington, Ont., Marilyn Corson, 18, of Parry Sound, Ont., Elaine Tanner 17, of Vancouver; and Marion Lay, 19, of Vancouver.

U.S. SET RECORD

The Canadians were clocked in four minutes 7.2 seconds, while the U.S. did 4:02.5, an Olympic record, and the East Germans 4:05.7.

Canada's other swimming medals were silvers won by Miss Tanner in the 100-metre and 200-metre backstroke races.

The bulk of the two-week Olympic program wound up Saturday night with all 11 boxing finals contested and 26 other sport finals as well. When they were over, the Russians won eight gold medals but that still wasn't enough to equal their 1964 performance at Tokyo.

Four years ago, Russia won 96 medals including 30 gold. The Russians were five shy of that total here.

The U.S. made its killings in track and field and swimming, which together accounted for 38 of its golds. The Russians got only three in track and field and none in swimming.

Of the 14 titles decided in gymnastics, the Russians took only five, and two of them were shared with the Czechoslovaks and Japanese as a result of ties.

TOP WINNER MARRIES

Vera Caslavska, Czechoslovak gymnastics queen, married miler Josef Odlozil in Mexico City's Roman Catholic cathedral. She won four gold medals here, including the women's individual all-around title. This made her the top medal-winner of the Games.

Akinori Nakayama of Japan was the top male gymnast with three titles, including one he shared with Russia's Mikhail Voronin in the horizontal bar.

The individual all-around prize was taken by another Japanese, Sawao Kato, who also led Japan to victory in the team competition.

Klaus Dibiasi of Italy won the men's high-diving gold.

In two swimming finals that completed the program, Mike Burton won the 1,500 metres and the U.S. team of Charles Hickcox, Don McKenzie, Doug Russell and Ken Walsh set a world record of 3:54.9 in the men's 400-metre medley relay.

In team sports, Hungary took the soccer gold with an easy 4-1 win over Bulgaria; Russia captured the gold in both men's and women's volleyball, and Pakistan became the field hockey champion with a 2-1 victory over Australia in the final.

Bulgaria, Hungary and East Germany each won two Greco-Roman wrestling golds and the Russians one.

Russia emerged with three boxing gold medals but lost the big one in the heavyweight class when hard-hitting American George Foreman stopped Ionas Chepulis in the second round.

PILOTS BUY RAUDMAN

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Pilots, expansion team in the American League, have purchased the contract of outfielder Bob Raudman from Cincinnati Reds.

High Jumpers Lacking Marathoners' Stamina

MEXICO CITY (CP)—"The high jumpers are too exhausted to meet you gentlemen of the press, but the marathon runners will be down in a minute."

That was the response from an Olympic press interpreter to an interview request should have rated a mention—if not a medal.

There were other light moments in the 1968 Games:

A Bulgarian bantamweight wrestler, Hristo Traikov, was thrown out of the Greco-Roman competition after doctors at ringside found out he was holding on to his towel, not for security reasons, but because he was sniffing smelling salts.

A bit of the hair of the dog may be good for a hangover, but it is frowned upon in Olympic competitions. Sweden lost its team bronze medal in the modern pentathlon and Hans-Gunnar Liljenvall, one of the team members, was sent home after judges found the athlete had exceeded the allowable shot of whisky or couple of beers before the shooting event in the pentathlon.

The sex tests probably caused the most comment.

Olga Connolly, a former Czechoslovakian gold medallist in the discus and wife of U.S. hammer thrower Harold Connolly, summed them up this way:

"I told the doctors that if I passed, I would become a sex bomb. If I failed, then Harold could have the fifth baby."

* * *

Mrs. Janice Romary, the first woman ever to carry the U.S. flag in the opening-day parade, said this when asked why she had not become an international fencing champion:

"I concentrated on being a housewife. A foil can be an awfully cold bed-mate."

Avery Brundage, 81-year-old president of the International Olympic Committee, says professionals will never be allowed to compete in the Olympic Games.

Brundage, Chicago millionaire re-elected last week to another four-year term as president, also denied reports he had given few medals at track and field ceremonies because black American athletes had threatened not to accept them from him.

The behavior of some of America's black athletes, Brundage said at a news conference, "offended just about everybody."

Brundage conceded that some sports have become big business, but he said "No, never" when asked if the Olympics should end its prohibitions against professional athletes, as suggested by some athletes who charged that hypocrisy now exists because some amateurs are paid.

"I don't think there is any hypocrisy in the Olympics," he said. "But certain sports have become big business and the whole matter is under consideration. Certain sports are more business than sports."

Brundage said a special committee is studying the problem of trade names on athletic equipment worn by athletes. During both the 1968 winter and summer Games there have been widespread reports of pay-offs to amateurs for using certain brands of equipment.

Olympic fans saw few boxers with black eyes. The cause may be an electric machine widely used in Mexico and under study by the American Medical Association.

Jess Ross, who heads a corporation in New York that manufactures the machine, says it not only helps heal a black eye but also any ailment that the body could fight off eventually.

"We don't claim any miracle cures, but it can accelerate recovery up to 50 per cent," Ross said. "A black eye can be stopped in 20 to 30 minutes."

Sanctioned by the Mexican Olympic organizing committee the machine emits short bursts of high-frequency, high-energy electromagnetic waves. It is painless and leaves no after effects, Ross says.

Delighted Rookie Pockets $22,000

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Bob Dickson was delighted today that he elected to turn professional less than a year ago.

The 24-year-old from Tulsa, Okla., won the $100,000 Haig national open tournament Sunday with a final round two-under-par 69 for a 13-under-par total of 271.

He took home $22,000, bringing his earnings in 15 tournaments to more than $40,000.

Chi Chi Rodriguez and Dickson started the final round at the Mesa Verde Country Club even at 202 strokes for 54 holes.

Dickson birdied the first hole for a four. Rodriguez had a par. Chi Chi had to settle for par 71 and 273—good for second money of $13,200.

George Knudson of Toronto, three strokes off the pace going into the final 18 holes—he had rounds of 70, 66 and 69—ballooned to a 73 for a total of 278.

That put him in a five-way tie for 13th place and earned him $1,760.

Baltimore Halts Rams' Charge

By The Associated Press

The struggling Green Bay Packers, bidding for a fourth-straight National Football League title, meet the Cowboys in a key game at Dallas tonight.

A victory would move the Packers (2-3-1) into a first-place tie with Detroit Lions in the Central Division. A loss would drop them into last place.

In NFL action Sunday, Baltimore Colts (6-1), defeated Los Angeles Rams (6-1) 27-10, San Francisco '49ers (4-3) upset Detroit Lions (3-3-1) 14-7; Chicago Bears (3-4) surprised Minnesota Vikings (3-4) 26-25; St. Louis Cardinals (4-3) beat New Orleans Saints (3-4) 31-17; Cleveland Browns (4-3) trounced Atlanta Falcons (1-6) 30-7; New York Giants (5-2) edged Washington Redskins (3-4) 13-10, and Pittsburgh Steelers (1-6) topped Philadelphia Eagles (0-7) 3-0.

Baltimore and Los Angeles are tied for first in the Coastal Division.

PROVIDES EARLY LEAD

Earl Morrall passed for two touchdowns and ran for another as the Colts built up a 20-3 half-time lead. Roman Gabriel passed for the Rams' score.

End Dick Witcher picked up a fumble by team-mate Gary Lewis and ran 12 yards for the fourth-period touchdown that got San Francisco over Detroit, which is alone in first place in the Central Division pending the outcome of the Green Bay game.

Chicago moved into a second-place deadlock with Minnesota in the Central when Mac Percival kicked his fourth field goal of the game, a 47-yard boot, with three seconds left.

St. Louis exploded for 21 points in the last quarter to remain in a first-place tie with Cleveland in the Century Division and drop New Orleans into third. Jim Hart's 53-yard touchdown pass to Dave Williams broke a 17-17 tie for St. Louis.

Leroy Kelly ran for two touchdowns and Bill Nelsen passed for another in Cleveland's romp over Atlanta.

The Giants, second to Dallas in the Capitol Division, launched an 80-yard touchdown drive in the fourth quarter to beat Washington.

Pittsburgh gained its first victory and kept Philadelphia winless with Booth Lusteg's 15-yard field goal in the last seconds.

Kansas City Attack Overpowering Rivals

By The Associated Press

In the air or on the ground, either way suits Kansas City Chiefs to a T, and that is spelling nothing but trouble for chief rivals San Diego and Oakland in the American Football League.

A week ago Sunday the Chiefs reverted to the old tight T formation. They did not throw a pass, grinding out yardage on the ground and strengthened their first place hold in the Western Division.

Last Sunday, the Chiefs returned to a balanced attack against San Diego. Len Dawson threw for one touchdown and Bob Holmes and Mike Garrett ran for two others en route to a 27-20 victory over the Chargers.

The Chiefs now have won seven of eight games while Oakland and San Diego are tied for second, at 5-2, 1½ games behind.

Oakland beat Cincinnati 31-10 while New York Jets joined Kansas City in a step toward a division title by clouting Boston 48-14 for a 5-2 record and a two-game lead over the Patriots in the Eastern Division.

In other games, Houston halted Buffalo 30-7 and Denver overcame Miami 21-14.

Oak Bay High, Norfolk Share Tourney Crown

Oak Bay High School and Norfolk House shared the title in the Vancouver Island high school girls' field hockey championship tournament Saturday at Lansdowne Junior High.

The co-champions battled to a scoreless overtime tie in the final game.

Ten teams competed in the one-day tournament with the first four finishers advancing to the B.C. tournament. Queen Margaret's School of Duncan and Esquimalt High filled the other berths.

A streak of six shutouts produced Oak Bay's five wins and one tie. Bays blanked Queen Margaret's 1-0, Mount View 3-0, Victoria High 1-0, Cowichan 3-0 and Esquimalt High 1-0 on the way to the final.

Norfolk House recorded four shutouts — over Esquimalt High 1-0, Courtenay 3-0, Claremont 2-0, and Queen Margaret's 1-0 — before being blanked 1-0 in turn by St. Margaret's of Victoria.

Vikings, Scottish Threaten Wests

University Vikings moved closer to the Victoria and District Soccer Association First Division lead on Sunday with a 2-1 victory over Hourigans Kickers at Heywood Avenue Park.

Canadian Scottish aided the Viking cause as well as its own by thumping Gorge Molsons 5-1 at Central Park. London Club blanked Red Lion Inn 3-0 in Sunday's other first-division scramble.

Gorge was the only team that could have moved into a first-place tie with Victoria Wests, who gained the lead Saturday by edging Tally-Ho 3-2.

In Sunday's second-division action, Watson's Hotspurs maintained a comfortable lead with a 6-1 victory over Suburban Motors.

Totems Spank Spurs Then Lose to Bucks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems split a pair of games during the weekend with high and low ranking teams in the Western Hockey League, defeating last - place Denver Spurs 8-2 Saturday in Seattle and losing 5-1 Sunday at Portland.

Second-place Portland Buckaroos opened the scoring with five successive goals and the Portland goalie staved off Seattle shots until the lone Totem goal at 14:03 of the final period by John Hanna.

FIELDER SHINES

Bill Saunders and Roger Belisle each scored pairs for Portland and Cliff Schmautz added one the the second period.

In the Saturday contest 37-year-old Guyle Fielder, the WHL all-time scoring leader added three goals and one assist to his total-points tally of more than 1,500. Bob Courcy scored twice for Seattle.

West Van Captures Thunderbird Trophy

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Over 70 frostbite dinghies turned out for the October series races at Royal Victoria and Sunday's regular RCNSA event.

Keelboat action took Victoria Thunderbird fleet No. 4 to West Vancouver Yacht Club for the fall challenge with Vancouver T-Bird Fleet No. 9. At stake was the Thunderbird Trophy, which the mainlanders won in the two-day, five-race series.

Next spring, Victoria will host a return match for the semi-annual team contest.

Cats' Failures Made It Easy For Buckaroos

By ERNIE FEDORUK

"The name of the game is 'skate'," said coach Douglas Anderson, but his Victoria Cougars didn't pay attention.

The Cougars also neglected other aspects of the game — such as shooting, teamwork and positional play — and made it obvious they wanted no part of the B.C. Junior Hockey League lead.

Kelowna's Buckaroos apparently do, and the Okanagan team's 7-5 victory over Victoria at Memorial Arena Saturday started them on the way to fulfilling a desire.

Giving the Cougars a lesson in skating and positional play, the Bucks climbed into second-place tie with Victoria, then moved ahead Sunday by playing to a tie with New Westminster.

MADE IT CLOSE

Perhaps embarrassed by a inept performance over most of the way, the Cougars made it close by scoring three straight goals withing three minutes in the final stages of the game.

On the basis of overall accomplishements, the Cougars didn't deserve to be close.

They didn't skate, as Anderson wanted.

They constantly strayed out of position, and they made it difficult for themselves by ignoring teamwork.

The last-named faults stood out like a lighthouse in a dungeon when Victoria players tried to work the puck out of their own zone. There was no semblance of a coming-out pattern.

FAILURES COSTLY

The defensive lapses, caused by straying wingers, made it easy for Kelowna opportunists such as Pat McMahon, Butch Deadmarsh, Larry Lenarduzzi and Glen Jensen. All scored goals after Cougars were within inches of clearing the puck from Victoria's zone.

The puck was never cleared because of player failures, either mechanical or mental.

Deadmarsh scored two of Kelowna's goals and set up Lenarduzzi for a third. McMahon, Ken Philip, Jensen and Gordie Osinchuk added the others.

EVANS AILING

Grant Evans, Victoria's leading scorer, managed a pair of assists but operated only at half-speed because of a knee injury. As well, Cougars missed captain Gerry Bond and winger Len Barrie. Both are nursing shoulder injuries.

Barrie is expected to return next Saturday when Cougars play Vernon at Memorial Arena, but Bond is expected to be sidelined for two or three weeks. The big defenceman suffered his injury in practice Friday evening.

Royals Salvage 3-3 Tie

By The Canadian Press

New Westminster Royals scored two last-period goals Sunday to salvage a 3-3 tie with Kelowna Buckaroos before 300 fans in a British Columbia Junior Hockey League game at New Westminster.

Kamloops trounced second-place Vernon 7-2 to grab a share of fourth place in a second Sunday contest.

Mick Wilson was the high scorer for the Royals with a pair while Wes Prior picked up a single. Pat McMahon for Kelowna also scored two and Garry Lenarduzzi added the other.

Marv Ferg, Kamloops team captain, picked up two, as did Don Stanley. Singles went to Ed Ballentyne, Larry Stock and Bruce Johnson. Both Vernon markers came in the first 10 minutes of the game, from Wayne Dye and Gary Burlington.

BRONCOS LOSE

First-place Penticton Broncos lost 8-4 Saturday at home to Vernon before 800 spectators. It was Broncos' first loss of the season.

Bruins Find Punch To Snap Hab Climb

By The Canadian Press

Boston's revived Bruins pranced to a second-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks in National Hockey League standings Sunday night while Toronto's battering Maple Leafs ground past New York Rangers into fourth place.

The Bruins ended a scoring drought of 116 minutes, 57 seconds, to hand league-leading Montreal Canadiens their first loss in seven starts, 4-2.

Fred Stanfield counted the first of two Boston goals on a power play in the first period. His second counter, his fourth of the season, came in the second period while 14,642 Boston fans applauded.

Boston nailed down the decision with goals by Phil Esposito and Eddie Shack within 37 seconds of the second period. Montreal scorers were Jacques Lemaire and Ralph Backstrom.

COME FROM BEHIND

The Leafs, who had shut out Boston 2-0 Saturday behind goalie Johnny Bower, roared from behind at New York with five straight goals to down the Rangers 5-3.

In other Sunday games, Gordie Howe scored twice to lead Detroit Red Wings to a 4-3 edge over Chicago and Oakland Seals and Philadelphia Flyers tied 2-2.

The Rangers jumped in front of Toronto with two quick goals in the first six minutes by Rod Gilbert and Vic Hadfield, the latter a 55-foot slap shot. Then the 17,250 spectators saw five straight goals by Toronto before Jean Ratelle counted for Rangers in the third period.

The Leafs tied it up midway through the initial period on goals by Jim Dorey and Floyd Smith, and went ahead in the second when Tim Horton and Murray Oliver scored. Bob Pulford also counted for the Leafs in the last period.

Other Detroit goals were by Garry Unger and Frank Mahovlich as 12,943 fans watched. Scorers for the Hawks were Bobby and Dennis Hull and Stan Mikita.

Seals dominated the game at Oakland but were held off by Philadelphia goalie Doug Favell until Joe Szura sent a soft six-foot shot into the net for the tie.

A mere 1,892 were on hand to watch Philadelphia defenceman Ed Van Impe count in the first period. Oakland's Carol Vadnais blasted a 50-footer two minutes later and Oakland's Jim Johnson scored in the last minute of the second period.

Vikings Trail In Calgary Running Meet

CALGARY — University of Saskatchewan won the Western Canada Inter-collegiate cross-country championship on Saturday with a score of 34, beating out Alberta by 15 points.

University of Manitoba finished third with 85 points, Alberta at Calgary fourth with 95 points and University of Victoria last with 103 points.

Ray Haswell of Alberta was the individual winner, covering the rugged five-and-a-half-mile course, layed out in the foothills country, in 26:48 minutes.

Each of the five universities entered seven runners with the first five finishers to count.

Larry Corbett was the best of the UVic team, timed in 28:43 minutes, and finishing ninth. Charles Thorne at 30:02, Ed Day at 30:52, Wayne Morrison at 32:31 and Lloyd Bullivant at 32:36 finished 15th, 22nd, 27th and 30th to complete the Victoria total.

Oak Bay Defence Tames Mustangs

Victoria Chew Excavating Hornets clinched first place in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League Sunday at Duncan as they whipped Cowichan Timbermen 20-0 in a hard-hitting game.

In another league struggle, Oak Bay Farmer Construction marched to a 12-2 upset victory over second-place James Bay Mustangs at Carnarvon Park and all but wrapped up the third position.

Steve Parker rumbled for two touchdowns to provide the biggest punch for the Hornets, who also got a touchdown from Ron Bickford and a pair of conversions from Dave Granlin.

TAKE EARLY LEAD

Pat Grove lifted Farmers into a first-quarter lead as he completed a 27-yard touchdown play on a pass from Lee Dorey.

Bob Grey produced the Mustang points in the final quarter when he blocked a kick to force a safety touch. However, Rick Foster ended James Bay hopes when he grabbed a Terry Karpiuk pass for the second Oak Bay touchdown.

Mustangs were stymied all the way by a powerful Farmer defence, which was anchored by linebacker Jim Henderson and end Mike O'Connor.

Esquimalt Stays In Football Lead

Esquimalt stayed on top of the Norm Fieldgate Bantam Football League Sunday with a 13-6 win over Gordon Head.

In other league games, Knights of Columbus blanked Glen Lake 39-0 and Oak Bay bounced Victoria Boys' Club 32-7.

KCs are in second place, ahead of Oak Bay.

Cowboys and Eskimos Made Game of Passing

TED GERELA

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Eskimos feasted merrily Sunday on precisely what caused British Columbia Lions to "starve" Saturday. It was the kind of diet that helped the Eskimos and Calgary Stampeders to easy victories in Western Football Conference action at the weekend. Call it pass defence.

Quarterback Peter Liske threw four touchdown passes and scored one himself as the Stampeders defeated Lions 42-23 to move within one point of leading Saskatchewan Roughriders.

In Edmonton Sunday, the Eskimos' defence intercepted six passes and Thermus Butler scored two touchdowns in a 32-22 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers before 15,011 fans. It was the fourth successive triumph for the third-place Eskimos and Winnipeg's sixth consecutive defeat.

The Calgary victory gave them 20 points and assured them of a second-place finish.

Liske scored Calgary's first touchdown halfway through the first quarter on a one-yard plunge. He threw two touchdown passes to end Rick Shaw and one to Gerry Shaw and Herm Harrison.

Rick Shaw added his third touchdown at 14:20 of the final quarter when he recovered a fumble on the B.C. 14. Larry Robinson converted all six touchdowns.

E. A. Sims and Sonny Homer each scored a touchdown for the Lions, who led 10-7 after the first quarter but trailed 21-20 after two quarters and 28-23 at the end of the third.

Ted Gerela kicked three field goals to equal the professional record of 28 and added two converts to complete the Lions' scoring. Pete Gogolak set the record in 1965 when he was with Buffalo Bills of the American Football League and it was tied in 1966 by Bruce Gossett of Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

COMPLETES 33 PASSES

The Canadian record was 22, held jointly by Edmonton's Peter Kempf and Robinson. Kempf set the mark while playing with the Lions in 1963 and Robinson's total came in the 1964 campaign.

Calgary's total offence of 456 yards included 441 on passes as Liske completed 33 of 46 attempts. The hot-and-cold veteran, who has been successful on 271 of 438 passes for 4,325 yards in 15 games, needs another top effort against Winnipeg next Sunday to better two CFL passing records.

In Edmonton, Garry Lefebvre and Randy Kerbow added the other Edmonton touchdowns. Kempf kicked four converts a 44-yard field goal and a single.

Rookie quarterback John Schneider of Winnipeg threw three touchdown passes to Dave Raimey, Butch Pressley and Ken Nielsen. All were converted by Pierre Guindon. Ed Ulmer scored Winnipeg's first point with a 67-yard single in the second quarter.

Wednesday, the Eskimos play in Regina against the Roughriders. The game will be televised on the CTV national network.

Finale to Decide Bye-Winning Spot

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Argonauts trimmed Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes held Ottawa to a 19-19 tie in weekend action in the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football Lague, setting up the most thrilling end to regular-season play in years.

Next Saturday, Toronto and Ottawa meet and the winner gets first place and a bye into the final of the playoffs.

Toronto's 12-1 win over Hamilton in the Ticats home park gave them a share of first place with the Rough Riders, each with 18 points from 13 games.

The loss meant that Hamilton will end the season in third place. Montreal will be last.

Argos win was flattering to Hamilton who managed to get out of their own end of the field only twice.

LED AT HALF

Toronto had 24 first downs to nine for Hamilton and had total offence of 514 yards against a mere 147 for the Ticats.

League-leading ground-gainer Bill Symons paced the Argo ground attack with 151 yards on 22 carries. The display left him eight yards short of becoming the first 1,000-yard rusher in Argo history.

Toronto went ahead 1-0 in the first quarter on a single by Dave Mann—the only scoring play in the first 15 minutes.

At the half it was 11-0 for the Argos, thanks to a touchdown by Mel Profit, a convert and a field goal—both Mann efforts.

Tommy-Joe Coffey missed a field goal in the trird quarter but scored a point—the only one the Ticats managed. Mann kicked another single in the final quarter to round out the scoring before 24,206 spectators.

Saturday in Ottawa, Montreal scored nine points on three field goals in the second half and almost upset the heavily-favored Riders. A Don Sutherin single in the fourth quarter salvaged the tie for the first-place Ottawa team.

JACK JAMES ELECTED

NELSON (CP) — Jack James of Nelson has been elected president of the Western International Hockey League, succeeding Glad Peterson, who retired for business reasons.

Shawnigan Clubs Thump Visitors

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Shawnigan Lake Boys' School players were quick at running up points Saturday during two exhibition rugby matches with Vancouver's Eric Hamber High School.

Shawnigan juniors blanked Eric Hamber Juniors 36-0.

Eastern Champions

MONTREAL (CP) — Lachine Lakers humiliated Boucherville Sabres 52-12 Sunday to win the Eastern Canada juvenile football championship and advance to the Canadian juvenile final.

Rollick Scores Sweep; Daysmith Beats Champ

ALISON DAYSMITH
. . . singles victory

Bruce Rollick smashed his way to a sweep and Alison Daysmith upset Canadian champion Sharon Whittaker as Vancouver players battled Sunday in all major finals of the 13th annual invitational badminton tournament staged by Victoria Racquet Club.

Miss Daysmith, national titleholder in 1967, flashed some fine strokes as she came from behind to down Miss Whittaker 6-11, 11-8, 11-7 in the women's single final between a pair of former Victorians.

Miss Whittaker later teamed with Mimi Nilsson in the women's doubles final for a 15-10, 15-10 triumph over Barbara Nash and Jane Dubord, the current holders of the Canadian junior crown.

There was added importance in this tournament for distaff players since the Canadian Badminton Association had declared it a "must" event for all women in western Canada wishing to try for places on the national Uber Cup team.

The muscular and agile Rollick, who won his first Canadian singles crown last season, turned on too much hitting power and accuracy for Wayne MacDonnell as he defeated the five-time national champion in a blazing 15-11, 15-11 struggle.

Rollick had to work longer for victories in two doubles events to complete has sweep.

He combined with Bert Fergus for a 9-15, 15-13, 15-8 victory over Macdonnell and Abdul Shaikh in the men's doubles final and shared the mixed doubles title with his wife, Judy, by outlasting Nilsson and Shaikh in a 9-15, 17-16, 17-16 marathon.

B SECTION FINALS

Women's doubles — Gladys Mallory and Candy Kerpe defeated Joan Woolman and Helen Wooster, 15-12, 15-4.

Mixed doubles — Ellen Van Os and Bob Jones defeated Val Kent and Grant Sharwood, 15-7, 15-9.

Men's doubles — Jack Lequesne and Lloyd Pack defeated Cam Dalgleish and Don McCormick, 10-15, 15-12, 15-10.

C SECTION FINALS

Women's doubles — Mary Brown and Sally Wood defeated Ethel Sullivan and Winnie Price, 17-16, 15-7.

Mixed doubles — Ethel Sullivan and Frank Bryce defeated Joan Browne and Gordon Norvaine, 15-12, 15-7, 15-8.

Molsons Salvage Split in Openers

Vancouver Molsons defeated University of Victoria Varsity 50-35 Sunday to earn a split in a pair of weekend games that opened the new Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League season.

Launching their campaign Saturday at Oak Bay Senior High School, Molsons went down to a 42-39 defeat before Victoria Untouchables, who won the Canadian championship last season under the name of Rawlings.

Superior height and experience carried Molsons to their Sunday triumph over the youthful university club at Gordon Head. Helped by numerous interceptions, they fashioned a 21-11 lead in the opening half and easily protected their advantage in the second session.

Mary MacDonald fired 10 points, Barb Robertson added nine and Darlene Currie chipped in with eight to pace Molsons on attack while Heather Witzel of Varsity topped all scorers with a 16-point effort.

Currie was the Molson leader Saturday, dunking 13 points as Shirley Zmurchyk added nine and Robertson scored six.

Mary Coutts dropped 11 of 12 free-throw attempts and topped Victoria snipers with 13 points. Diana Bronak notched nine and Arlene Wallwin and Angie Radanovich each contributed six for Untouchables, who ran up a 20-14 half-time lead against the Molson zone defence and then were outscored 25-22 in the second half when the visitors switched to a player-to-player defence.

Diane Doyle and Nita Moody did not see action for Victoria but both are expected to be in the lineup next weekend when Untouchables play two games in Vancouver.

Oak Bay Clips Varsity Crew

Uvic Varsity women's field hockey team received word from the officials of the intercollegiate tournament held last week in Winnipeg that it was eligible for the tournament after all and would share the Donna Hunt Memorial trophy with UBC.

Both teams finished the tournament with seven wins and one tie each but Uvic was declared at that time to be ineligible for the award.

On the home front Saturday, news was not as cheery, as Oak Bay scored a 1-0 Vancouver Island League win over Varsity on a late goal gy Shirley Cox.

Driving gloves are made to last as long as all those family cars that can't take the family after two years. You know, the ones you see in every used car lot in town.

If you're looking there for a Corona, don't bother. You won't find one till 1971 maybe.

Because Corona is built to take the tough life. The 90 horsepower oversquare engine does zero to 40,000 easily. Cruises at 80 all day. And won't get you pushed into the 'Slow vehicles keep right' lane going uphill. Unlike some imports we can name.

Just because Corona is built to take the rough life doesn't mean you have to rough it. Corona is thickly carpeted. The vinyl bucket seats recline fully. Three-point seat belts, padded dash and an optional automatic are all part of the soft life inside a Corona.

There's more. Smooth syncromesh four-on-the-floor. Quad headlights. Two-speed wipers. Emergency flashers all make life a little easier. All at no extra cost.

If replacing your driving gloves is a major repair, you must be driving a Corona too.

Columbus Even With O'Keefes

VANCOUVER—Vancouver Columbus got a tough argument from winless Eintracht at Callister Park Sunday before chalking up a 1-0 triumph to climb into a tie with Victoria O'Keefes for third place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

O'Keeves had taken over the third spot Saturday when they came from behind to earn a 2-2 draw with North Shore at Kinsmen Park.

In another Saturday match, Burnaby Villa got second-half goals from Peter Arnett and Mike Phillips to defeat Croatia 2-0 at Callister Park.

AIMLESS EFFORT

Only about 60 fans, almost half of them from Victoria, turned up to watch the Shores battle O'Keefes and they saw the Islanders turn in a punchless and aimless effort during the first half.

O'Keefes managed only two direct drives on North Shore keeper Peter Ahrends in the opening 45 minutes and were somewhat fortunate that the Shores had penetrated a disorganized defence for only two goals, by Roy Nosella and Ed Collins.

With coach Bill Abbott substituting Russ Ball for Dick Joyce at centre forward, O'Keefes were a much sharper club after the intermission and they swung into high gear after Abbott made another change midway in the half.

STRATEGY WORKED

With North Shore defending stubbornly, O'Keefes worked a bit of strategy to collect the equalizer with about two minutes remaining.

Victoria was awarded a free kick when Joyce was tripped just outside the penalty area. Ike MacKay moved up as if to take a shot but leaped over the ball and Peter Brett followed up to propel the ball into the North Shore net.

There were 1,216 fans at Callister Sunday and for a while it appeared they might see a determined Eintracht side stymie the Columbus bid for a victory.

NICKLAUS NIPS PLAYER

PERTH (AP)—Big Jack Nicklaus, of Columbus, Ohio, fired a five-under-par 67 Sunday and won the Australian Open golf championship by one stroke when South Africa's Gary Player missed a seven-foot putt on the final hole.

Nicklaus birdied on the final hole of the 72-hole competition and finished with a four-round total of 270, 18 under par. Player with a two-stroke lead, had a 70 Sunday.

Billy Dunk, of Australia, was third with 271; Bobby Cole, of South Africa, was fourth, with 273, and Arnold Palmer, of the United States, was fifth with 276.

Chinooks Top Senior Teams

Victoria Chinooks, who open a new Inter-City Junior Basketball season next weekend at Vancouver, collected some valuable training and boosted their prestige by clipping two clubs from the Victoria Senior Men's League in exhibition tussles.

Chinooks tripped Red Lion Inn 67-57 Saturday at Oak Bay Senior High School and edged Farmer Construction in a 66-64 thriller Sunday at Central Junior High.

Ahead most of the way against Farmers, Chinooks twice lost the lead in the closing stages before scoring the final six points to grab the victory.

Nine-year-old David hurried off to school one morning before his mother inspected his wash job. When he sat down in the classroom, breakfast was still visible on his face.

The teacher frowned and said reprovingly: "David, you didn't wash your face. What would you say if I came to school one morning with egg and jam around my mouth?"

"Nothing," he said smugly. "I'd be too polite."

Boss: "Who told you you could neglect your office duties just because I give you a little kiss now and then?"

Secretary: "My lawyer."

"Well," said the psychiatrist, "I think we've got your kleptomania under control now."

The patient smiled gratefully and got up to leave.

"However," said the doctor, "if you should have a relapse, I could use a little transistor radio."

Get lost!

Take the Super Continental as far as Toronto, Montreal, or the Panorama to Winnipeg.

Getting lost is something we all need, now and then. And going by train is the greatest way to escape. There's something about simply watching the scenery go by, chatting casually with a new acquaintance and taking your time over meals freshly cooked right on the train. Or relaxing in a lounge, sleeping in as late as you like, with no thought of rushing to work, keeping appointments, rushing . . . rushing . . . rushing. A trip cleverly disguised as a holiday, is what it's all about.

If it's economy you're after, you can't beat our one way coach travel fares on Red Bargain Days from Vancouver:
Winnipeg $26.00
Toronto $46.00

Even greater savings with Family and Youth fares. Sleeping accommodation at reasonable extra cost includes meals. Both trains leave every day. Call your Travel Agent or CN Passenger Sales Office.

Kiesinger Angers Spanish Liberals

MADRID — Spanish Democrats are indignant over West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's visit to Spain today.

Opposition elements of all shades of opinion, except Communists and the extreme right wing, have written a letter of protest to Kiesinger condemning "the first visit by a chief of state of a European democratic country to one of the few remaining dictatorships in Western Europe."

His three-day stay, the letter says, will bolster the authoritarian regime of General Franco and deal a serious blow to the country's liberals.

The authors of the protest admit that they do not know the motives behind the chancellor's journey. But, they continue, "30 years of experience have taught us that visits by democratic political leaders to Spain do not help in breaking the inflexibility of our political institutions but rather increase the sense of security of those in power."

The letter was signed by 13 well-known members of the Christian Democratic Party, the more left-wing Social Democrats and other liberals and liberal monarchists.

The opposition letter was delivered to the German embassy in Madrid, and a verbal request was made for the chancellor to receive a delegation of the opposition during his state visit.

The visit will be the first time that the chiefs of state of Germany and Spain have met since a wartime meeting between Hitler and Franco.

Robbs Name Baby After LBJ's Family

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynda Johnson Robb talked to her husband, Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb in Vietnam Sunday and they agreed on a name for their new baby daughter — Lucinda Desha Robb.

The first name is a combination of the first names of President Johnson's two daughters — Lynda and Luci. The middle name is from the Johnson family tree — the name of early pioneer settlers in Kentucky, who later moved to Texas.

Freeze Proposed On Indian Affairs

By LILLIAN NEWBERY

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Indian Association of Alberta Sunday called for a freeze on the expansion of the department of Indian affairs and northern development while an Indian group examines the role of the department.

Harold Cardinal of Edmonton spoke at the final session of a weekend forum on the Canadian Indian attended by 75 Indians from across Canada and 500 white university students.

The student-organized forum ended with Indians heckling John Macdonald, deputy Indian affairs minister.

Meanwhile, Mr. Cardinal received a five-minute standing ovation when he proposed that:

—The federal government honor its land treaties with Indians.

—The National Indian Brotherhood set up a board to advise the government on Indian policy changes.

—John Chretien, Indian Affairs minister, limit his activities within his department.

—The federal government freeze expansion of the department.

—A group composed of Indians examine all phases of the department.

—Robert Andras, minister without portfolio, work directly with the Indian Brotherhood to develop new policies and that he be given power to implement the brotherhood's proposals.

45 WALKERS RAISE $250 FOR RELIEF WORK IN BIAFRA

Forty-five walkers — Ages ranging from four to 40 — raised more than $250 for the Canada Council of Churches' Biafra Relief Fund Saturday.

They followed a two-mile route through the paths and byways of Beacon Hill Park, and for every mile they walked, their sponsors paid them sums ranging from 15 cents to $3.50.

The walkathon, sponsored by Victoria Salvation Army, started from the World's Tallest Totem, off the Dallas Road waterfront, soon after 10 a.m. and continued until 4:30 p.m.

Participating were Sunday school children, members of the Salvation Army, Scouts, Guides and Cubs, schoolteachers and officers of Victoria Citadel.

Virginia Rogers, 12, earned $52.50 for Biafra by walking 15 miles at $3.50 per mile. Dawne Ward, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ward of the Salvation Army, walked 16 miles and earned $29.

THE HOVERCRAFT PROBLEM

Does Oak Bay Want This Fame?

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I'm sure residents of Oak Bay must have been surprised and more than a little bemused at a statement made recently by Pacific Hovercraft director Bing Heeney. It was to the effect that if he was given wharfage privileges, the district would gain rynown as the first North American municipality with a hovercraft and tourists would be attracted to the area because of the unusual vehicle.

Forbes

In the first place I wonder if residents of Oak Bay really want this kind of fame. In the second place, if they did get those tourists what would they do with them?

Place suggested for hovercraft wharfage is at Oak Bay Marina. This area is built up with private homes and a goodly number of apartment buildings.

Those who live in these homes and apartments do so because they like peaceful, quiet surroundings, combined with a superb view.

Do they want the clattering noise of a hovercraft? Would they enjoy being "turned on" for the tourists Mr. Heeney predicts would converge on his sea buggy if it was tethered to a marina wharf?

There's another factor for consideration, too. Traffic.

At present the idea seems to be for arrival and departure of the hovercraft perhaps twice a day. Does anyone believe that if it proved a success this schedule would not be upp'd to twice that number of visits. Even more.

Think of 30 or 40 people arriving and departing even twice a day. Remember the size of the marina parking lot. Check in your minds the number of cars that will be left in that lot.

Include the taxis that would need to be available for those hovercraft passengers without land transportation. Buses, too.

Then visualize Beach Drive at that point. Is it wide enough? Is it straight enough to accept this kind of traffic affluence and still allow those who live along its borders the freedom to come and go as they wish?

The municipality is essentially a residential district. There is one hotel and no other accommodation for tourists. It is common knowledge that there is little open land left for building purposes so there wouldn't be much chance of increasing the number of such places.

What then would happen? Oak Bay no doubt would become a highway (or a byway) for those hordes of tourists. They would visit Beach Drive to look, listen and then to depart. Inwardly glad, no dount that they lived miles away from it all.

The question therefore comes to mind — who benefits if Oak Bay did become the first North American municipality with a hovercraft?

Certainly not the people who own homes and apartments or who rent homes and apartments in that part of the municipality. And who have paid and are paying for this privilege.

Gremlins that at times plague newspapers, assisted by the blue pencil of a deskman cutting a story to fit a space, succeeded in turning the last half of my Friday evening column into a few ambiguous and hard-to-understand statements.

I had written that in a booklet printed by the federal department of energy, mines and resources, it is said that raw sewage swarms with bacteria and other micro-organisms, some of them harmful and even deadly.

At this point several paragraphs were dropped. In them I added that the booklet contended that besides endangering our health and offending our senses, sewage pollution has another serious effect.

In the process of decay, it used up large quantities of dissolved oxygen not only needed by fish and other organisms but also to kill bacteria and to purify water.

The booklet lauded modern sewage treatment plants as "the heavy artillery in our war on pollution." And pointed out that such plants have sharply reduced health hazards in other parts of canada.

Farther down the column, where I spoke of the determined stand of Health Minister Loffmark regarding some form of sewage treatment plant where any new sewage plant is contemplated, another paragraph was dropped.

It pointed to the fact that main cry against Mr. Loffmark's stand is that it would cost many more dollars than long marine outfalls.

With this paragraph deleted my ending in favor of combined treatment plants and long outfalls, fell to pieces.

ASIAN EXPERTS FORM CANADIAN SOCIETY

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A new society for a wider understanding of the Orient, the Canadian Society for Asian Studies, was formed on the weekend by 27 experts on Asia, drawn from across Canada. Members agreed that one of their aims should be to encourage universities to include material on Asia in general studies instead of limiting it to highly specialized courses.

Chinese Have 'Rejected' Foreign Domination

By ALAN WHITE

About 130 persons heard a work picture of Red China Saturday.

Nearing its 20th year under a Communist regime, the country was depicted as a region of 730 million persons trying to survive without foreign dominion.

The social and cultural purpose of the rule of Communism is "the good of all the people," one panellist said during the China Teach-in at the University of Victoria.

Everything that has been done, the way that everyone has been taught to think and act, is for the good of all.

Throughout the day's formal discussions, China was described as trying to rid itself of old ideas and practices brought in by foreign powers.

She is trying to construct a mass effort by every citizen to build a new way of life, the audience was told.

Professor Charles Burchill, of the history department at Royal Roads Military College, said foreign governments had asserted their will in Chinese life for nearly 100 years before the 1949 revolution.

A republic formed in 1912 only continued the old principles of government in the name of the Chinese people, he said. The Communist revolution was a revolution of peasants, not of workers.

The country before the revolution, Prof. Burchill said, was separated into two classes — workers and peasants — the civilized of literate Chinese.

The literate class was generally composed of the more able persons in the country because it was based on competitive examinations with a broad educational system.

Only the best scholars were hired as government officials, dominated by the emperor.

Mao Tse-tung broke away from that line to concentrate on the peasant class. With them he started the revolution.

Behind the success of the revolution, Prof. Burchill suggested, was a psychological difference between the Chinese and other Eurasian groups. The Chinese preferred working together and in co-operation and put little emphasis on individual effort.

During the period of trade with European countries, the Chinese imperial government gave favorable tariffs to foreign industries and turned over areas of land to them. Many of these concessions were achieved by military force, Prof. Burchill said.

"The most galling of all concessions . . . was when every Chinaman had to throw himself down on his face to show his subservience to foreigners," he said.

An attempt to maintain such concessions was made up until the Second World War when the republican army was financed by the Western powers.

But after a civil war with Mao's peasant army, the republicans were forced to flee to Formosa.

In fact, Prof. Burchill said, the Chinese Communist party is the only one in the world that was never recognized by the Communist International of 1918 — it was of the peasants and not the workers, as Leninism preached.

A woman who taught in China for 31 years described life under the new regime until 1952.

Mrs. L. E. Willmott, who was at West China Union University from 1921 until 1952, said fears of the Communists were shown as groundless after the revolution.

They were trying to instil a new way of life and ridding the country of the old, she said.

The liberation army was relaxed and open to the crowds in the streets when it arrived and the change came "not by bullets but by talk."

'Many Have Heard Only Worst Things'

Most Canadians have the wrong idea of Communist China, L. E. Willmott told the China Teach-In Saturday.

They have "almost inevitably" heard the worst things going on in the country since the revolution, he said.

An instructor at West China Union University from 1921 until 1952, he was taking part in an afternoon panel at the teach-in. His wife had spoken during the morning.

The Communist takeover in China "has great significance to us . . . to the individual," Mr. Willmott said.

The change in rule brought a new idea of man and an attempt to teach truth, integrity and trust, he said.

'NEW MAN'

"This involves producing the new man, with a . . . serve the people attitude. All for the good of all."

The recent cultural revolution was merely a new phase of the change, to "free" the Communist party itself of any ideas of prestige, personal gain or advancement over others.

Some members of the party were criticized or removed from positions of power. Others were "re-educated."

The cultural revolution started in the newspapers and soon spread to the populace with the advent of wall newspapers, through which anyone could criticize, he said.

Then the students formed the Red Guard movement, probably, Mr. Willmott said, moved by the same feelings about the "reactionary schooling" system felt in Europe and North America today.

The involvement of the masses in the change was "by and large a wonderful force in bringing about change," he said.

Following his discussion, Prof. Richard Powers of the Uvic political science department took exception to Mr. Willmott's use of the word "criticism."

He objected that there was not very much real criticism of the system or of Communism allowed in Red China.

Mr. Willmott had said it was "as great as it can be" without creating pressure from the critic's neighbors and fellow workers.

But Dr. Powers said it was "sometimes a disaster to criticize" and that true objections do not exist in China.

Mr. Willmott agreed that those who prefer another system for China are usually repressed, but that most Chinese want only to criticize "how their factory is run."

Anti-Flu Claims Misleading

WASHINGTON — E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co. has apoligized to the nation's physicians for claims about the only prescription drug it makes.

The apology was in a corrective letter sent at the request of the Food and Drug Administration, which tagged as "misleading" a statement to the medical press.

That press release implied that Symmetrel (amantadine hydrochloride) could prevent illness from a new strain of influenza virus, A2-Hong Kong-68.

"There have been no clinical tests" involving infections from the new strain, Dr. Robert E. Rowland, medical manager for Dupont, conceded in the letter.

He said that the company is "attempting to arrange" such trials, but that "it will be many months before definitive results can be obtained."

SCOUTS LAUNCH STUDY ON LEADER PROBLEM

CALGARY (CP) — The Boy Scouts of Canada is studying its whole organization in an effort to bring it up to date with new programs.

The study is concerned with attracting new leaders and new sponsoring groups, says J. Percy Ross of Ottawa, chief scout executive. "The problem is getting adults organized to provide the leadership and the facilities," Mr. Ross said.

'GO' SIGNALS FLASHED EVERYWHERE

By JIM HUME

Owner-electors throughout the regional district gave overwhelming approval to a $9.3 million hospital construction referendum Saturday.

At the same time they cleared the decks for what could be one of the hottest political issues of the year: where the 600 new extended care beds are to be located.

That the people wanted the hospital bed crisis ended there was no doubt, although only a slim 21 per cent took the trouble to vote.

Those few voted in convincing fashion giving the Regional Hospital District Board an 87 per cent vote of confidence, the highest percentage vote ever recorded in Greater Victoria.

School District 61 set the trend early when at 8:24 p.m. the first complete poll to report came in with 229 for and 30 against.

It was a trend that didn't waver throughout the 49-poll count.

Even on the north end of the Saanich peninsula where strong opposition was mounted to protest the lack of bed allocation, the voters remained in a strong "yes" mood.

Sidney recorded 453 affirmative votes, 99 negative, for a 82.1 per cent majority. North Saanich was 465 for and 137 against, for 77.2 per cent in favor — the lowest percentage "yes" recorded, but still far more than the 60 per cent required.

In Victoria city the vote was disappointingly light but highly favorable. Some 2,850 voted in favor of the first stage of a massive hospital construction program, 428 voted against, to give the city an 87.3 affirmative vote.

In Saanich the percentage was down slightly but the turnout to the polls higher than any other area. When the final tallies were in 4,686 had voted "yes," 739 "no," to give Saanich an 86.3 per cent majority — six per cent higher than the "yes" vote recorded three weeks ago on the sewer referendum.

'Puts Us in Hospital Business'

Regional and municipal officials were delighted with the strong support received from the voting taxpayers, but all expressed regret that only 17,400 property owners out of an eligible 81,005 should bother to vote.

Only five elected officials were present at regional district election headquarters Saturday night for the vote count. They were Mayor Hugh Stephen, Victoria, Mayor Hugh Curtis, Saanich, who is also chairman of the Regional Hospital District Board, Mayor Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, Mayor Jim Cumming, North Saanich, and Ald. Cecil Parrott, Victoria.

No hospital officials, for whom the referendum approved in excess of $2 million for new buildings, repairs and new equipment, were present for the count-down.

"This puts us in the hospital business without doubt," said Mayor Curtis. "And about time. We can now make up for all the years of indecision."

Mayor Cumming, equally pleased with the result, asked that some of the praise for the success of the vote be given to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

"It doesn't seem the custom to praise Mr. Loffmark these days," he said. "But I think it should be pointed out that he advanced the idea of going ahead with the referendum just six months after the Agnew Peckham report came out and he recommended that we advance the extended care program as the least controversial at this time."

Two Plans Under Discussion

Mayor Cumming's statement touched on the issue that will bring district officials their biggest headache during the next few months.

There are two tentative plans in the works for the extended care beds. One would see all 600 new beds divided between Mount St. Mary's, The Gorge Road Hospital, St. Mary's Priory and the Gulf Islands with the bulk of the new beds going to the first three hospitals named.

The second plan would see the number of beds allocated in blueprint number one reduced with the saved beds allocated to Rest Haven for a new hospital somewhere on the Saanich Peninsula.

If the second plan is adopted the new Rest Haven would get 100 extended care beds and 50 acute care beds.

Some months ago they took an option on 42.9 acres of land in Central Saanich overlooking Saanichton Bay. Hospital officials openly admit that they hope to get a 100 or 150 bed hospital unit from Saturday's referendum funds and to use that new hospital as the nucleus lever when the site of a new 200 bed acute care hospital is decided in 1969.

The Rest Haven bid which, in the first stage at least, has strong support from Peninsula residents, is expected to run into tough opposition from the urban municipalities who want the new major acute care hospital located closer to the heavy population area.

In his master-plan for hospital development Dr. Harvey Agnew recommended that phase one be the distribution of extended care beds and that phase two see the building of a new acute care hospital.

By JOHN MIKA

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today said construction of the 600 extended care beds approved by Greater Victoria region ratepayers Saturday will be speedier than usual because of co-operation from the Architectural Institute of British Columbia.

He said the institute has agreed to draw up standardized architectural specifications on the basis of B.C. Hospital Insurance Service's outline of the functional needs of extended care hospitals.

Mr. Loffmark said the standardized specifications — first of their kind in Canada — should provide a breakthrough in the hospital planning process which up to now frequently bogged down for months and even years as BCHIS required revisions to local proposals.

And, he said, the standardized specifications will be ready for speeding up the Greater Victoria project.

"What I'm intending to do is put in standardized specifications so all that passing back and forth of revisions and revisions of revisions will be eliminated or reduced," he said.

ONLY DEPARTURES

Under the new system, instead of an architect starting from scratch in designing an extended care hospital or addition, he will follow the institute's specifications and only the departures from them to accommodate individual needs will need detailed BCHIS assessment.

Mr. Loffmark said the institute also would establish standardized specifications for acute care hospital construction next but this would take considerably longer because of the variety of functions found in acute care hospital wards.

Mr. Loffmark said he hoped the public would consider the new system as another indication of the government's good faith in trying to provide hosptial accommodation as quickly as possible wherever it is needed.

He also praised the architectural institute for its co-operation "which is particularly significant in the light of the architects' bitter complaints about the package deals sought in such developments as senior citizen housing and urban renewal."

Commenting on Saturday's overwhelming approval of the $9.3 million hospital construction bylaw, the minister said:

"I was delighted with the degree of favorable response.

"I think too that it was significant that municipal authorities and community leaders accepted the assurances of the regional district board and myself that every care will be taken to locate these facilities where they will best serve the community."

Mr. Loffmark said it now is up to the Regional Hospital District Board to get the projects under way by picking a site and starting construction.

Murder Trial Under Way At Assizes

The trial of two men charged with the non-capital murder of William Bruce van Munster, 24-year-old hotel clerk, opened in Assize Court here today.

Four months after he disappeared from his home at 1235 Crown Crescent on March 14 last, van Munster's decomposed and partly mummified body was found by Saanich detectives off a dirt road near Prospect Lake.

The body was hidden under a junked car roof about 50 feet off the road.

In Assize Court this morning, Gary Hugh McWhirter, 24, and Frederick James Morry, 28, each pleaded not guilty to the slaying of van Munster.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton then adjourned the trial until 2:30 this afternoon while lawyers argued whether certain evidence could be placed before the jury.

During this argument, the jury and all witnesses were excluded from the courtroom.

Regional Authority Urged for Housing

Over-All Organization Essential Says Report by Study Committee

In a comprehensive report on housing needs and problems in the Greater Victoria area, Ald. Edith Gunning, general chairman of the six-month-old study committee, says the need for an overall housing authority is essential.

"Since the capital region of British Columbia forms a continuous community, and persons in desperate search for living accommodation pay little attention to political boundaries which divide the region, it is concluded that planning for housing is more properly handled at the regional level," Ald. Gunning's report states.

One of the first moves to be made by the Community Housing Committee, an arm of the Community Welfare Council, will be the establishment of a housing registry.

"Unfortunately before we can do that we need $6,000," says Ald. Gunning. "It's rather pathetic to think that we have to ask for such a small sum of money before we can take the first step towards at least partially solving the housing crisis."

Ald. Gunning added that once the $6,000 became available from municipalities or the private business sector her committee would immediately establish the proposed registry of housing.

Such a home centre would register all available accommodation in the district, register all people requiring accommodation and "put the two in touch with each other."

COUNSELLING

It would also publicize the need for accommodation and the value of providing it; arrange transportation where necessary to view rental accommodation and supply a counselling service.

Ald. Gunning's report also calls for the establishment of consultative services to various groups in the community willing to undertake the building of non-profit housing estates.

The consultative service would determine priorities, provide advice to individuals and groups on procedure and endorse such projects meeting required standards.

Ald. Gunning warned that while rural areas of the regional district might balk at sharing the responsibility of providing housing or in sharing the cost, they should remember that rural land would be the key to future housing development.

LAND BANKS

"Their lands are the most likely sites for land banks," the report states. "Though capital costs of land banks would be met by senior governments, the municipality concerned would have to suffer loss of taxes until the land was resold.

"It would seem reasonable that, through regional financing, these municipalities would receive compensation for this tax loss."

British Columbia does at present have a Housing Management Commission but Ald. Gunning notes that it deals only with existing, or under active construction, public housing.

"The commission is not the appropriate body to draw up and promote a plan to meet the total needs of each community," Ald. Gunning states.

Members of the committee presenting individual sections of the report were: Ald. Gunning, general chairman; Clive Campbell, studying existing legislation and procedural steps; George Atamenko, the need for housing; Philip Holmes, the feasibility of a housing registry; John Di Castri, housing types, land assembly and building techniques.

NINE HOURS

Second Man Undergoes Back Surgery

A 75-year-old Victoria man today was undergoing Canada's second operation to replace a section of the vertebrae with one made of metal.

The history-making operation, like its predecessor last October, was being undertaken at Royal Jubilee Hospital by neurosurgeon Dr. Fouad A. Hamdi.

Hospital officials aren't certain but they believe Dr. Hamdi's accomplishment may have been a world first.

GREAT PAIN

Mrs. Ward said Mr. Ward has been unable to do much for himself for many months and suffered "tremendous pain." She said the operation was expected to take up to nine hours.

The first operation, performed successfully on William S. Hamilton, 65, permitted him to walk cheerfully from hospital eight weeks after the operation. The two patients had been roommates.

The device inserted into his backbone consisted of two horseshoe shaped rings held about 1¾ inches apart by three struts. The stainless steel prosthesis saved him from spending the rest of his life in bed.

City Garageman Dies Suddenly On Salt Spring

Well-known Victorian Robert Percival Hawkes, 1369 Richardson St., died suddenly Sunday at his summer home on Salt Spring Island. He was 58.

Mr. Hawkes was born in Victoria and until recently was a partner in Hawkes Brothers Garage in the Five Points area of Fairfield.

He is survived by his wife, Edna; two sons, William Stanley and Robert Bruce, both of Victoria; two brothers, Jack of Victoria, and Arthur of Detroit, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. Muriel Sick of Calgary and Mrs. Kathleen Fleming of Victoria.

Mr. Hawkes was a member of Mount Newton Lodge 89 AF and Columbia Chapter Royal Arch, and Victoria Lodge of Perfection Scottish Rite.

McCall Brothers Funeral Chapel will announce funeral arrangements.

Rifle Ban Sought by Islanders Following Shooting of Surveyor

A petition is being circulated to prohibit the use of rifles for hunting game on the Gulf Islands.

The petition says "the size of the islands on which we live and the increasing population combine to make the use of rifles an extreme hazard to all residents, particularly those who enter forested land either on business or recreation."

It is addressed to Recreation Minister Kiernan and follows the fatal shooting Oct. 22 of land surveyor Peter Arnell 38, of Ganges.

The father of three apparently was mistaken for a deer by a juvenile who was hunting in the Spanish Hills subdivision on Galiano Island.

About 100 persons have signed the petition.

Meanwhile, it was learned Mr. Arnell had been urged by Ganges store owner Laurie Mouat to purchase a red or yellow hunting jacket rather than the brown jacket he was wearing when shot.

Two Men Die In Collisions

Two men died in separate car crashes overnight Saturday.

At Chase River, south of Nanaimo, a similar two-car crash killed Francis John Fletcher, 45, of Cedar.

The deaths brought the weekend toll to five including two boys who died following an accident at View Royal Saturday and a Victoria woman pedestrian killed at Nanaimo Friday.

There have been 21 fatal accidents in Greater Victoria this year, 11 of them in Colwood.

Mr. Castley's death was the second recorded in 1968 in Saanich. It is believed Mr. Castley was returning from Lake Cowichan where he operated a movie theatre.

Police said at the McKenzie and Quadra intersection his car was in collision with one driven by David Edward Johnston, 31, of 923 Claremont.

Both drivers were alone. Both cars are beyond repair. Police are still uncertain of the direction each car was going. They said the Castley car after the initial crash knocked down a metal stop sign and came to rest against a power line pole on the south side of McKenzie.

Mr. Castley was dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Mr. Johnston was treated at St. Joseph's and released.

An inquest is expected to be called, followed by announcement of funeral arrangements by McCall Bros., funeral directors.

Mr. Castley is survived by his wife, Eleanor, at home; a son, Gordon, of Vancouver, and a daughter, Barbara, of Calgary. Both are married and he has two grandchildren in Calgary.

He was born in Duncan and had lived in Victoria less than a year. A relative said he was a charter member of the Masonic Lodge at Cowichan and his family was well known in that area.

In the Chase River accident, ranch caretaker F. J. Fletcher was a front seat passenger in a car driven by Eileen Esther Neville of Comox Road, Nanaimo.

She was in collision with a car driven by Norman David Gardner of Townsite Road, Nanaimo.

Police said the collision occurred when the Neville car drove on to the highway at the intersection with Yellow Point Road. The Neville car was knocked on its side. The driver was injured but not seriously.

Mr. Fletcher was rushed to Nanaimo hospital but died soon after admission. He was married with a family. An inquest is expected to be ordered.

Deadly Facts On Up and Up

All traffic accident statistics were on the rise up to the end of August, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today.

He reported there were 380 deaths on B.C. roads during the first eight months, an increase of 12 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

The number of accidents jumped 20 per cent during the same period to 33,892 with 12,639 persons injured for a 6 per cent boost and property damage up 16 per cent to a total of $16.5 million.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me what sort of a plant "gumwood" is and where it can be found? I know it is common on the seashore and blooms all year.—W.R.

A. Gumweed—Latin name grindelia—is a green, upright plant found on higher beaches above the high tide mark. It stands between 10 and 18 inches when fully grown, has serrated leaves and yellow blooms. The blooms are on top of sticky burrs, hence the nick-name gumwood. Gumwood may be found on local beaches.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Five-Day Yule Holiday Granted Civil Servants

Provincial civil servants get an extra day off so that the Christmas break can stretch out to a five-day holiday including a weekend.

A cabinet order adds Friday, Dec. 27, to the Yuletide shutdown of Christmas and Boxing Days on a Wednesday and Thursday this year.

Civil servants will come back to work Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 30 and 31 before having New Year's Day off.

However, Liquor Control Board stores will be closed only on Dec. 25 and 26 and Jan. 1, besides the regular Sunday closing.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"What a terrible nightmare!...I dreamed Sophia Loren wanted to marry me, but I refused to divorce Phyllis Diller."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Don't Be Dr. Watson For Sleuth Neighbor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor (I'll call her "Mrs. X") is divorcing her husband, and she is looking for proof of adultery. Knowing Mr. X, I'm sure she will have no trouble, as I have seen many strange cars parked in front of their house all night when Mrs. X has been out of town.

Mrs. X has asked me some leading questions which indicate that she knows that her husband has been playing around — and with whom! My problem is this: two years ago, my husband and I were having some difficulties, and I foolishly had a brief affair with Mr. X. I had never been unfaithful before, and I'd never do it again. I have a jewel for a husband, and I think he could forgive me if he ever found out, but it would hurt him deeply and I don't want to do that. But if the truth is going to come out in my neighbors' divorce, I'd rather have my husband hear it from me than in a courtroom.

Should I help the wife in her search for evidence? And what should I do about my own guilty conscience?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Keep your mouth shut and don't contribute any "evidence" in this case. And if you've never prayed before, pray now. With luck you can spare your husband (and yourself) a heap of unhappiness.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a guy who enjoys playing cards, and he plays for money — just to make it "interesting." Personally, I don't care much for cards, but I can play a fairly decent game if I have to.

All of Joe's relatives play cards night and day, and they think it's terrible that I don't go crazy over cards the way they do.

Abby, I love this guy, and I have really tried to like cards, but there is no use fooling myself. It's boring. Besides, some of Joe's "interesting" evenings have cost him more than he can afford to lose.

Now I am being told (by Joe's relatives) "If you intend to marry Joe, you had better learn to like cards."

Don't misunderstand me. I think it's all right to play once in a while. But all week-end, and every night?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You mention Joe's relatives, but how does Joe feel about it? Gambling can become just as serious as "addiction" to booze, tobacco, and other undesirable habits. Take a second look at Joe just to be sure the joker isn't too wild.

DEAR ABBY: We hear so much about the "rudeness" of guests who arrive late, but how about guests who arrive EARLY? Isn't that rude, too?

We know a certain couple whom we invite for 7:30 if we want them there at 7. The 30 minutes before guests are scheduled to arrive are probably the most hectic (and important) to the hostess, and it just burns me up to have to drop everything and entertain these early birds. Besides, it puts me in a very bad mood. What do you say, Abby?

GLADYS

DEAR GLADYS: I say, you said it all — and very well, to which I can only add, "Amen."

DEAR ABBY: How come when you gave all that advice on what to do about obscene telephone calls you didn't mention the one trick that works like magic? Get a real loud whistle like those used by policemen and gym teachers. Keep it near the telephone, and at the first hint of an obscene or annoying phone call blow the whistle right into the mouthpiece as loud as you can. It will give the nut on the other end such an earache he will never bother you again.

Please don't sign my name. Some nut might call to see if I have a whistle, and I don't. I have never had an obscene phone call, but you can bet if I ever did I would get myself a whistle after the first call.

CAMP HILL, PA.

DEAR ABBY: There is a cheap little flirt who is a freshman at school and she is the hit-and-run type. She likes to go after a boy who is going with another girl just to see if she can get him. After she breaks them up, she drops the boy and finds somebody else to break up.

This girl is now after my boyfriend. Should I bust her one in the mouth?

LAURIE

DEAR LAURIE: Don't bust anyone in the mouth. If a cheap little flirt can break up your romance, it's a break for you. Let her have him.

Time Now to Mail Advent Calendars

By PENNY SAVER

If I seem to be jumping the season, I apologize. It is only my mistrust of the mails that drives me to talk of advent calendars so early in the season. I am a firm believer in these attractive and exciting (not to mention inexpensive) gifts for children. An advent calendar is a large card gaily decorated to show a Christmas scene. In this card there are 24 or 25 numbered windows. The windows are opened in order, the first being opened on December 1 and the others following up to either Christmas Day or Christmas Eve. Behind each window is a picture surprise. Most come with mailing envelopes.

Why do advent calendars excite me so? First, because I think they are a charming and beautiful way of celebrating and second, because the stores today begin pushing Christmas so early that young children begin to get excited far before the day is due. (I noticed employees in one store stringing Chirstmas decorations last week!) An advent calendar is like a daily gift. It keeps the child's excitement in check by giving him something to do while he waits.

I like to mail advent calendars to friends with young children. My own children received these calendars in previous years and often the calendars arrived late. This was always a bit disappointing which is why I am mentioning them now. If you plan to mail some overseas, especially to children in isolated parts of the world, now is the time to start.

Moving Scene of Santa's Workshop

This year I have seen some particularly attractive advent calendars on display ranging from 35 cents up. One comes from Denmark and features a movable picture of Santa's workshop surrounded by a frame which held the windows. The figures of the workshop scene are all attached to the string that hangs the calendar on the wall. When the string is jiggled they move around. This complicated calendar is $1.25.

Another showed a single angel with gilded wings. The windows are on her dress. This calendar also hangs on the wall but does not move.

A decorated Christmas tree with the windows scattered over its branches like ornaments was the theme of another while rectangular pictures showed snow scenes, children carrying parcels, carollers and many more. One large calendar used popular cartoon characters as its theme.

There are many beautiful advent calendars for those who prefer to emphasize the religious side of Christmas. One I particularly liked had folding side flaps that let it stand up. These flaps showed the shepherds with their flocks and the angels up above. The early windows were on these panels, I believe. When these flaps are opened up they reveal the manger scene and the remainder of the surprise windows. This scene was picked out with glitter for added effect. Other calendars showed less complex scenes from the Christmas story.

If you would like to know where I saw this selection of advent calendars, please call 382-3131.

Mrs. Brundson To Open Bazaar

Mrs. Florence Brundson, auxiliary mother, will officiate at the opening of the annual fall bazaar to be presented by the Ladies Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Eagles Saturday in the lower Eagles Hall, 751 View Street.

The bazaar, which opens at 2 p.m., will feature home baking, fancy-work, aprons, novelties, miscellaneous articles, a penny stall and bingo games. Mrs. Hilda Veitch is general convener, and Mrs. N. Marshall is in charge of the tea committee. All visitors will be welcome.

When Skin Sags on Face and Neck

Even skin that sags and is no longer smooth, could be made firm and much younger looking. That "older look" usually appears first around the throat, but is comparatively easy to treat by very simple means that require no skill at all.

Get 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength from your drug or dept. store and apply it gently to your throat and face each night before retiring. After just a few days, you will notice your skin becoming firmer again and smoother. That is because the 2nd Debut has revitalized your skin with a new supply of water from the surface clear into the inner skin.

REAL ESTATE

From the Woman's Point of View

Shirley Philps

Home is a magic word, but in today's so-called "sick society," the "home is becoming a number on a computer . . . the individual is becoming a statistic . . . the heart and hearth of our family existence is a ratio . . . or a comparison . . . or a dollar earned on the ledger sheets of "Big Business." One might ask "Where, oh where has the individual gone?"

We acknowledge we need electronic machines that benefit greatly in using the material stored in their "memory banks" but in addition we need to know someone is caring about US as "people"—unique, vibrant, living people! Does [illegible] describe a widow's anxiety when she realizes she must sell her home of many years? Does [illegible] describe the happiness a bride and groom experience as they cross the threshold of their very first home? NO! We must not lose sight of the fact that real estate is the "people business" not the "numbers racket!" As women and as professional Realtors, Homefinders are dedicated to the task of seeing that each buyer's hopes and dreams of a home will be met —that each seller will have individual and personalized attention to his listing. COOKING CAN BE FUN

By MARY MOORE

Moore

The decision went against me. I wanted to make yeast doughnuts for Halloween celebrators but Shirley said, "More girls will make baking powder doughnuts than yeast doughnuts. If you want your readers to make your recipes give them baking powder doughnuts."

So there were doughnuts all over the kitchen and they were so good I ate three. When your visitors shout "Anything for Halloween" give them a doughnut wrapped in Saran.

Be prepared to follow the rules below, particularly the ones regarding chilling dough and temperature of oil or fat.

HOMEMADE DOUGHNUTS
(baking powder—30)

Two medium-large eggs, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ¾ cup sugar, ¼ cup oil or fat, ¾ teaspoon grated orange rind (about 1 medium orange), 2¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk less 1 tablespoon.

In mixing bowl beat together the eggs, nutmeg, sugar, oil and rind, 2 or 3 minutes. Remove beaters. Sift together sifted flour, baking powder and salt and sift over egg mixture alternately with milk until batter is blended. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover and chill thoroughly one or two hours. Heat oil or fat in 8" pan at 1" depth to 375 deg. Fahr. (A 1" cube of bread will brown in 40 seconds.)

On well-floured board that can be carried to stove, roll out half of dough (leave remaining half in refrigerator) to ¼" thickness. Cut out three at a time with well-floured doughnut cutter. Carry to preheated fryer and, lifting with egg lifter, carefully slide in. If you are a fast worker you may have time to cut out three more but be very cautious, do not burn any. Turn each over as bottom becomes gold and fry other side.

Have at your right hand a large tray or platter covered with paper towels and transfer cooked doughnuts to it with slotted spoon. Continue until remaining half is rolled and cut. Collect scraps and roll them and cut them too.

If you want to, fry all little balls cut from centres instead of including them in scraps. Your very small Halloween callers will like them better. Sprinkle sifted icing sugar over when all are fried. Or if desired, when cold, dip the doughnuts in glaze made by blending ⅓ cup soft butter, ½ cup corn syrup, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon salt, scant 2 tablespoons milk and 1 pound sifted icing sugar.

NOTE: If you want Chocolate Glaze variation, to one third of glaze, add 2 tablespoons cocoa.

Give Youth To Your Complexion

Good results in complexion beauty are being achieved with a tropical oil that has unique properties to bring youth and peaches-and-cream loveliness to the skin. It ends wrinkle dryness and gives the complexion dewy loveliness. Many druggists here have been able to obtain this oil of Olay. Use it daily as you would a powder base and note how the complexion soon takes on a milky look.

THE FABRIC DOCTOR HAS THE ANSWERS

QUESTION:

Do All Fur Fabric Coats Require Fur Cleaning?—Mrs. M. R. A.

Dear Mrs. M. R. A.: No. In most cases it is impossible for furriers to remove the imbedded soil from these coats, using the same process that is used for real furs. A special drycleaning procedure is recommended for these heat-sensitive fabrics. It is unwise to allow fur fabrics to become too soiled, because deeply-imbedded soil is difficult to remove even in drycleaning. We specialize in cleaning fur fabric coats.

GUIDELINES FOR THE TEEN-AGE GIRL

Changing Times Demand Adjustment of Dating Rules

By DR. TOM McGINNIS

This is the first of a series of articles written by a well-known psychotherapist to help young girls understand the problems they may face during their early teens.

Advice to girls about relating to the male sex probably has been given since the beginning of time. No doubt even in the days of the cavemen, a native wisdom was passed down from parents to daughters, telling how best to escape from — or to be caught by — a marauding male. Parents and teachers of each succeeding period have revised their approach to the subject in the light of conditions prevailing in a particular time and place.

This series is a vigorous effort to enable the reader to understand what goes on in a modern-day relationship. After reading it, a girl should have a sharper perception of what may be going on inside of her own mind and heart when she dates, what may be going on inside of the mind and heart of the boy, and above all what may be going on to help or hinder their becoming more appreciative and respectful of each other.

REAPPRAISE OPINIONS

These are times of powerful and far-reaching changes in our understanding of human beings and how they get along with each other. We are reappraising many opinions about men and women that have been held for centuries, and in many cases we are reaching new positions about the natures of males and females and of their interrelationships.

We no longer accept as valid many time-honored notions. The idea, for example, that all husbands must be the heads of their households and rulers of their castles is no longer accepted, for we know that in some instances wives may be better equipped to make decisions for their families.

And because our ideas about the relationships of men and women are undergoing great changes, so too are our ideas about boys and girls and their relationships. In fact, the taking of a new look at old ways of doing things is nowhere more evident than in the areas of dating and going steady. It is obvious to everyone that modern teenagers are playing the "dating game" with rules new to this generation.

In the face of the new conditions of dating, it is obvious that many old guidelines — the kind of advice, for example, that parents might give their daughters — may no longer be appropriate.

UNDERSTAND HERSELF

I will suggest an approach which girls at the beginning of their dating years might take in order to determine for themselves what values to hold in order to make the dating process a constructive one which will contribute not only to their own maturity and happiness, but also to that of the boys they date and the man they marry.

This series makes the point that before a girl can begin to know boys and understand what makes them tick, she would do well to strive for some understanding of herself — to understand what kind of person she herself is, what her own goals and aspirations are. Once a girl comprehends to some degree what kind of person she is, she has a more realistic and emotionally mature basis upon which to determine what kind of relationships to have with boys and what kind of future life to strive for.

We next proceed to a consideration of the factors that help mold the personalities of boys in modern life. They too have been affected by factors both inside and outside the home, and have been taught in countless direct and indirect ways that boys act in certain ways and do not act in other ways.

While I do not set down absolute directives about how girls and boys should act on a date, I make a strong effort to give girls the facts and psychological understanding they may require in order to determine for themselves what forms of behavior fit them best and are most likely to contribute to their emotional and spiritual development in the long run. I try to tell girls the truth, as far as I am able, about all aspects of boy-girl relationships, including the crucial one of sex.

I do not impose my moral judgments upon the reader, but neither do I overlook that society constantly makes moral judgments and that a girl must be aware of this important fact. Therefore I urge her to consider her reputation as well as other things in determining what her behavior will be in any given situation.

GROWTH POTENTIAL

Because you were born a female, and have been brought up always to think and act as a girl, the most important single feature of your teen years is the realization of the growth potential that was part of you when you were born. During adolescence, you enter a striking period of growth. You cease to be a little girl and stop thinking of yourself as a child. Instead, you develop the physical powers of your sex and begin to think more and more as an adult. You begin to see your opportunities to lead a new kind of life, one much less related to your parents, brothers, sisters, and other relatives, but focused almost entirely on a member of the opposite sex.

You probably know the basic facts about how nature has prepared you for womanhood. To tell the complete story is not the purpose here. For our purposes, it is more to the point to discuss emotional developments while the physical activity is going on.

Five things commonly happen when a girl realizes that she is acquiring the physical properties of womanhood.

1. She feels uncertain and perhaps anxious about the new physical forces within herself. Never before has she felt some of the urges she now feels. Sometimes, it has been said, an adolescent almost feels the hormones working. They have the effect of making you very energetic and ambitious and of lifting your spirits to buoyant heights one day, and of making you depressed, anxious, and pessimistic the next. With newness, there is almost always anxiety (a fact worth remembering all your life). Even the girl whose mother has told her in careful detail what will happen is not fully prepared when it does happen.

2. She knows that she is "growing up," but is uncertain how she is expected to act. She realizes that she has entered a new phase of life. Not having been there before, she may feel unsure whether she is expected to act like a grown-up lady, or is permitted to carry on like the child she was a year ago.

3. Girls expect some emotional and intellectual freedom along with their physical growth. As a child, you were completely dependent upon your parents. You were expected to do what they required of you without questioning their judgment. But teen-age girls usually want greater freedom. In keeping with your development, you probably feel that you should be allowed to stay up later, to decide for yourself when to do your homework, to look at any television programs you wish, instead of having your parents tell you what you may or may not see, to date whom you want.

4. Different growth rates change your relations with girl friends. Among females, there is often a sense of competition. As you may now know, teen-age girls, young women, and even old women have a habit of sizing other females up — comparing who is most attractive, who has curves in the right places, who has the best skin, who dresses the best, and so on.

This competitive spirit reveals itself in the early teens. Girls who show a bust development earlier than others may acquire a certain status. Those who develop later, or who never have a conspicuous bust, may feel inferior. (At this point, let me say that there is no known relationship between the size of a woman's breasts and her over-all ability, either to attract men or become a mother.)

5. There is now a desire to express one's affection in new ways. Major objects of this desire are, of course, boys. However, it is a peculiarity of nature that boys generally mature about two years later than girls — that the typical girl of 14, let us say, is far more advanced than the typical boy of 14 is in physical, emotional and intellectual development. The girl who wants to date may find that the boys her own age are not ready for it.

I suggest that you think about the five areas of emotional change I have just outlined. By understanding what is happening to you — what we call the dynamics of the situation — you will be better able to handle your teen-age problems in a positive way. If you know that emotional changes are taking place, as well as physical ones, they will not be so disturbing and you will be able to meet your dating experiences with greater confidence and pleasure.

NEXT — How boys and girls get to know each other.

Excerpted from the book A GIRL'S GUIDE TO DATING AND GOING STEADY: 1968, by Thomas C. McGinnis; published by Doubleday and Company.

"These are times of powerful and far-reaching changes in our understanding of human beings and how they get along with each other," writes Dr. Tom McGinnis in his new book, "A Girl's Guide to Dating and Going Steady". But what is generally true for society is painfully personal for the teen-age girl. It is literally a time of trying out a new existence, as this picture illustrates. (David Nance photo.)

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Send Donation — The members of Royal Bride Chapter IODE voted to send a $25 donation to the George R. Pearkes clinic for Handicapped Children when they met recently at the Moss Street home of Miss Helen Stevens. Also allocated to provincial and national projects were: $1, Peace Garden; $15, shipping fund; $5, Emerson House; $15, Second World War Memorial and $15, Commonwealth relations. Two former members were reinstated and welcomed by Miss Lorna Langley, regent. Mrs. T. Kowalchuk, educational convener, reported that no further graduation ceremonies would be held for the practical nurses training course at the vocational school and that she would be convening the 1969 Festival next October. The next meeting will be held Saturday, November 7 at the home of Mrs. I. Burrows, 2171 Ferndale Road. Mrs. V. H. V. Sheppard will be guest speaker. At the end of the meeting the hostess served refreshments.

Dolls Delight

Sharen Elizabeth Hubbard, whose grandmother, Mrs. H. E. Hubbard, is president of Christ Church Cathedral Anglican Church Women, Evening Branch, is entranced with some of the dolls that will be on sale when the group holds its annual bazaar on Saturday at the parish hall on Vancouver Street. Seen with Sharen is Miss Marjory Brenard. The bazaar will be officially opened at 2 p.m. by diocesan president Mrs. F. A. Goodwin. Stalls will feature such items as needlework, home cooking, jewelry and superfluities.

Chapel Auxiliary Plans Bazaar At Brentwood Bay

The Anglican Church Women of Brentwood College Memorial Chapel will hold their annual Christmas bazaar this coming Saturday, from 2 to 4:30 p.m. in Brenta Lodge at Brentwood Bay.

The afternoon branch will have stalls of home cooking, needlework, gifts, plants and miscellaneous articles, while the evening branch will convene the tea and the stalls of Christmas decorations and gifts.

CLUB CALENDAR

Annual bazaar, Garden City United Church Women, Saturday, 2 p.m., in the church basement, corner of Norwood and Carey Roads. Tea, coffee and refreshments will be served.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Hello, there! It's group Therapy Week! Come join us!

As you know, group therapy has been very effective in the treatment of many damaging conditions. Alcoholics Anonymous is the most famous example. This technique has also been successful in the treatment of mental illness. It has even invaded the reducing field. Tops and Weight Watchers are two well-known organizations of this kind.

Lowman

Once a year I use my column to bring you letters from women who have recently lost quite a lot of weight by following my directions. These letters tell of some of the problems they encountered while reducing and also of their successes and how it has affected their lives.

Here is the first letter:

Dear Mrs. Lowman,

I weighed 191 pounds when I pushed the little red button marked "panic" located in my mental switchboard. I dieted and exercised quite faithfully until I lost 50 pounds. Now I need to generate a new enthusiasm.

I think the danger when reducing over a long period of time is the sheer boredom of dieting. After you start to feel and look better there is a tendency, at least in my case, to feel (or perhaps excuse myself from further effort) that since I have accomplished so much, I can now coast.

But, fortunately for me, I still have some "bulldog" tendencies intact which will not allow me to quit. Quitting at this stage seems like a waste of a lot of effort, and I inherited a definite sense of thrift from my Scottish ancestors. Waste is repulsive to me, whether time, money, food or thought. It surely is true that I had a large accumulation of pounds to prove, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that I couldn't bear to throw away any food.

I have only 20 more pounds to lose, and I am going to do it. I want you to know that your columns have been a great help to me and that I clip many of them and make them a part of my Self Improvement notebook.

This letter emphasizes a very important point. Even during a shorter reducing trek, the tendency is to take off the pressure as soon as some of the pressure is taken off of seams and belts. When a woman loses six of the 10 pounds she needs to lose, or 15 pounds of her 20 or 25 pounds overweight, she is likely to feel so pleased she stops short of the finish line.

Another danger in a long-term slimming routine is the fact that practically all reducers come to a standstill once in a while. Since they are still counting calories and nothing happens, they become discouraged. Dont! Just keep on with your diet, and you will soon begin to lose again.

Anso Dent* does it in one half hour when others take all night.

Taste Taster's Choice,
the great freeze-dried coffee
from Nestlé.

This is the one that started the freeze-dried coffee revolution.

This is the one that looks like freshly ground coffee; and tastes like freshly ground coffee, just perked.

But don't take our word for it,
try it and see.

Because tasting is believing.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Oswald: "Here is a hand from the finals of the Olympiad in which both pairs bid and made four spades. The bidding in the box was used by the Americans. The Italians got there by one of their typical artificial sequences."

Jim: "I see that both declarers made an overtrick after West opened a trump. Guess this illustrates that the International Match Point scoring is close enough to rubber bridge so that the declarer will play safe for his contract."

Oswald: "Yes, indeed. Each declarer drew trumps, discarded one diamond on the second high heart, and eventually had to make five odd because they were not able to take two club finesses."

Jim: "A match point player might well have tried the best percentage play for the overtrick and wound up just making his contract or possibly going down one."

Oswald: "He would win the first spade in dummy. Cash the hearts in order to discard one diamond and take a club finesse. West would win with either the king or the queen and lead a second spade. South would win that in dummy also and lose a second club finesse. Then if West decided to underlead his ace of diamonds, East would win a diamond trick and might give West a club ruff for the setting trick."

Jim: "In my opinion that South player would deserve everything that happened to him. Even in a match point game he should be happy enough to have gotten the trump lead and would play safe for his contract."

1968 DATSUN SEDAN

"The more-for-your-money car." If somebody ever tells you he drives an economy import with 96-h.p. engine that goes 100 m.p.h., has a safer, impact absorbing body, the safest suspension money can buy, a wrap-around air-flow system that keeps windows clear, that it looks great, handles like a dream and that he bought it from us for only $2,025, believe him. The new DATSUN sedan, the "more-for-your money car," from $1895 at

A POPULAR IDEA
It might surprise you to know that your friends and neighbors purchase more real estate than you imagine. They do, of course, for a host of reasons: For example extra income, investment, speculation, capital cost allowances, and most of all "I just plain like real estate."

It's never a mistake to buy real estate. Add this small downtown 4-suite resident building to your portfolio — for another reason it's a good buy at $19,500. Call SIMON PLETT anytime, 385-2471. Johnston & Co.

CLOSE TO UVIC

This setting could be from Better Homes and Gardens. It is a beautifully landscaped lot with the ideally located to allow expansion if you wish. With the trees and shrubs, the home in white and dark red is most striking. The living room, about 20x16 is most restful with large exposed beams and sloping ceiling set off by a raised hearth fireplace against a feature panelled wall. The wall-to-wall carpet is in a neutral shade. The functional kitchen opens to a formal dining room — 12x12. It is quite simple to convert this to a 3-bedroom home with an en suite master bedroom. There is a fully finished large family room just down from the kitchen a few steps. The basement bedroom and utility need only to be finished off and the vendors have reduced the price from $[illegible] to $[illegible] to defray these costs. There is an existing mortgage of about $[illegible] at 6 per cent of $[illegible] p.m., including taxes. Remember asking only $[illegible] and Crown will sell by trade to allow you to trade up. Call F. WILLS, 385-8731. Oh yes, vendor may sell under agreement for sale to qualified client. Even forgot to mention the lovely sundeck off the daughters bedroom, making a 2-carport underneath! Also all wall-to-wall in LR, DR and halls is over lovely oak flooring.

BURNSIDE-HAMPTON

WATERFRONT DE LUXE COTTAGE TWO FULL ACRES

This is an opportunity of a lifetime to purchase this hard-to-find type of almost level property with fantastic views of islands and ocean. The cottage has beautiful living and dining room (separate) and a small, smart kitchen with utility room—a huge bedroom on the main floor with big dressing area and two full bathrooms—in the (garden level) basement is another bedroom and space to install another bathroom—modern oil heat and a secluded city garden—ideally situated for additions. Asking price is $82,500. (Home and 1 acre could be bought for $67,500.) Low taxes. Good financing can be arranged.

WATERFRONT DREAM

This new distinctive waterfront duplex or family home says "Welcome Home" from the moment you see the long, low lines and cedar shake roof, the spacious entrance hall and gracious rooms. The 2 [illegible] sundecks and the spectacular sea views. With a crackling fire in the fireplaces and surrounded by an acre of wooded land, you are indeed a king (or queen) in your own castle. Realistically priced at $49,500. It will be a pleasure to show you this beautiful home.

Fisheries Insurance Cancelled

OTTAWA (CP) — An experimental federal insurance plan for fishermen has been cancelled because it was not paying its way, Fisheries Minister Davis announced during the weekend.

Claims paid out in 1967-68 amounted to $26,313 while only $7,089 was collected in premiums.

The plan, called the fixed fishing gear and shore installations indemnity regulation, was designed to cover such things as weirs, fish traps, working and storage buildings. It was introduced in 1966.

All existing policies will be honored but there will be no renewals when they expire, Mr. Davis said.

PINUP PAINTER Cathy Lawson heads University of Victoria's poster committee, the crew that paints and silk-screens the myriad signs around the Gordon Head campus which let fellow students know what's happening. Cathy and her two assistants each week turn out dozens of posters and banners from their campus studio—a former army guardhouse. "It's a lot of work," she says, "but it's a lot of fun too." The crew's budget this year is $700—$450 higher than last year.

hospital on a letter from former Minister of Health Eric Martin who promised a replacement for the now outdated hospital north of Sidney.

But Dr. Agnew virtually veoted a major hospital too far away from the urban area, and recommended instead that consideration be given for the building of the new acute care hospital in the Elk Lake area or for a new St. Joseph's Hospital on grounds adjoining its present location.

For the past few months Dr. Agnew has been advising St. Joseph's officials on land requirements and general plans.

Sandwiched in between the two hospital bids are the political viewpoints.

Mayor Hugh Stephen has declared himself as being in favor of a new St. Joseph's in the downtown area. Mayor Hugh Curtis would like to see the new acute care hospital built closer to the population trend rather than the established population area. And Mayor Jim Cumming is a staunch supporter of hospital facilities for the north peninsula.

While the decision on the acute care hospital site is a year away, the key to that decision could come within the next two months as regional and government authorities decide the exact location of the extended care hospitals approved Saturday.

Health Minister Loffmark has already announced that the beds will go where they will best serve the populaton. But he has also indicated that he looks with favor on a 150-bed unit for Rest Haven.

But Saturday night the fights of the future were forgotten briefly as politicians and hosptial officials closed ranks to rejoice in passage of referendum number one.

Even so the rejoicing was marked with the shadow of things yet to come.

Said Mayor Stephen: "I think (the vote) also shows that the people were satisfied with the way the regional board handled the whole question and was a mark of confidence in the board in the preparation for the next step which will culminate in a new referendum, probably in a year."

Mayor Ray Bryant: "It should be kept in mind that this $9.3 million program is but the first step."

And Mayor Curtis: "We will move ahead to rectify the extended care situation in the region and start planning to meet acute care needs. We are, as a matter of fact, thinking in terms of another referendum in the autumn of 1969."

That referendum will make Saturday's vote look like a minor league money bylaw. If the authorities decide to go for all the Agnew-Peckham recommendations they will be seeking approval for the spending of $33 million for a new acute care hospital plus major extensions and rennovations at Jubilee and St. Joseph's.

Indications are that they will take the Agnew recommendations in two bites calling for approval of in excess of $15 million a year from now with the balance to be voted on later.

Weavers Settle For 36 Cents At Two Plants

Striking shingle weavers returned to work at two mills today following a weekend settlement.

Workers at Smith Cedar Products Ltd. in Victoria and Hunting-Merritt in Vancouver ended a three-week strike.

$2.90 HOURLY

Workers settled for a 36-cent-an-hour pay hike over two years. This brings the basic hourly rate up to $2.90 from $2.75.

Union originally demanded a 50-cent-an-hour wage increase.

John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, which negotiated the settlement, said the settlement brought the two mills up "to the provincial standard rate."

Shake sawyers and packers at McCarter refused to settle.

They are demanding a part-hourly, part-piece work wage allotment. Company officials want payment to rest solely on piece work, meaning workers would be paid for the number of articles they produced per hour rather than a flat hourly rate.

NO TALKS SET

Mr. Billings said no plans for continuing negotiations between workers and McCarter officials rave been made so far.

A spokesman for Smith Cedar Products said most workers were back on the job this morning although a few "temporary wage negotiations," must still be made. Talks will continue when mill owner H. A. Smith returns from Montreal Thursday.

"We've been phoning the men and most of them are back at the job," said the mill spokesman.

No Prosecution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The justice department says there will be no criminal prosecution as a result of the harassment of Ralph Nader by a private detective hired by General Motors. The department has evaluated the results of an FBI investigation and says it has been "forced to conclude that the evidence is insufficient to support a prosecution . . ."

Birth Control Bill Slated For House

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Macdonald, president of the Privy Council, announced Sunday the government will introduce a bill this week to remove Criminal Code restrictions on birth control.

Mr. Macdonald's announcement brought cheers from a mainly-student audience of about 1,500 attending the University of Toronto teach-in on the population crisis. The minister was chairman of the final session of the teach-in.

He said: "A bill will be introduced in the House this week to bring about removal of legal inhibitions that have dogged supporters of family planning in Canada."

Under the Criminal Code, a person now is considered to have committed an offence "who knowingly . . . offers to sell, advertises, publishes an advertisement or has for sale or disposal any means, instruction, medicine, drug or article intended as a method of preventing conception."

Bombing Halt Bid 'Generous'

SAIGON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand said today that current proposals for a bombing halt over North Vietnam were the most generous ever offered to Hanoi.

"Ho Chi Minh has before him more generous proposals than ever for a bombing halt," Holyoake told reporters on the eve of his departure for home.

Asked if this implied that the United States and its allies in the Vietnam war were fully unified on terms being offered to Hanoi, he replied:

"As far as I know, yes."

They Try to Understand Themselves Through Books

By JIM HUME

He was small, delicate, and a regular if wheezing visitor to the young people's section of the Greater Victoria Library.

He accepted his handicap cheerfully, but he wanted to know more about his frailty.

Patiently he searched the shelves until, eureka, with triumphant wave he checked out "Allergy" and took his chronic asthma home to find out under his own terms just what was wrong with his body.

The lad is typical of the young reader who, says Margaret Toakley, head of the department, are these days more than ever before trying to understnad themselves and the world via books.

Presenting her regular information report to the library board Mrs. Toakley said there was more to the past year's upsurge in youthful reading habits than meets the eye.

Young readers today, she said, are far more realistic than they ever were in the past.

"There is a definite trend to more realistic situations, to facing up to problems which many teen-agers themselves have to face: the divorced parents, the alcoholic father, the retarded child in the family, teen marriages, the unwed mother, family conflice to name a few topics," Mrs. Toakley said.

"Comments made by youngsters about this type of book indicate they fill a real need, give reassurance to some that they are not the only ones in certain situations, offer hope that their problems will eventually be solved, point out that certain types of attitudes and behavior can lead to, and possibly help them cope better with life."

Mrs. Toakley said each youngster has his or her own method of selecting books.

"Voracious readers have their own methods of selecting books," she said. "One boy is simply working his way shelf by shelf around the department. Another aims to read everything written by a certain author while yet another wants to read everything written since the Second World War."

Mrs. Toakley said prominent in the library at all hours is a small group of youngsters who have taken speed reading courses. "Their reading lists have become a familiar sight."

The young people's section does more than just make books available.

Library officials are more than willing to pitch in and work out a special reading program for handicapped youngsters as they did with the deaf boy lagging behind at school.

He's now catching up via a tailor-made reading course.

Chief Librarian Jack Lort received Mrs. Toakley's report with: "To the best of my knowledge, the service we are providing in this (young people's) section is superior to that provided by any other library in the Pacific Northwest."

Nixon Rapped By Johnson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Johnson accused Richard M. Nixon Sunday of making "ugly and unfair charges" on security and peace efforts and Hubert H. Humphrey charged Nixon with spreading an unfounded rumor that the Democrats are playing politics with peace.

Humphrey Sunday night accused his Republican presidential opponent in the Nov. 5 U.S. election "of simply using the old Nixon tactic of unsubstantiated insinuation" by suggesting White House "insiders" are trying to bring off a Vietnam peace development to boost Humphrey's election chances.

But Nixon—expending Sunday on his Friday statement that he did not believe speculation that Johnson would make "a cynical, last-minute attempt" to salvage Humphrey's candidacy—said he was trying to squelch the reports.

FEAR MISCALCULATION

Johnson, making a political appearance in New York, had accused Nixon of making "ugly and unfair charges about our security gap and charges about our attempts to win peace in the world."

Humphrey also joined Johnson Sunday and again today in disputing Nixon's statement that Democratic administrations had created a security gap and that America must maintain arms superiority over the Soviet Union.

"He (Nixon) is risking miscalculation by our enemies," Humphrey said in remarks prepared for an Akron, Ohio rally. "He is urging a mad escalation of the nuclear arms race. And he is advocating an increasing militarization of American life and American foreign policy."

Johnson lambasted both Nixon and third party candidate George C. Wallace Sunday and predicted Humphrey would win an upset victory Nov. 5 much as Harry S. Truman did in 1948.

Johnson called Nixon "a veteran of the time when America's problems were deferred and her needs were ignored" and said Wallace's answer to preserving order it to "line up a few thousand troops on the sidewalks of the city."

Wallace, meanwhile, belittled polls showing him losing support. The polls "are liars . . . trying to rig the election," Wallace said in Montgomery, Ala. And he said that after the election "we're going to put some of the polling outfits out of business."

Drug Conspiracy Indicted by U.S.

By MORTON MINTZ
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury has indicted 12 foreign and 3 domestic companies for their participation in an international cartel that skyrocketed the price of a heart disease drug by 500 per cent in a 2-year period ending in early 1967.

The drug is a derivative of quinine called quinidine. It is taken by millions, principally to correct an irregular heart rhythm which occurs in certain incapacitating and sometimes fatal medical conditions.

The indictment, which was returned in New York City Friday but announced here by the justice department, charges in five counts that the 15 companies criminally violated the antitrust, tariff and fraud laws:

- By conspiring to restrain foreign and interstate commerce through price fixing, market allocation, setting of sales quotas, eliminating other producers through selective price cutting, and rigging the market for quinine products in a general services administration's stockpile.
- By conspiring to monopolize foreign and domestic trade in quinine and quinidine.
- By actually achieving the desired monopoly.
- By conspiring to defraud the United States in connection with the GSA stockpile.

The American firms named in the indictment are the Rexall Drug and Chemical Co.; Mead Johnson and Co., a subsidiary of Bristol-Myers Co., and an importer, R. W. Greef and Co., Inc.

The indictment named eight individuals. All but Harry Y. de Schepper, president of the Greef firm, are Europeans.

In addition, three New York firms are listed as co-conspirators but not as co-defendants—S.S.T. Corp., Walker Chemicals, Inc., and Charles L. Huisking and Co., Inc.

The indictment is rooted in an investigation by the Senate antitrust subcommittee, which subpoenaed secret cartel papers from Rexall. In turn, Rexall, which disclaimed knowledge of the cartel, had come into possession of the papers when it acquired a now defunct British subsidiary that was part of the combine.

At a hearing in March, 1967, the justice department testified that it was opening an antitrust investigation. But subcommittee chairman Philip A. Hart (D—Mich.) blasted the department for being late, saying that years before the cartel's operations had been "laid out from A to Z, with subheads."

The senator also criticized the state department. He said it had "effectively developed devices to prevent bidding" by American firms on the GSA stockpile.

The result, Hart said, as that bulk-powder quinine for which the government had paid 63 cents an ounce was sold to the cartel for an artificially depressed price of 21 cents—and then later was sold by the cartel for more than $3.

After the hearings, however, the price dropped sharply.

Greater Powers Help Consumers

OTTAWA (CP)—Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford announced today that a number of government units concerned with the protection of consumers have been either reorganized or added to his department.

He made the announcement in a statement as a closed meeting on consumer affairs got under way between representatives of federal and provincial governments.

Under the reorganization, existing units of the consumers affairs department have been strengthened while branches of other government departments have been transferred to Mr. Basford.

Main changes announced by the minister:

—The consumer affairs branch of the department is renamed the bureau of consumer affairs and will come under Gordon Osbaldeston, formerly director-general of the old branch. Mr. Osbaldeston will be appointed an assistant deputy minister of the department.

—Formation of a new standards branch under R. W. MacLean, formerly director of the standards branch of the trade department.

The standards branch will include a former unit of the health department concerned with economic fraud in food, and sections dealing with policy problems in the fields of chemical and textile products.

—The consumer research branch under director R. W. James is to continue research into a wide variety of consumer problems and will assume the added responsibility for planning consumer programs.

—A new operations branch under K. C. Foster of Ottawa will direct the work of field units acquired from the departments of trade, agriculture and fisheries.

Mr. Foster, former special assistant to Mr. Basford, will be responsible for development of a field inspection service to protect consumers. Regional offices are to be established in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

—The service and information activities of the transferred units will come under the information branch of the consumers affairs department. Continued will be the complain service for consumers.

—A new compliance branch will be tstablished to deal with the enforcement of existing consumer protection legislation and to help develop new legislation in this line.

In his statement outlining the changes, Mr. Basford said the reorganization indicates the government's determination to "give the consumer both protection in the market place and the voice he should have in government."

Stanfield Flays Port 'Confusion'

HALIFAX (CP) — Shipping facilities on both the East and West Coasts of Canada are at a "rather critical stage," Opposition Leader Stanfield said today.

He found confusion and the lack of a proper chain of command during a recent visit to Roberts Banks in British Columbia, site of a proposed West Coast superport, he told a news conference.

He said he found the same on this coast during a tour of the Halifax waterfront today.

He said he hopes the federal government will press on with the second phase of container facilities under construction here and with consideration of the land-bridge concept of transporting cargoes rapidly from coast to coast.

SEWAGE MEET PLANNED

Saanich council will hold a special meeting Tuesday night to consider future development and sewerage policies in the municipality.

"Certain decisions and assumptions will have to be made and they will be far reaching," planner Tom Loney said Friday.

These relate to what direction Saanich is moving, planning and development policies, servicing of land and extensions of sewers.

Saanich is expected to set up a containment area into which almost all development will be funnelled.

The initial containment area is expected to be the currently-sewered area plus 3,400 acres of adjoining land to which sewers are to be extended during the next five years.

This area represents the boundaries of the sewerage enterprise which property owners gave 80 per cent approval to last month.

Planner Tom Loney said some recommendations will be presented Tuesday night as far as the ultimate containment area is concerned and development policies in both the initial containment area and areas outside it.

Australian Quake

PERTH (Reuters) — A sharp earth tremor Saturday shook this capital city of Western Australia and nearby townships. At Meckering, 80 miles east of here, the shock was described as violent.

Weekly Garbage Pickup $4 Costlier

Continuing the existing service—weekly in the summer, every two weeks in spring, fall and winter—would cost $15 a year.

Present cost is $11 a year.

The figures are quotations from the present private contract garage collection, L. S. McNutt, for service in 1969. Council has not made a decision on the new rates.

At its last meeting, council reaffirmed its earlier decision to hold a plebiscite—expression of opinion—among ratepayers at the December election.

Only one question will be asked: Do you favor weekly garbage collection throughout the year?

Council has wrestled with the garbage issue on numerous occasions in the last few years without coming to a conclusion, except to put collection frequency to ratepayers in December.

The thornier issue—to continue with the present private contractor, to call for bids or to put the municipality in the garbage business—has not been settled.

Still to be decided by council on the plebiscite is whether tenants can vote or whether it will be restricted to property owners.

Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe said a section of the Municipal Act allows council to decide, on a matter obtaining an opinion on any question, whether the vote will be among owner-electors or all voters including tenants.

The new Bonds have fourteen regular annual interest coupons which can be cashed each year as they come due. The first pays 5.75%; the second, 6.50%; the next three, 6.75% each, and the last nine a big 7.00% each. Total regular annual interest amounts to $95.50 on each $100 Bond.

If you choose you may hold all these regular annual interest coupons uncashed until your Bond matures. If you do, you will then get interest on your interest totalling an additional $54.50 on each $100 Bond.

At maturity, therefore, you can get back total interest of $150 plus your original $100 investment. This way each $100 Canada Savings Bond becomes worth $250. Other denominations can grow at the same exciting rate.

Adults, children, businesses and institutions—all may buy Canada Savings Bonds. They are available in convenient amounts of $50 up to $50,000 for cash or on instalments, wherever you work, bank or invest. And, as always, Canada Savings Bonds are cashable any time at full face value plus earned interest.

Few investments are so profitable. None builds more surely for the future. Buy Canada Savings Bonds and make your savings really grow.

Czech Refugees Celebrate in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 100 Czechoslovakian refugees arrived here by jet Sunday, just in time for a sombre celebration of their country's 50th anniversary.

They brought the total of Czech refugees in the Lower Mainland since the Russian invasion to about 300, and 500 more are expected next month.

Before the invasion, there were about 2,000 Czechs in the area.

Czechs participated in a one-day teach-in of speeches, slides and music at the University of British Columbia to mark the occasion of Czech independence.

Professor Alec Wainman of the Slavonic Studies department at UBC, who was in Yugoslavia at the time of the invasion, told how the Communist government there provided accommodation, food, gas, train and bus fare for the estimated 50,000 Czechs holidaying there so they would not have to return home.

He said it was a tremendous shock for Tito's government that one socialist country could invade another. Prof. Wainman said Yugoslavia's reaction was that the whole cause of communism in Eastern Europe had collapsed as a result of the Russian invasion.

HOME GARDEN

Storing Requires Care

By HILDA BEASTALL

Modern homes have little provision for storing fresh food crops from the garden. The coolest place in a basement may be on the floor near an outside door, but still it might be advisable to hang a thermometer a foot from the floor in that area to ascertain the difference in temperature.

Hilda

By checking the reading frequently, the variations in temperature at different times of the day and night will be discovered.

A set of rough wooden shelves could be built if a quantity of squash, pears and apples are to be kept for a few months, remembering to have them low since heat will rise to the rafters, or ceiling.

Shallow wooden boxes, resembling standard flats used for bedding plants, are useful for storing these fruits, but they must be scrubbed clean and thoroughly dried.

Apples begin to deteriorate from the outside first, progressing inward. They tend to lose their shiny appearance too.

Pears, on the other hand, may be quite soft and brown in the centre before showing any signs of softness on the outside.

While waiting for late varieties of pears to ripen in storage, it pays to select one each week to cut in half. Only in this way can the beginning gardener know how they are progressing.

Onions are another storage crop to watch carefully. These can be strung in ropes and hung from the ceiling since they will take more warmth than tree fruits.

No vegetable, except perhaps potato, has a more horrible odor when rotting that onion, so it pays to check frequently.

It is better to use a quantity of a certain fruit or vegetable while it is still in perfect condition, than to attempt keeping over the whole winter and lose half by storage rot.

Since our facilities are far from perfect, and our homes geared primarily for humans, not vegetables, it certainly is the wise gardener who safeguards his hard-won produce.

YOUR HEALTH

Pancreatitis Can Prove Serious

By Dr. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

There are two main types of pancreatitis — the acute and the chronic. Both can be serious, and are likely to be painful. The usual symptoms are sudden, severe pain in the upper-middle abdomen, nausea and vomiting, bloating and perhaps slight yellowing of the eyes. The diagnosis can often be made with the help of laboratory tests. If I had this illness, I would want quickly to get into the hands of a very able physician who is used to dealing with acute conditions of the abdomen.

Alvarez

Among prominent causes of pancreatitis are alcoholism, gallstones, peptic ulcers, pregnancy, too much fat in the blood, sometimes a blow to the abdomen and perhaps even eating a huge meal. It may be that a gallstone has somewhat plugged up the opening—into the bowel—of the tubes that carry bile from the liver, and a digestive pancreatic juice from the pancreas. Perhaps with this plugging up of the opening, some bile goes into the pancreas and irritates it. Rarely, and usually in tropical countries, a round worm plugs up the duct of the pancreas.

Of late, I think most surgeons have been inclined not to operate. Usually the patient, for a while, is given no food, and strong pain relievers must be given. Unfortunately, no definitely curative treatment is known. Cortisone-like drugs may help.

In cases of chronic pancreatitis, a surgeon may try to cure, but one never can tell if he can help. He could take the pancreas out, but that would bring a severe diabetes with a severe indigestion. When functioning normally, the pancreas does two main things: its "outer secretion" is poured into the bowel where it has much to do with the digestion of food. The so-called "inner secretion" of the pancreas is the insulin, which enables our bodies to handle sugar, and thereby keeps us from being diabetic. Obviously, pancreatitis is not a good disease to have.

The other day I spoke to a large audience in Cleveland—a fine audience made up of dedicated men and women who are interested in finding jobs for handicapped people. This is a project dear to my heart.

Around 1912, I was helping an Irish girl who, with a very crippling and painful arthritis, sat in a wheelchair all day, running the best employment agency in San Francisco. Fortunately, she could hold a telephone with the two fingers on her right hand that would work, and this, plus a fighting spirit, was all she needed to go ahead and be a success. As Harold Russell (a veteran who had his hands shot off in the war), of St. Louis, says, "It is not what you've lost, but what you have left, and how you use it, that counts."

Years later, I was helping a man in a wheelchair to stay well enough to edit a medical journal.

For 17 years in this column I have been preaching the need for "protected shops" for epileptics and people recently out of mental hospitals, who most of the time are able to work and be useful, but who still have an occasional day when their mind is not working well. In a protected shop, the workers are not fired if occasionally they have a seizure, or a day when they "hear voices."

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Quebec Conference Made Confederation

It was on Oct. 28, 1864, that Confederation delegates at the Quebec conference finished their work. They had agreed on 72 resolutions, most of them drawn up by John A. Macdonald, that provided the framework for the British North America Act passed in 1867.

The Charlottetown conference in September had been a preliminary look at the possibility of confederation of the British North American colonies. It showed that there was enough interest to get down to serious work, and so the second conference was held at Quebec beginning Oct. 10.

Charlottetown had been sociable and entertaining, Quebec had been deadly serious and hard slugging. Newfoundland, not represented at Charlottetown, sent delegates to Quebec. When the conference ended they, like most of the other delegates, were optimistic that confederation would be a reality by 1865. As it turned out Prince Edward Island did not join Canada until 1873 and Newfoundland remained independent until 1949.

MAIN PROBLEM

It might be thought that the most difficult problem of the Confederation planners was striking a balance between English and French-speaking Canadians. This was not the case. The division of powers among the federal and provincial governments was the most troublesome question.

George Etienne Cartier, leading spokesman for French Canada, said later that the idea of unity among English and French-Canadians was Utopian. There would always be distinctions. He said, however, that Britain was divided among English, Scottish, Welsh and Irish, but they were able to work together as a great nation. They felt that English and French-speaking Canadians would be able to do the same.

Other events Oct. 28:

1891—The Manitoba Separate Schools Act was declared unconstitutional and caused a political crisis in Canada.

1940—Famous Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain was sunk off Ireland after being bombed and torpedoed.

1954—RCMP Patrol Ship "St. Roch" ended Arctic service and is now on display in Vancouver.

1958—Prince Philip arried in Ottawa to preside over conference of English-speaking Union of which he is president.

Turbine Car Announced

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — Racing car builder Andy Granatelli has announced plans to market a custom-built, turbine-powered passenger car.

Granatelli introduced a turbine-powered racing car three years ago. The turbines have been designed and built by United Aircraft Ltd. of Montreal, but marketed in the U.S. through Pratt and Whitney.

The new turbine-powered passenger vehicle, Granatelli said, will use the chassis of one of the America's luxury cars, will use the chassis of one of has not yet been made.

Granatelli said the cars will cost about $30,000.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-voulme set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Karen Anne Cox, age 13, of Watonga, Oklahoma, for her question:

What exactly is the DNA molecule?

Future historians may write of our times as the early beginnings of true human civilization. They may see us as awaking from the long nightmare of slavery under the hostile laws of nature. If so, they may pinpoint the dawn of true civilization with the discovery of the miraculous molecule we call DNA.

A molecule is a glued package of neatly interlocked atoms. In most non-living substances, single molecules throng together to form solids, liquids and gases. Plants and animals form more complex materials of small molecults linked together in long, durable chains. These super giant molecules form hydrocarbon chemicals made from chains of packages containing atoms of hydrogen, carbon and other basic elements. We call such giant molecules polymers. Our clever chemists have learned how to assemble many more useful polymers than nature creates. We use them to make our wondrous assortment of plastics.

The fascinating new fields of molecular biology and X-ray crystallography explore the living cell for more miraculous polymers. The cell is a semi-fluid unit of turbulent chemical activity. But its hard core is a quiet, tiny nucleus. This is the centre that orders and directs the busy cellular activity. Here we find the genes and chromosomes that carry the blueprint of instructions inherited from generation to generation. In the last decade, researchers found the very mollecult that carries these detailed instructions of biological features and behavior, health and disease and even mental tendencies. They called this polymer substance deoxyribonucleic acid — and shortened the name to DNA.

Code of Life

The DNA polymer is a sort of rope ladder structure with a series of rungs linking its two stringy sides. The pliable structure is twisted in a spiral shape called a double helix. The basic ingredients are atoms of common elements packaged in small, fairly simple molecules. But the arrangement of these molecules is neither common nor simple. It forms the miraculous substance that governs the vital processes of life in every plant and animal cell. The sides of the ropy ladder are molecules of simple sugars and phosphates. The rungs are nitrogen compounds called bases.

Only four different bases are used to link the DNA polymer. They are chemical compounds called adenine and thymine, cytosine and guanine. Scientists shorten their names to A and T, C and G. Each rung is a link of two different bases. But A locks only with T and C links only with G. A rung may be TA or AT, CG or GC. These four ties can be arranged in countless different series — for example two ATs followed by six GCs, another AT, a CG and two TAs and so on. The order of the bases carries the coded blueprint of life processes in DNA. One human DNA molecule may contain 10,000 rungs. The spiralled and tightly folded DNA in the tiny nucleus of one human cell is about a yard long. The total ladder of DNA in a man's body is about 10 billion miles.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Bill Thomas, age 10, of Lansing, Michigan, for his question:

Why doesn't the sky end?

When a young space-ager looks up at the sky he knows that he is gazing out through the faraway reaches of space. He also knows that every day the earth spins around and every hour the sky brings him a changing view of the heavens. He also knows that every year the earth rolls in a wide orbit around the sun. It changes its place in the sky and the changing seasons show different things in the sky, different view of the vast reaches of outer space. These changes repeat and repeat in daily and yearly cycles of circles. But the heavenly parade never ends. There seems to be no end at all to the sky above.

Sooner or later, every young space-ager wonders about this question. And even the best brains in the world cannot answer it. Super telescopes and radiotelescopes have probed zillions of miles in all directions, far, far beyond what our eyes can see. But they have found no end to the sky. Wherever you stand on the round globe, the endless sky reaches from horizon to horizon. What's more, if the spacious sky did have an end, we humans would ask what is on the other side. Perhaps the human brain could not imagine the end of outer space — but at present we do not know whether it ever ends.

Unquestionably Competent To Stand Beside Finest

Program—
Weber .... Oberon—Overture
Beethoven ...... Concerto No. 5, E Flat Major (Emperor)
Sibelius .... Symphony No. 5, E Flat Major, Op. 82

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Beethoven's 5th Piano Concerto is a leading favorite with pianists and their audiences. At least one version of it is likely to be found in every record collection.

So there is something momentous in hearing an 18-year-old girl give a reading of it more musical and more perceptively thought out than is by any means always the case.

Camille Inkman is the first Victoria student to be selected to appear with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra in a regular series pair of concerts.

On Sunday afternoon at the Royal Theatre, with Laszlo Gati conducting, Camille gave a poised performance and proved herself unquestionably competent to stand beside some of the finest of the young international artists who have played here.

Technically, the scope of the concerto holds no anxieties for her. She builds climaxes well and with authority, her passage work is fluent and beautifully disciplined, and the whole effect is clean, quite effortless and rhythmically secure.

There must be some growth before the full stature of the "Emperor" is within her grasp, but on the other hand, Miss Inkman indicates clearly that she has the vision and the understanding and is well aware of the direction she must take.

The beauty of the slow movement alone is enough to reveal her exceptional promise as an artist. A fine legato touch caresses the tone, there is a quiet sustained mood of reflection, a most subtle use of rubato.

At the moment Miss Inkman lacks the showmanlike aspect of the concert virtuoso, but this is more easily acquired, being an external factor, than what she has in abundance, which is the power to be musically fully committed—to let the music speak through her gifted hands.

Mr. Gati conducted the performance sympathetically, revealing a warm personal appreciation of the young artist.

Major share of the intrduction lies with the orchestra and this was handled well on Sunday. As the movement progressed there were some uncertainties now and then, mostly in rhythmic progressions, and a little occasional faulty intonation among the woodwinds.

As far as balance between soloist and orchestra was concerned, however, this had improved on in contrast to the last occasion with Steven Staryk.

To open this pair of programs, Weber's Oberon Overture is played and comes off well, the contrasts in mood and the romantic drama of the piece being effectively stated.

On such a program, Sibelius' Fifth Symphony offers so complete a contrast in form and style (if not in tonality) that it challenges the listener as well as conductor and orchestra.

Mr. Gati succeeds in developing some subtle and different ranges of orchestral color. The strings shimmer ephemerally, the horns brood (much improvement here), the solo bassoon speaks well in the first movement. There was also some elegant fluting on Sunday and the brass contributed magnificently to a stirring finale.

This concert is one not to be missed. It will be repeated tonight at 8:30.

City Census Figures Show Switch in Living Habits

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A massive switch in living habits is shown in detailed census figures recently received in Greater Victoria.

Figures show that the number of single-family dwellings increased by nine per cent between 1961 and 1966 while the number of apartments soared by 41 per cent.

In 1961, there were 35,747 houses in Greater Victoria and 9,295 apartments. In 1966, there were 38,989 houses and 13,188 apartments.

The census figures are being studied by Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board.

Most of the apartments built in that period were in Victoria — along Cook Street, towards Oak Bay and the high-rises in James Bay.

Mr. Roberts said there were some apartments built in Esquimalt and "not too many" in Saanich.

He said no breakdown is given on who moved to the apartments — whether they formerly lived in houses or whether they moved directly into apartments after coming to Victoria to live.

Part of this picture will be known next month when he presents the initial statistics on a retirement study undertaken by the planning board.

Mr. Roberts said retired persons form the majority of those who live in apartments.

POLLUTION IS EVERYBODY'S PROBLEM

The Adult Education Division, Greater Victoria School Board, presents the third session of the current series of seven lectures dealing with "The Local Sewage and Garbage Disposal Problem"—October 30th, 8:00 to 10:00 p.m., in the Ewing Building, Lansdowne at Richmond. Guest speakers will be Dr. M. Waldichuk, Oceanographer, Research Laboratory, Dept. of Fisheries, Nanaimo, and Dr. A. P. Austin, Ecologist, Dept. of Biology, University of Victoria. Fee for remainder of series—$5.00; for single sessions—$1.50. Registration at the door. Plan to attend this and subsequent Wednesday evening sessions in this interesting series.

Forced Sterilization For Next Generation?

By ROSEMARY SPEIRS

TORONTO (CP) — The next generation of Canadians may have to enforce birth control by compulsory sterilization, Hugh Keenleyside, chairman of the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, warned Sunday night.

Addressing a University of Toronto teach-in on the population crisis, Mr. Keenleyside and Ian McTaggart-Cowan, a Vancouver zoologist, both urged Canadians to control their own population size while increasing aid to starving countries of the world.

"In this generation we face the two greatest dangers in human history, nuclear weapons which could wipe out all humanity and population growth which, unchecked, will make life unbearable," Mr. Keenleyside said.

"The bomb and the womb must be both controlled."

Mr. Keenleyside, former director-general of the United Nations' technical assistance administration, criticized Canada's failure to provide leadership in helping other nations control their "spawning populations."

While he spoke, an electronic sign behind his podium increased world population figures by 10 every five seconds as it ticked off the human race's progress towards a total of about 3,500,000,000 by the end of the teach-in. During his 20-minute speech the figure increased by 2,400.

URGES RESEARCH

Warning that production of food is not keeping ahead of population increases, Mr. Keenleyside suggested Canada could devote "a significant amount of money" to research on population control.

If present trends continue, children of young people in this audience will be faced with the necessity of enforcing birth control through the compulsory sterilization of a vast number of their fellow human beings," he said.

"Alternatively of course your children or grandchildren may decide to let the babies be born and get rid of them afterwards.

"All of this sounds horrible but the prospect is horrible unless we act both sensibly and soon."

Mr. McTaggart-Cowan, dean of graduate studies at the University of British Columbia, said Canadians are turning their rivers into open sewers and steadily destroying their environment with wastes.

What they should be doing is controlling their own population, learning to handle pollution problems and producing as much food as possible to feed less fortunate abroad, he said.

"Only a very small part of Canada can be effectively used for food production," Mr. McTaggart-Cowan said.

"Yet this is part of our trust to the world's hungry as mankind desperately fights famine. We should use our trust to buy a little time for others.

"Year after year I watch the city of Vancouver sprawling onto the rich delta lands of the Fraser River, the small towns of the Okanagan Valley becoming larger at the expense of fertile orchards, the Niagara Peninsula disappearing under tons of concrete and asphalt."

The Fraser was "probably the greatest fish carrying river in the world," but engineers repeatedly propose that the river be dammed at its mouth for hydroelectric development, he said.

Water itself was being wasted: "Do we have to use 2½ gallons of water to flush away six ounces of urine when there is a world shortage of water in large parts of the world."

Mr. McTaggart-Cowan said the Canadian approach to disposal of wastes is to dump them in the most convenient stream or lake.

"Are we going to live like parasites on our host earth until we eventually destroy it?" he

Decade Left To Solve Food Lack

TORONTO (CP) — The human race has 10 years to solve its food shortage problems or face extinction, an American food expert told the University of Toronto teach-in on the population crisis Sunday.

Instead of launching a massive program to find food for an exploding world population, the "have" nations continue trade patterns "that present the absurd spectacle of the hungry feeding the rich and well-satisfied" said George Borgstrom.

English economist Colin Clark said the world could produce food for more than 10 times its present population and that population growth is any nation's requisite for economic growth.

Mr. Clark, a member of the Economic Research Institute of Oxford University, drew hisses from a mainly-student audience of about 1,500 when he said he was a member of the Pope's consultative committee on birth control and suggested that use of contraceptives is an immoral thwarting of God's purposes.

He said a nation's influence in this world depends on the size of its population. Historically, periods of economic growth, as well as political and cultural advance, had resulted from rapid population growth.

Probe Told Rural Housing Needs Help

By CARL MOLLINS

WINNIPEG (CP) — The federal housing inquiry moved to the Prairies today and ran into Western plain-talk about modern homesteading—especially what's wrong with it.

A rare plea on behalf of non-farm country dwellers was featured in a Manitoba government brief prepared for submission personally to Transport Minister Hellyer, whose seven-member inquiry has been hearing mainly about city slums and suburban growth in its first six weeks.

Dr. George Johnson, provincial minister of health and social services, calls for planning programs and "some special assistance" apart from public housing and government mortgages for rural non-farm development.

The provincial brief, released in advance of submission, also says special help is needed for Metis people living in remote rural slums.

Manitoba statistics show that, while five per cent of the homes in metropolitan Winnipeg need major repair, 12.3 per cent of rural dwellings are in the same category.

Likewise, only 2.2 per cent of Winnipeg dwellings but 11.4 per cent in the country are overcrowded.

NEED PLANNING

"The problems are not such that they require the massive machinery set up to provide public housing and urban renewal for blighted urban centres," said Dr. Johnson's brief. "The need is mainly for planning and some special assistance for (rural) planning."

For Metis living in remote Manitoba communities, the provincial brief says training and social-aid programs are bound to fail unless adequate housing is emphasized.

"Many Metis communities are primitive in the extreme," Dr. Johnson says. "There is no sewer or water and very often no hydro or telephone.

"To expect to upgrade Metis people will require in many cases that entire families be moved and provided with adequate housing for the period of their training."

In Winnipeg, says the brief, city-centre development is needed. But the wording of the National Housing Act seems to rule out financial assistance for the necessary land assembly and construction of multiple-family dwellings.

The Manitoba Association of Architects, in a submission also released in advance, denounces present federal housing assistance on the grounds it disregards regional differences.

In all, 14 formal presentations were listed for just 6½ hours of public hearings by the housing inquiry in Winnipeg.

NEWCOMER TO BALLOT WINS IN ESQUIMALT

Arthur Cuthbert, 1147 Wychbury, has been elected alderman in Esquimalt.

Mr. Cuthbert won the municipal byelection Saturday to fill the council seat vacated by alderman Gerald Horne who has accepted a teaching post in Nigeria.

Mr. Cuthbert, a newcomer to politics, polled 592 votes.

He was followed by Dr. J. W. Rogers, a navy surgeon, with 545.

Third in the race was A. R. Mebs, a former alderman, with 384. Last place went to Fred A. Dunford, principal of the B.C. Vocational School in Victoria, with 303.

The 1,824 votes cast in the election represented about 41 per cent of the eligible voters.

Prehistoric Tools Found On Prairies

SASKATOON (CP) — Evidence of prehistoric man, believed as old as any in North America, was uncovered during the weekend by crews working in a sandpit.

Anthropologist Z. S. Pohorecky said fragments of sharpened tools were found next to remains of a prehistoric woolley mammoth and a horse, in a region where human existence previously was thought impossible.

Prof. Pohorecky, head of the University of Saskatchewan's anthropology and archeology department here, said the remains are in what may be a camp site and could yield more finds.

He said in an interview Sunday the mammoth and horse have been positively identified. They were in soil layers far predating the last ice age, 12,000 years ago.

The find was just above a layer which radiocarbon analysis has dated at 38,000 years old, and beneath another which is at least 18,000 years old.

Prof. Pohorecky, the project director, said a blade fragment was found directly associated with the mammoth bones, and nearby a fragment which apparently was some form of scraper was found near the prehistoric horse.

"It had been assumed that man could not have lived in this area then. But now we have a date as old as anything in North America . . ., including Nevada, Texas, California or Washington State."

PREVIOUS FIND

He said a previous find of animal bones was made there about 12 years ago, but recent sand excavations, for a $2 million highway interchange, have moved 50 times more overburden material than at any previous time.

Prof. Pohorecky said the tool fragments, and what may be a drill, appear to have been smoothed or blasted by sand, giving the surfaces a shiny texture.

Microscopic tests will be needed to determine whether the drill-shaped device is man-made or formed by natural forces.

He said construction work on the 30-foot excavation has been halted and provincial resources authorities will be asked to declare it a protected site.

The designation would allow use of the sandpit by the construction firm but prevent them from digging in areas where the excavation is under way.

Archeologists were at the site shortly after workmen found bone remains late Friday, and the first significant finds were made Sunday.

One archeology student at the site said that workmen had taken home some of the curiously-shaped bones, apparently not realizing their significance. Most have been recovered.

Prof. Pohorecky said teams of students, geologists and archeology experts will comb the site.

GERMAN RUNS 'DEATH STRIP'

BERLIN (AP) — Police said a 25-year-old East German man escaped over the Berlin wall's "death strip" Saturday this way: Carrying his own ladder, he climbed two wire barriers, ran 30 yards past iron tank barriers and climbed over the 10-foot wall.

East German guards fired, but missed him as he went over a section of wall where seven fellow countrymen have been killed attempting to escape.

DISTEMPER OF OUR TIMES

By PETER C. NEWMAN

(This is the first of 12 articles condensed from "The Distemper of Our Times", the exciting new book on the Pearson era by noted Ottawa commentator Peter C. Newman.)

Just after Pierre Elliott Trudeau was sworn in as the fifteenth Prime Minister of Canada, I left his House of Commons office, a tape-recording of a long conversation with him under my arm, and walked into an April evening feeling the exhilaration of expectation that was so common in Canada that spring.

Newman

I was working on this book at the time so the events of the previous five years were very much in my mind and it suddenly occurred to me just how long it had been since I, or anyone I knew, had felt this optimistic quickening of interest in national affairs. For half a decade, most of the people I had talked to had been voicing — some eloquently, some awkwardly—a kind of dismay and frustration with our politics that was hardening into cynicism and despair.

They seemed to be experiencing an alienation they had never known before.

The Distemper of Our Times is a chronicle of that alienation between the politicians and the people which marked Canadian history from the collapse of the Diefenbaker administration in February of 1963 to Trudeau's assumption of power in April of 1968.

During that unsettled period Canada, which had always been blessed with more geography than history, fell at last into the grip of both. We had spent a hundred years trying to become a nation, now we were a nation and it was hell.

It was a time of national distemper. A time when the political affairs of the country were in such a state of disorder that there was something faintly absurdist about their unfolding, a time when many Canadians were left with the feeling that much of what was happening had no meaning and that all they could do was ask themselves a series of unanswerable questions: Is the country being governed by fools?

Or is it ungovernable? Has our good luck, taken for granted for so long, run out? Can't we just forget about the politicians and get on with our lives? Oh God!

We were only dimly aware that we were enduring the pains of passage from the safety of the past to we knew not what. The politics of the period was essentially a politics of transition.

Although he could not know it at the time of his hopeful beginnings, Pearson was to be caught throughout his stewardship between a New Canada quixotically seeking a political midwife to be born and an Old Canada stubbornly refusing to disappear. For five hectic years he found himself suspended between two worlds, a moderate confronted with radical facts.

His term in power coincided with a profound shift in the country's social, economic, political, constitutional and moral climate.

Although his government pushed through the House of Commons many useful, if ill-co-ordinated new laws, the impact of each legislative accomplishment was obscured by yet another spectacular failure of spirit or method.

So Lester Pearson, instead of being able to govern wisely and well had the misfortune to appear during most of his tenure in office as a confused and inept politician, harassed by an acceleration of events beyond his capacity for decisive action.

Many of the tensions that plagued Lester Pearson's time in office were legacies from his predecessor, John Diefenbaker. But the two seasons in Canadian politics were as different as the men who gave them their labels.

The Diefenbaker Years resembled nothing so much as the voyage of the Titanic — and inevitable rush to disaster, with the ship of state sinking at the end in a galaxy of fireworks, brass band playing and the captain shouting hysterical orders to crewmen who had long since jumped overboard.

The Pearson period, in contrast, was more like the voyage of some peeling, once-proud, now leaky excursion steamer, lurching from port to port, with the captain making up the schedule as he went along, too busy keeping afloat to spend much time on the bridge.

Canadian politics between 1957 and 1963 was essentially the story of what happened to one gigantic figure, John Diefenbaker. But Canadian politics between 1963 and 1968 was dominated by a tumble of events rather than by the personality or fate of any one man.

Events shaped men and events in conflict shaped one another: Lester Pearson did battle with John Diefenbaker; the Conservative Party endured internal intrigues almost Byzantine in their flavor; the French rose up against the English; provincial governments challenged the federal authority; Walter Gordon lashed out against American domination of the Canadian economy, and Pierre Trudeau conquered the Liberal Party.

At the same time, nearly every aspect of Canadian life was in ferment. The church, our long-praised phlegmatic stability, the old idea of allegiance to Empire, all the

Observer Team Raked

By JOHN BEST

LAGOS (CP) — The future of the international observer operation for Nigeria was surrounded by uncertain today following an unprecedented attack on some of the observers by the country's most celebrated soldier, Col. Benjamin (Black Scorpion) Adekunle.

Among the observers tongue-lashed was Canada's Lt.-Col. F. B. M. (Bert) Pinnington, 42, of Cobalt, Ont.

Adekunle, 30-year-old Sandhurst graduate and the ablest federal field commander in the Nigerian civil war, attacked the observers personally and made uncomplimentary remarks about their countries.

His main complaint seemed to be that the observers insisted on doing things their own way and were unwilling to accept the program laid out for them.

KEEP TO SCHEDULE

For a time today, the observers appeared on the verge of cutting short by one day their stay in the 3rd Division sector which Adekunle commands, and flying back to Lagos, the federal capital, immediately.

But after lengthy discussions they decided to go through, with

Czech March Defies Russia

Leaders Fear Shouts Will Bring Red Tanks

Times News Services

PRAGUE — Thousands of youthful Czechoslovaks broke through police barriers today and marched on Hradcin Castle, shouting "Russians go home".

Tense officials were worried that the demonstration might bring Soviet troops now on the outskirts of the city, back into the centre of town.

As the nation began its 50th anniversary celebrations, a group of several hundred Czechs marched to the gates of the castle chanting: "Better dead than shame."

Then about 3,000 persons, most of them young, marched behind leaders carrying the Czechoslovak flag from Wenceslas Square in the heart of the capital toward the city's historic Old Town's square.

It was the first time since the Soviet-led military invasion in August that Czechoslovaks had staged a public demonstration in Prague.

The demonstrators who marched on the presidential castle pushed on the locked iron gates several times in an attempt to break in.

MINOR SCUFFLES OCCUR

There were minor scuffles as the demonstrators crashed against police lines at the castle overlooking Prague and against the tall iron gates but no injuries were reported.

At the castle and later at Wenceslas Square, demonstrators climbed statues and planted Czechoslovak flags atop them.

Police and palace guards managed to keep the gates closed against several attempts by the demonstrators to break in. The crowd then settled down and began joking and laughing. The roaring laughter could be heard inside the castle.

Police tried to block off roads leading to the castle, where party, state and government leaders were meeting to commemorate the country's jubilee. On Sunday, the officials voted to make Czechoslovakia into a federation of Czech and Slovak states, still united under the Prague government but less tightly controlled.

UN Member Quits Party

QUEBEC (CP) — Dr. Gaston Tremblay, member of the legislative assembly for Montmorency, quit the Union Nationale party Sunday, charging the party "deceived, disappointed and betrayed" some of its supporters.

Dr. Tremblay said he will sit in the legislature as a member of the Christian Nationalist Party.

Two Boys Ended Life . . . As They Lived It

By PETE LOUDON

They attended school together and did things together and some said they even looked alike.

Saturday night they were struck down by a car. And Sunday morning at about 6:35, they died together at St. Joseph's Hospital.

They were the fourth and fifth to die in Island traffic accidents this weekend. (See page 19.)

On Saturday afternoon Ricky, 9, and his mother, a brother and two sisters were visiting at the Isacson home at 6 Price Road. When Mrs. Scheeren decided to drive to Langford to pick up Mr. Scheeren where he was building their new house, the boys declined the ride.

SLEEP AT MOTEL

They said they'd walk to the Scheeren's temporary home at Cambridge Motel, 345 Old Island Highway. They set out pushing Ricky's bike. They planned to sleep there that night and were excited about it.

But on the highway between Price Road and Prince Robert Drive they were hit by a car.

Colwood RCMP report that at 4:15 p.m. a passing motorist, Dave Brooks of 3111 Service, chanced to see the taillights of a car in the roadside bush.

PINNED UNDER CAR

He investigated and found Brian Worswick, 22, of 435 Head Street injured and pinned under the vehicle. Mr. Brooks stopped other motorists and while some directed traffic others set about freeing Mr. Worswick.

The rescuers had to cut down two eight-inch trees to get the car out. It took about 14 men to lift it off the injured driver. It was then the two boys were found in the ditch, on the opposite side of the road, a distance apart and seriously injured.

The boys and the driver were rushed to hospital. It was expected Mr. Worswick could be released today and police planned to question him this afternoon.

Meantime, police say not one witness to the accident has been located. They say traffic is heavy on that road Saturday afternoons. They've issued a call for any witnesses to come forward.

A grim sidelight to the story was that Mr. and Mrs. Scheeren, on their way home from Langford, passed the accident scene and noted the damaged car. Only after they were home did they learn of Ricky's involvement.

Friends of the families said the boys' fathers are F. Raymond Isacson, 6 Price, a long-time employee of Greater Victoria Water District, and Peter Scheeren, a foreman of Smith Cedar Products Ltd.

The Scheerens have three surviving children, the Isacsons one surving child.

Friends said the boys had promised to walk with their bike and quoted Mr. Scheeren as saying, "We were very strict about that."

While it still isn't known on which side of the road they were walking, the boys would have to cross the highway twice in order to walk on the left.

SLIDE MARK

A coroner's inquest was expected to be announced later today and pending a decision on the date, tentative funeral arrangements have been made with Sands Funeral Chapel, Colwood, for Saturday.

The single funeral will be for both boys — together.

Red Tape Cut To Help Needy

By W. RALPH THOMAS

Assistance rendered to the needy by the St. Vincent de Paul Society is charity in the truest sense.

In cases of desperate need where official welfare agencies are slowed by their bureaucratic structures, the little volunteer agency moves in and brings immediate relief.

Society president Frank Rushton says the role of the society is to supplement the services of official agencies.

It deals primarily with the tarpaper shack element and the indigent transient population, but it also helps ordinary families whose fortunes have taken a turn for the worse.

Although many of its cases are hopeless causes, the agency's philosophy says that no person or family shall be refused if they ask for help.

The 30 or so volunteer Vincentians supply food, clothing, shelter and encouragement to the downtrodden, the helpless and the luckless. They adopt families, offering tangible and moral support. They care about the friendless and the penniless.

Since it was formed 32 years ago, the Victoria branch of the St. Vincent de Paul Society has helped thousands of people in hundreds of ways.

In 1967 alone it handled 651 cases, supplying 609 hot meals and 870 nights of lodging to transients. It provided 2,750 quarts of milk for families with young children and provided groceries for 239 families.

Besides this, the society paid fuel bills, supplemented rents, and gave clothing to the needy.

It is a Catholic organization, but Mr. Rushton says the society's concern is for the whole community.

"We attend to all denominations," he said. "We don't ask people their religion when they want help. As long as there is a need, we'll help anyone."

This year the Community Chest will give $5,570 to the St. Vincent de Paul Society. The society's volunteer workers will raise the other $3,000 of their estimated budget.

Every penny of this budget will be spent to relieve some of the many small miseries tucked beneath Victoria's affluent veneer.

Reds Fire On Ship

HONG KONG (AP) — Two Communist Chinese gunboats circled and then fired three warning flares across the bow of a U.S. freighter off Chinese-held islands near Hong Kong today.

LONDON POLICEMEN HANDLE PROTESTERS

LONDON (CP) — Police Sunday contained and controlled the largest demonstrations against the Vietnam war ever held here.

Police estimated about 30,000 persons marched through London, all but a few hundred peacefully. Some 7,000 demonstrated in Grosvenor Square, site of the American Embassy, and 200 to 300 extremists broke away for a flying wedge attack on the big white building.

As thick cordons of police barred their way, the red-helmeted Maoists and anarchists threw firecrackers at mounted police waiting in reserve. Some hurled banner poles as spears. Then they charged the police lines with iron pipes.

The police slowly pushed and shoved the militants back without using nightsticks, penning them into the southwest corner of the square and stopping any attempt to break out. Gradually the young demonstrators ran out of steam and drifted away. London was quiet again by 9 p.m.

Casualty figures were low. Five policemen and about 40 demonstrators received medical treatment, although hundreds more had minor cuts and bruises.

HAD SOME 'WEAPONS'

Thirty-nine demonstrators were arrested for carrying chains, sticks and bottles as "offensive weapons" and for a brief burst of window-smashing and bottle-throwing in the exclusive Mayfair district around the embassy as the crowd broke up.

Defending the British tradition of peaceful protest, Home Secretary James Callaghan had resisted strong pressure to ban the demonstration. He stood behind the police cordons in Grosvenor Square and told one detachment: "Well done, lads. Thank you all very much."

Later Callaghan issued a statement:

"This was a demonstration of British good sense. Self-control was shown by the mass of demonstrators, and by the police who remained completely calm under the provocation of disorderly charging. I doubt this sort of demonstration could have taken place as peacefully in any other part of the world."

Peaceniks March Peacefully

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vietnam war protesters were out in force during the weekend and most of the demonstrations were peaceful.

In Toronto Saturday, 34 persons were arrested — 28 men, four women and two juveniles — but in other cities across Canada things were realtively quiet.

Twenty-five arrests were made outside the United States consulate on University Avenue where about 300 demonstrators, organized by Canadians for the National Liberation Front turned up as well as members of the Union of American Exiles and the right-wing Edmund Burke Society.

Others were arrested when a group, estimated at 1,500 and organized by the Vietnam Mobilization Committee, tried to march south on Younge Street from Queen's Park, seat of the provincial government.

The marchers tried to reach city hall on Toronto's main thoroughfare, but were met by 21 mounted police and about 30 officers on foot.

In Vancouver, more than 1,500 persons marched downtown and police said it was one of the largest anti-war rallies ever held in the city.

About 250 anti-war demonstrators turned up at the U.S. consulate in Winnipeg, even though organizers had expected about 1,500.

In Ottawa, some 125 demonstrators staged an orderly march from the Supreme Court building to Parliament Hill and in Calgary about 75 persons spent three hours in front of the U.S. consulate.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade and export interest was light today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with prices moving narrowly.

Rye drew a small amount of export interest at levels below the Winnipeg market in an otherwise inter-month spreading operation.

Confirmation was received during the weekend of a sale of 1 million bushels of No. 2 northern wheat to Japan. Reports also listed Japan as a buyer of 1.2 million bushels of wheat from the United States and 1.4 million from Australia.

No information was available on export loadings of Canadian wheat.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans futures declined along with wheat prices on the Board of Trade Monday, but most other grain contracts maintained some firmness.

Trade had opened on a good pace but later appeared to slow.

An improvement in the movement of soybeans from farms to marketplaces in recent days was a factor in active selling on the opening, from which soybeans prices failed to generate an advance.

CPA Announces Testing Station

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Pacific Airlines has announced plans to build a $4 million overhaul and testing station here by late 1969 to service jet aircraft.

An airline spokesman said during the weekend the facility will be an integral part of a $24 million CPA operations centre under construction at Vancouver International Airport and due for completion next spring.

Growth of the airline's jet fleet to 11 planes, with more on order, made it economical for the company to do its own fleet maintenance, currently under contract by Air Canada and United Aircraft Ltd. at Montreal, the company said.

Fish Exports May Be Hurt

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The Canadian government has told the European Common Market that a proposed community regulation on fish imports could jeopardize tariff concessions granted to Canada under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Informed sources said today that Ottawa had submitted a memorandum to the Common Market's executive commission expressing concern that the draft regulation provides for the issuing of import certificates for certain products, the range of which could be extended by the council of ministers.

These products, which Canada fears could include Canadian salmon, would be subject to a minimum price and community importers would have to put down a deposit on them.

The memorandum also says Canada is worried that Common Market plans for export rebates to help sell community surpluses in time of a trade crisis could hit Canadian fish meal exports, the sources said.

Czechs Lag In Economy

MOSCOW (AP) — Western experts say it looks as though Czechoslovakia helped cause a slowdown in the growth of the Soviet economy.

The latest statistics show the growth rate for industrial output falling to 8.2 per cent for the third quarter, compared with 9.3 per cent for the first quarter and nine per cent for the second quarter.

Western experts said the massive diversion of transport and resources required by the military action in August contributed to the increasing poor showing of the economy. They also cited troubles with economic reforms.

The experts noted that a slowdown also was revealed in labor productivity figures, where there was a drop from 6.1 per cent for the first quarter to 5.7 per cent for the second quarter and five per cent for the third quarter.

Abitibi Paper

Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. Friday reported net earnings from operation of $7.15 million or 39 cents a share for the first nine months of 1968, down from $9.94 million or 57 cents a share for the similar period in 1967.

Net sales for the nine-month period were $188 million, compared with $255 million in 1967.

The company attributed increased sales to subsidiaries acquired during the past year, and labor problems for the decline in earnings.

Vancouver Sales Soar

VANCOUVER — Sales on the Vancouver Stock Exchange soared to 3 million in heavy pre-noon trading today. First-hour trading accounted for more than a million shares.

AT VANCOUVER, volume leaders in the mines were Galaxy, Adera, Copper Ridge and Silver Arrow. Galaxy traded 375,000 shares and gained .26 at $1.23. Silver Arrow gained .09 to .50 on trades of 356,300.

Sparton Explorations, a new listing, came on the board at $1.75. Magnum lost 40 at $3.60 and Lornex was off .25 at $9.50.

In the oils, Bata put on .80 at $3.50 on trades of 166,300. Stampede added $1.20 at $6.40 and Allied Roxana gained .06 at $1.45.

The big oil play reportedly involves reports of a gas well in the Strachan area of Alberta where Bata and Stampede have property and the proposed merger of Stampede and Bata.

Captain International lost .25 at $12; Capital Estate was off .50 at $3.50 and E. D. P. gained .25 at $23.50 in the industrials.

AT TORONTO, on index, industrials dropped .30 to 173.73, golds rose .68 to 206.40, base metals slid 39 to 113.76 and western oils advanced .90 to 231.24.

Final volume was 4,114,000 shares compared with 4,204,000 Friday.

In industrials, Great West Life fell 2⅛ to 68, Imperial Oil 2 to 76⅝, Ocean Cement 1⅝ to 24½ and Sayvette ⅝ to 7. Seaway Hotels gained 7⅝ to 33⅝, Dylex Diversified 5⅛ to 54 and Oshawa A 1⅜ to 41⅝.

Dome Pete rose 2⅝ to 82⅝, Asamera 85 cents to $8.50 and Canadian Export Gas 60 cents to $9.50.

Pine Point dropped 1¼ to 45½, Patino 1⅛ to 37¼ and Preston ⅜ to 22⅝. Bethlehem Copper was up ⅜ to 14½ and Sullivan 60 cents to $5.25.

AT NEW YORK, Eastern Airlines, edging higher, paced the list on activity. It was boosted by a block of 57,200 shares.

Also active IBM dropped 5, and Texas Gulf Sulphur rose about 2.

In Canadians, Dome was up ¾, Granby ⅞, Canadian Pacific ¼ and Alcan ¼. Massey lost ⅛ and Hudson Bay and Inco ⅛.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Among Canadians, Jupiter was up ¼ and Canadian Marconi ⅛. Preston lost ¼ and Scurry Rainbow ⅝.

AT MONTREAL, Credit Foncier plunged 9 to 57 on only 34 shares.

Canadian Breweries fell ⅜ to 9 on 13,654 shares. Rothmans of Pall Mall, which holds an 11-per-cent interest in Canadian Breweries, said it has cancelled plans to make an offer for additional shares of the brewing firm.

In senior oils, Imperial lost 1⅝ to 77. In senior mines, Noranda added ⅜ to 57½ and Falconbridge ½ to 96½. Hudson Bay Mining fell ⅛ to 71 and Inco ¼ to 40⅝.

North American Rare Metals added 2 cents to 98 cents on 159,700 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

AT LONDON the stock market opened on a firm note today with leading industrials higher. The tightening of sterling finance affected sentiment in gilts and prices were off.

Among Canadians, Dome rose three points to 214. Others to advance were Canadian Husky, Power Corp and Syracuse. Noranda and Imperial Oil both shed $2. Canadian Imperial dropped 6 shillings to 191 and Toronto Dominion lost nearly 3 shillings. Bank of Montreal picked up ninepence.

U.K. Gives Rush Aid For Appeal

LONDON (CP) — Baron Parker of Waddington, lord chief justice of England, today granted legal aid to Myer Rush on his appeal against extradition to Canada to face a $100 million stock fraud conspiracy charge.

That means a government-appointed lawyer, probably Sir Peter Rawlinson, Rush's former lawyer, will fight the Toronto stock promoter's case in the appeal court with the public treasury picking up the tab.

Lord Parker, sitting with justices Sir John Ashworth and Sir John Willis, decided on legal aid after Rush said he had no funds to pay solicitors.

Churchill Falls Tops In Battle of Dams

VANCOUVER (CP) — There's a battle of statistics being waged between directors of the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority and backers of the Churchill Falls power project in Labrador over who's got the biggest and best dams being built.

And it looks as if, for the first time in a generation, B.C. will come out at the short end of the statistical stick.

B.C. Hydro now proudly claims the largest underground powerhouse in the world at its Peace River project. But the honor will be short-lived.

The Churchill Falls (Labrador) Corp. Ltd.'s project in the wilds of Labrador involves an underground setup that will leave B.C. second-best.

The first generators of the Peace River project started officially this fall. B.C. Hydro, a Crown-owned corporation, is spending about $485,000,000 to create the W. A. C. Bennett Dam and, eventually, the largest lake in the province, covering about 680 square miles.

BATTLE OF FIGURES

The Peace River underground powerhouse is 890 feet long, 67 feet wide and 153 feet high, and sits at its deepest about 650 feet below the surface.

Three 227,000-kilowatt generators were tested during the summer and total capacity if 10 generators are installed will be 2,300,000 kilowatts.

Water from the Peace River reservoir will drop through 10 penstocks.

The Churchill Falls Corp. expects to start delivering power in 1972 with installation of 11 generators to turn out 5,200,000 kilowatts by 1976. The project has a $900,000,000 price tag.

The Churchill Falls powerhouse will be 972 feet long, 81 feet wide and 164 feet high. At its deepest, the powerhouse will be 984 feet below the surface. It will create a reservoir 2,400 square miles in size.

The Churchill Falls Corp. will use 475,000-kilowatt generators—twice the size of those at the Peace River project.

All of which has B.C. power experts looking seriously at the Liard River in the northern part of the province as the next major Canadian project.

PM Indicates Tax Cuts For Rich

HALIFAX (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has indicated that tax reductions for the rich may be included in the government's planned tax reform law to be presented early next year.

But he emphasized that "we are not saying yet" whether the reduction will be made.

He said the Carter royal commission on taxation reported that the wealthy in Canada pay higher taxes than those in any other country in the Western world.

By levying high taxes on the rich "you soak a very small number" the prime minister said, and the revenue to the government is small.

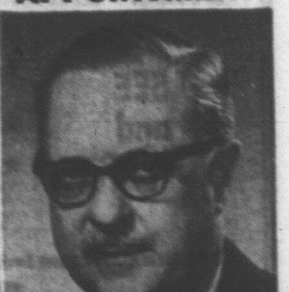
Mr. Trudeau said the government decided to impose a $120 ceiling on the two-per-cent "social development" tax on incomes proposed in last week's budget so the reduction will not be too sharp if a decision is made to reduce taxes to the wealthy.

Airport Expanded

KELOWNA (CP) — New terminal and maintenance facilities at Kelowna airport costing $475,000 were officially opened Saturday by Transport Minister Hellyer.

The new terminal provides 8,000 square feet of space, compared with only 400 in the former wooden frame building, and is a mile closer to the city.

CP HOTELS APPOINTMENT



E. C. FITT

The appointment of E. C. Fitt as Vice-President, Western Canada, for CP Hotels is announced by C. G. Burton, Executive Vice-President. Mr. Fitt, who will make his headquarters in Calgary, will have major responsibility for development projects in hotel, motel and related fields in the western provinces. CP Hotels has facilities in 12 city and resort centres across Canada, including interests in the restaurant field. It is an operating subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd.

Chinooks Top Senior Teams

Victoria Chinooks, who open a new Inter-City Junior Basketball season next weekend at Vancouver, collected some valuable training and boosted their prestige by clipping two clubs from the Victoria Senior Men's League in exhibition tussles.

Chinooks tripped Red Lion Inn 67-57 Saturday at Oak Bay Senior High School and edged Farmer Construction in a 66-64 thriller Sunday at Central Junior High.

Ahead most of the way against Farmers, Chinooks twice lost the lead in the closing stages before scoring the final six points to grab the victory.

Nine-year-old David hurried off to school one morning before his mother inspected his wash job. When he sat down in the classroom, breakfast was still visible on his face.

The teacher frowned and said reprovingly: "David, you didn't wash your face. What would you say if I came to school one morning with egg and jam around my mouth?"

"Nothing," he said stoutly. "I'd be too polite."

Columbus Even With O'Keefes

PETER BRETT

VANCOUVER—Vancouver Columbus got a tough argument from winless Eintracht at Callister Park Sunday before chalking up a 1-0 triumph to climb into a tie with Victoria O'Keefes for third place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

O'Keeves had taken over the third spot Saturday when they came from behind to earn a 2-2 draw with North Shore at Kinsmen Park.

In another Saturday match, Burnaby Villa got second-half goals from Peter Arnett and Mike Phillips to defeat Croatia 2-0 at Callister Park.

AIMLESS EFFORT

Only about 60 fans, almost half of them from Victoria, turned up to watch the Shores battle O'Keefes and they saw the Islanders turn in a punchless and aimless effort during the first half.

O'Keefes managed only two direct drives on North Shore keeper Peter Ahrends in the opening 45 minutes and were somewhat fortunate that the Shores had penetrated a disorganized defence for only two goals, by Roy Nosella and Ed Collins.

With coach Bill Abbott substituting Russ Ball for Dick Joyce at centre forward, O'Keefes were a much sharper club after the intermission and they swung into high gear after Abbott made another change midway in the half.

Joyce went back to his original position with Ball moving to right half in place of Tom Westwater.

STRATEGY WORKED

With North Shore defending stubbornly, O'Keefes worked a bit of strategy to collect the equalizer with about two minutes remaining.

Victoria was awarded a free kick when Joyce was tripped just outside the penalty area. Ike MacKay moved up as if to take a shot but leaped over the ball and Peter Brett followed up to propel the ball into the North Shore net.

There were 1,216 fans at Callister Sunday and for a while it appeared they might see a determined Eintracht side stymie the Columbus bid for a victory.

HOOP LEAGUE CHANGES SITE

Remaining games in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League season will be played at Mount Douglas High School, Cedar Hill Road, league officials announced today.

League play started this season at Gordon Head Junior High, which has a smaller floor area than Mount Douglas.

In Tuesday's games, Red Lion will meet Labatts at 7:30 and Colony will face Farmers at 8:30.

Cycle Crown

Martin Spriggs won the Victoria Motorcycle Club scrambles championship Sunday despite a second place finish to Bill Smith on the course near Goldstream Inn.

Sunday's race was the last of three to accumulate points for the club title. Spriggs had won the first two.

Woodley Kept Tiger On Track

Neophyte driver Derek Reid clocked the second fastest time of 41.85 in his first competition.

NICKLAUS NIPS PLAYER

PERTH (AP)—Big Jack Nicklaus, of Columbus, Ohio, fired a five-under-par 67 Sunday and won the Australian Open golf championship by one stroke when South Africa's Gary Player missed a seven-foot putt on the final hole.

Nicklaus birdied on the final hole of the 72-hole competition and finished with a four-round total of 270, 18 under par. Player with a two-stroke lead, had a 70 Sunday.

Billy Dunk, of Australia, was third with 274; Bobby Cole, of South Africa, was fourth, with 275, and Arnold Palmer, of the United States, was fifth with 276.

New Standardized System To Speed Hospital Building

Regional Authority Urged for Housing

Over-All Organization Essential Says Report by Study Committee

In a comprehensive report on housing needs and problems in the Greater Victoria area, Ald. Edith Gunning, general chairman of the six-month-old study committee, says the need for an overall housing authority is essential.

"Since the capital region of British Columbia forms a continuous community, and persons in desperate search for living accommodation pay little attention to political boundaries which divide the region, it is concluded that planning for housing is more properly handled at the regional level," Ald. Gunning's report states.

One of the first moves to be made by the Community Housing Committee, an arm of the Community Welfare Council, will be the establishment of a housing registry.

"Unfortunately before we can do that we need $6,000," says Ald. Gunning. "It's rather pathetic to think that we have to ask for such a small sum of money before we can take the first step towards at least partially solving the housing crisis."

Ald. Gunning added that once the $6,000 became available from municipalities or the private business sector her committee would immediately establish the proposed registry of housing.

Such a home centre would register all available accommodation in the district, register all people requiring accommodation and "put the two in touch with each other."

COUNSELLING

It would also publicize the need for accommodation and the value of providing it; arrange transportation, where necessary to view rental accommodation and supply a counselling service.

Ald. Gunning's report also calls for the establishment of consultative services to various groups in the community willing to undertake the building of non-profit housing estates.

The consultative service would determine priorities, provide advice to individuals and groups on procedure and endorse such projects meeting required standards.

Ald. Gunning warned that while rural areas of the regional district might balk at sharing the responsibility of providing housing or in sharing the cost, they should remember that rural land would be the key to future housing development.

LAND BANKS

"Their lands are the most likely sites for land banks," the report states. "Though capital costs of land banks would be met by senior governmengs, the municipality concerned would have to suffer loss of taxes until the land was resold.

"It would seem reasonable that, through regional financing, these municipalities would recieve compensation for this tax loss."

British Columbia does at present have a Housing Management Commission but Ald. Gunning notes that it deals only with existing, or under active construction, public housing.

"The commission is not the appropriate body to draw up and promote a plan to meet the total needs of each community," Ald. Gunning states.

Members of the committee presenting individual sections of the report were: Ald. Gunning, general chairman; Clive Campbell, studying existing legislation and procedural steps; George Atamenko, the need for housing; Philip Holmes, the feasibility of a housing registry; John Di Castri, housing types, land assembly and building techniques.

NINE HOURS

Second Man Undergoes Back Surgery

A 75-year-old Victoria man today was undergoing Canada's second operation to replace a section of the vertebrae with one made of metal.

The history-making operation, like its predecessor last October, was being undertaken at Royal Jubilee Hospital by neurosurgeon Dr. Fouad A. Hamdi.

Hospital officials aren't certain but they believe Dr. Hamdi's accomplishment may have been a world first.

GREAT PAIN

Mrs. Ward said Mr. Ward has been unable to do much for himself for many months and suffered "tremendous pain." She said the operation was expected to take up to nine hours.

The first operation, performed successfully on William S. Hamilton, 65, permitted him to walk cheerfully from hospital eight weeks after the operation. The two patients had been roommates.

The device inserted into his backbone consisted of two horseshoe shaped rings held about 1¾ inches apart by three struts. The stainless steel prosthesis saved him from spending the rest of his life in bed.

City Garageman Dies Suddenly On Salt Spring

Well-known Victorian Robert Percival Hawkes, 1360 Richardson St., died suddenly Sunday at his summer home on Salt Spring Island. He was 58.

Mr. Hawkes was born in Victoria and until recently was a partner in Hawkes Brothers Garage in the Five Points area of Fairfield.

He is survived by his wife, Edna; two sons, William Stanley and Robert Bruce, both of Victoria; two brothers, Jack of Victoria, and Arthur of Detroit, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. Muriel Sick of Calgary and Mrs. Kathleen Fleming of Victoria.

Mr. Hawkes was a member of Mount Newton Lodge 89 AF and Columbia Chapter Royal Arch, and Victoria Lodge of Perfection Scottish Rite.

McCall Brothers Funeral Chapel will announce funeral arrangements.

'GO' SIGNALS FLASHED EVERYWHERE

By JIM HUME

Owner-electors throughout the regional district gave overwhelming approval to a $9.3 million hospital construction referendum Saturday.

At the same time they cleared the decks for what could be one of the hottest political issues of the year: where the 600 new extended care beds are to be located.

That the people wanted the hospital bed crisis ended there was no doubt, although only a slim 21 per cent took the trouble to vote.

Those few voted in convincing fashion giving the Regional Hospital District Board an 87 per cent vote of confidence, the highest percentage vote ever recorded in Grater Victoria.

School District 61 set the trend early when at 8:24 p.m. and the first complete poll to report it came in with 229 for and 30 against.

It was a trend that didn't waver throughout the 48-poll count.

Even on the north end of the Saanich peninsula where strong opposition was mounted to protest the lack of bed allocation, the voters remained in a strong "yes" mood.

Sidney recorded 453 affirmative votes, 99 negative, for a 82.1 per cent majority. North Saanich was 465 for and 137 against, for 77.2 per cent in favor — the lowest percentage "yes" recorded, but still far more than the 60 per cent required.

In Victoria city the vote was disappointingly light but highly favorable. Some 2,950 voted in favor of the first stage of a massive hospital construction program, 428 voted against, to give the city an 87.3 affirmative vote.

In Saanich the percentage was down slightly but the turnout to the polls higher than any other area. When the final tallies were in 4,686 had voted "yes," 739 "no," to give Saanich an 86.3 per cent majority — six per cent higher than the "yes" vote recorde three weeks ago on the sewer referendum.

'Puts Us in Hospital Business'

Regional and municipal officials were delighted with the strong support received from the voting taxpayers, but all expressed regret that only 17,400 property owners out of an eligible 81,005 should bother to vote.

Only five elected officials were present at regional district election headquarters Saturday night for the vote count. They were Mayor Hugh Stephen, Victoria, Mayor Hugh Curtis, Saanich, who is also chairman of the Regional Hospital District Board, Mayor Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, Mayor Jim Cumming, North Saanich, and Ald. Cecil Parrott, Victoria.

No hospital officials, for whom the referendum approved in excess of $2 million for new buildings, repairs and new equipment, were present for the count-down.

"This puts us in the hospital business without doubt," said Mayor Curtis. "And about time. We can now make up for all the years of indecision."

Mayor Cumming, equally pleased with the result, asked that some of the praise for the success of the vote be given to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

"It doesn't seem the custum to praise Mr. Loffmark these days," he said. "But I think it should be pointed out that he advanced the idea of going ahead with the referendum just six months after the Agnew Peckham report came out and he recommended that we advance the extended care program as the least controversial at this time."

Two Plans Under Discussion

Mayor Cumming's statement touched on the issue that will bring district officials their biggest headache during the next few months.

There are two tentative plans in the works for the extended care beds. One would see all 600 new beds divided between Mount St. Mary's, The Gorge Road Hospital, St. Mary's Priory and the Gulf Islands with the bulk of the new best going to the first three hospitals named.

The second plan would see the number of beds allocated in blueprint number one reduced with the saved beds allocated to Rest Haven for a new hospital somewhere on the Saanich Peninsula.

If the second plan is adopted the new Rest Haven would get 100 extended care beds and 50 acute care beds.

Some months ago they took an option on 42.9 acres of land in Central Saanich overlooking Saanichton Bay. Hosptial officials openly admit that they hope to get a 100 or 150 bed hosptial unit from Saturday's referendum funds and to use that new hospital as the nucleus lever when the site of a new 200 bed acute care hospital is decided in 1969.

The Rest Haven bid which, in the first stage at least, has strong support from Peninsula residents, is expected to run into tough opposition from the urban municipalities who want the new major acute care hospital located closer to the heavy population area.

In his master-plan for hospital development Dr. Harvey Agnew recommended that phase one be the distribution of extended care beds and that pahse two see the building of a new acute care hospital,

Rifle Ban Sought by Islanders Following Shooting of Surveyor

A petition is being circulated to prohibit the use of rifles for hunting game on the Gulf Islands.

The petition says "the size of the islands on which we live and the increasing population combine to make the use of rifles an extreme hazard to all residents, particularly those who enter forested land either on business or recreation."

It is addressed to Recreation Minister Kiernan and follows the fatal shooting Oct. 22 of land surveyor Peter Arnell 38, of Ganges.

The father of three apprently was mistaken for a deer by a juvenile who was hunting in the Spanish Hills dubdivision on Galiano Island.

About 100 persons have signed the petition.

Meanwhile, it was learned Mr. Arnell had been urged by Ganges store owner Laurie Mouat to purchase a red or yellow hunting jacket rather than the brown jacket he was wearing when shot.

Architects Agree —Loffmark

By JOHN MIKA

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today said construction of the 600 extended care beds approved by Greater Victoria region ratepayers Saturday will be speedier than usual because of co-operaton from the Architectural Institute of British Columbia.

He said the institute has agreed to draw up standardized architectural specifications on the basis of B.C. Hospital Insurance Service's outline of the functional needs of extended care hospitals.

Mr. Loffmark said the standardized specifications — first of their kind in Canada — should provide a breakthrough in the hospital planning process which up to now frequently bogged down for months and even years as BCHIS required revisions to local proposals.

And, he said, the standardized specifications will be ready for speeding up the Greater Victoria project.

"What I'm intending to do is put in standardized specifications so all that passing back and forth of revisions and revisions of revisions will be eliminated or reduced," he said.

ONLY DEPARTURES

Under the new system, instead of an architect starting from scratch in designing an extended care hospital or addition, he will follow the institute's specifications and only the departures from them to accommodate individual needs will need detailed BCHIS assessment.

Mr. Loffmark said the institute also would establish standardized specifications for acute care hospital construction next but this would take considerably longer because of the variety of functions found in acute care hospital wards.

Mr. Loffmark said he hoped the public would consider the new system as another indication of the government's good faith in trying to provide hosptial accommodation as quickly as possible wherever it is needed.

He also praised the architectural institute for its co-operaon "which is particularly significant in the light of the architects' bitter complaints about the package deals sought in such developments as senior citizen housing and urban renewal."

Commenting on Saturday's overwhelming approval of the $9.3 million hosptial construction bylaw, the minister said:

"I was delighted with the degree of favorable response.

"I think too that it was significant that municipal authorities and community leaders accepted the assurances of the regional district board and myself that every care will be taken to locate these facilities where they will best serve the community."

Mr. Loffmark said it now is up to the Regional Hospital District Board to get the projects under way by picking a site and starting construction.

Murder Trial Under Way At Assizes

The trial of two men charged with the non-capital murder of William Bruce Van Munster, 24-year-old hotel clerk, opened in Assize Court here today.

Four months after he disappeared from his home at 1235 Crown Crescent on March 14 last, Van Munster's decomposed and partly mummified body was found by Saanich detectives off a dirt road near Prospect Lake.

The body was hidden under a junked car roof about 50 feet off the road.

In Assize Court this morning, Gary Hugh McWhirter, 24, and Frederick James Morry, 28, each pleaded not guilty to the slaying of Van Munster.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton then adjourned the trial until 2:30 this afternoon while lawyers argued whether certain evidence could be placed before the jury.

During this argument, the jury and all witnesses were excluded from the courtroom.

Two Men Die In Collisions

Two men died in separate car crashes overnight Saturday.

In Saanich, a collision at 1:44 a.m. Sunday took the life of Alan E. Castley, 59, of 2015 Pauls Terrace.

At Chase River, south of Nanaimo, a similar two-car crash killed Francis John Fletcher, 45, of Cedar.

The deaths brought the weekend toll to five including two boys who died following an accident at View Royal Saturday and a Victoria woman pedestrian killed at Nanaimo Friday.

There have been 21 fatal accidents in Greater Victoria this year, 11 of them in Colwood.

Mr. Castley's death was the second recorded in 1968 in Saanich. It is believed Mr. Castley was returning from Lake Cowichan where he operated a movie theatre.

They said at the McKenzie and Quadra intersection his car was in collision with one driven by David Edward Johnston, 31, of 923 Claremont.

Both drivers were alone. Both cars are beyond repair. Police are still uncertain of the direction each car was going. They said the Castley car after the initial crash knocked down a metal stop sign and came to rest against a power line pole on the south side of McKenzie.

Mr. Castley was dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Mr. Johnston was treated at St. Joseph's and released.

An inquest is expected to be called, followed by announcement of funeral arrangements by McCall Bros., funeral directors.

Mr. Castley is survived by his wife, Eleanor, at home; a son, Gordon, of Vancouver, and a daughter, Barbara, of Calgary. Both are married and he has two grandchildren in Calgary.

He was born in Duncan and had lived in Victoria less than a year. A relative said he was a charter member of the Masonic Lodge at Cowichan and his family was well known in that area.

In the Chase River accident, ranch caretaker F. J. Fletcher was a front seat passenger in a car driven by Eileen Esther Neville of Comox Road, Nanaimo.

Police said the collision occurred when the Neville car drove on to the highway at the intersection with Yellow Point Road. The Neville car was knocked on its side. The driver was injured but not seriously.

Mr. Fletcher was rushed to Nanaimo hospital but died soon after admission. He was married with a family. An inquest is expected to be ordered.

Deadly Facts On Up and Up

All traffic accident statistics were on the rise up to the end of August, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today.

He reported there were 380 deaths on B.C. roads during the first eight months, an increase of 12 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

The number of accidents jumped 20 per cent during the same period to 33,892 with 12,639 persons injured for a 6 per cent boost and property damage up 16 per cent to a total of $16.5 million.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me what sort of a plant "gumwood" is and where it can be found? I know it is common on the seashore and blooms all year.—W.R.

A. Gumwood—Latin name grindelia—is a green, upright plant found on higher beaches above the high tide mark. It stands between 10 and 18 inches when fully grown, has serrated leaves and yellow blooms. The blooms are on top of sticky burrs, hence the nick-name gumwood. Gumwood may be found on local beaches.

Five-Day Yule Holiday Granted Civil Servants

Provincial civil servants get an extra day off so that the Christmas break can stretch out to a five-day holiday including a weekend.

A cabinet order adds Friday, Dec. 27, to the Yuletide shutdown of Christmas and Boxing Days on a Wednesday and Thursday this year.

Civil servants will come back to work Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 30 and 31 before having New Year's Day off.

However, Liquor Control Board stores will be closed only on Dec. 25 and 26 and Jan. 1, besides the regular Sunday closing.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade and export interest was light today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with prices moving narrowly.

A local and commission house trade was noted in oilseeds with oats and barley receiving a domestic shipper operation.

Rye drew a smll amount of export interest at levels below the Winnipeg market in an otherwise inter-month spreading operation.

No information was available on export loadings of Canadian wheat.

Among Canadians, Jupiter was up ⅛ and Canadian Marconi ⅛. Preston lost ⅛ and Scurry Rainbow ⅝.

AT MONTREAL Credit Foncier plunged 9 to 57 on only 34 shares.

Canadian Breweries fell ⅝ to 9 on 13,654 shares. Rothmans of Pall Mall, which holds an 11-per-cent interest in Canadian Breweries, said it has cancelled plans to make an offer for additional shares of the brewing firm.

In senior oils, Imperial lost 1⅝ to 77. In senior mines, Noranda added ⅝ to 57½ and Falconbridge ½ to 96½. Hudson Bay Mining fell ½ to 71 and Inco ¼ to 40⅝.

North American Rare Metals added 2 cents to 98 cents on 159,700 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Caadian Stock Exchange.

AT LONDON the stock market opened on a firm note today with leading industrials higher. The tightening of sterling finance affected sentiment in gilts and prices were off.

Among Canadians, Dome rose three points to 214. Others to advance were Canadian Husky, Power Corp and Syracuse. Noranda and Imperial Oil both shed $2. Canadian Imperial dropped 6 shillings to 191 and Toronto Dominion lost nearly 3 shillings. Bank of Montreal picked up ninepence.

Churchill Falls Tops In Battle of Dams

VANCOUVER (CP) — There's a battle of statistics being waged between directors of the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority and backers of the Churchill Falls power project in Labrador over who's got the biggest and best dams being built.

And it looks as if, for the first time in a generation, B.C. will come out at the short end of the statistical stick.

B.C. Hydro now proudly claims the largest underground powerhouse in the world at its Peace River project. But the honor will be short-lived.

The Churchill Falls (Labrador) Corp. Ltd.'s project in the wilds of Labrador involves an underground setup that will leave B.C. second-best.

The first generators of the Peace River project started officially this fall. B.C. Hydro, a Crown-owned corporation, is spending about $485,000,000 to create the W. A. C. Bennett Dam and, eventually, the largest lake in the province, covering about 680 square miles.

BATTLE OF FIGURES

The Peace River underground powerhouse is 890 feet long, 67 feet wide and 153 feet high, and sits at its deepest about 650 feet below the surface.

Three 227,000-kilowatt generators were tested during the summer and total capacity if 10 generators are installed will be 2,300,000 kilowatts.

Water from the Peace River reservoir will drop through 10 penstocks.

The Churchill Falls Corp. expects to start delivering power in 1972 with installation of 11 generators to turn out 5,200,000 kilowatts by 1976. The project has a $900,000,000 price tag.

The Churchill Falls powerhouse will be 972 feet long, 81 feet wide and 164 feet high. At its deepest, the powerhouse will be 984 feet below the surface. It will create a reservoir 2,400 square miles in size.

The Churchill Falls Corp. will use 475,000-kilowatt generators—twice the size of those at the Peace River project.

All of which has B.C. power experts looking seriously at the Liard River in the northern part of the province as the next major Canadian project.

PM Indicates Tax Cuts For Rich

HALIFAX (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has indicated that tax reductions for the rich may be included in the government's planned tax reform law to be presented early next year.

But he emphasized that "we are not saying yet" whether the reduction will be made.

He said the Carter royal commission on taxation reported that the wealthy in Canada pay higher taxes than those in any other country in the Western world.

By levying high taxes on the rich "you soak a very small number" the prime minister said, and the revenue to the government is small.

Mr. Trudeau said the government decided to impose a $120 ceiling on the two-per-cent "social development" tax on incomes proposed in last week's budget so the reduction will not be too sharp if a decision is made to reduce taxes to the wealthy.

Airport Expanded

KELOWNA (CP) — New terminal and maintenance facilities at Kelowna airport costing $475,000 were officially opened Saturday by Transport Minister Hellyer.

The new terminal provides 8,000 square feet of space, compared with only 400 in the former wooden frame building, and is a mile closer to the city.
